48. Whereas we have thought it necessary for our service to constitute and appoint a receiver-general of our rights and perquisites of the admiralty, it is therefore our will and pleasure that you be aiding and assisting to the said receiver-general, his deputy or deputies, in the execution of the said office of receiver-general; and we do hereby enjoin and require you to make up your accounts with him, his deputy or deputies, of such rights of admiralty (effects of pirates included) as you or your officers have received, or shall or may receive for the future, and to pay over to the said receiver-general, his deputy or deputies, for our use, all such sum or sums of money as shall appear upon the foot of such accounts to be and remain in your hands, or in the hands of any of your officers: And whereas our said receiver-general is directed, in case the parties chargeable with any part of such our revenue refuse, neglect, or delay payment thereof, by himself or sufficient deputy, to apply in our name to our governors, judges, attorney-general, or any other our officers or magistrates, to be aiding or assisting to him in recovering the same, it is therefore our will and pleasure that you, our governor, our judges, our attorney-general, and all other officers whom it may concern, do use all lawful authority for the recovering and levying thereof.

49. And whereas by letters patent under the great seal of our United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing date at Westminster the 10th day of May, 1825, the island of Newfoundland was constituted to be part of the see of the bishop of Nova Scotia, and the said bishop was thereby duly authorized to exercise jurisdiction, spiritual and ecclesiastical, in the said colonies, it is our will and pleasure that in the administration of the government of our said island you should be aiding and assisting to the said bishop, and to his commissary or commissaries, in the execution of their charge, and the exercise of such ecclesiastical jurisdiction, excepting only the granting licenses for marriages and probates of wills.

50. We do enjoin and require that you do take especial care that Almighty God be devoutly and truly served throughout your government, the book of common prayer, as by law established, read each Sunday and holiday, and the blessed sacrament administered according to the rites of the Church of England. You shall be careful that all orthodox churches already built there be well and orderly kept, and that more be built, as our island shall, by God's blessing, be improved. And that besides a competent maintenance to be assigned to the minister of each orthodox church, a convenient house be built at the common charge for each minister, and a competent portion of land for a glebe be allotted to him. And you are to take care that the parishes be so limited and settled as you shall find most convenient for the accomplishing this good work, and in all matters relating to the celebration of divine worship, the erection and repair of churches, the maintenance of ministers, and the settlement of parishes throughout your government, you are to advise with the right reverend father in God the bishop of Nova Scotia for the time being.

51. Upon the vacancy of any ecclesiastical benefice in our said island, you will present to the said bishop of Nova Scotia for the time being, for institution to such vacant benefice, any clerk in holy orders of the United Church of England and Ireland, who shall have been actually resident within the said diocese, and officiating there as a clerk in holy orders, for six calendar months at the least next before such benefice shall have become vacant, whom the said bishop may certify to you to be a fit and proper person to fill such vacancy, and to be a person of good life and conversation, and conformable to the doctrine and discipline of the said United Church. But if at the time of any such vacancy occurring there shall not be resident within the said diocese any clerk in holy orders of the said United Church who shall have been resident and officiating therein as aforesaid, in whose favour the said bishop shall think proper so to certify to you, or if no such certificate shall be received by you from the said bishop within three calendar months next after such vacancy shall occur, then and in either of such cases you shall forthwith report the circumstances to us, through one of our principal secretaries of state, to the intent that we may nominate some fit and proper person, being a clerk in holy orders as aforesaid, to fill the said vacancy. And we do enjoin and command you to present to the said bishop for institution to any such vacant ecclesiastical benefice, any clerk who may be so nominated by us, through one of our principal secretaries of state.

52. You are to inquire whether there be any minister within your government who preaches and administers the sacrament in any orthodox church or chapel, without being in due orders, and to give an account thereof to the said bishop of Nova Scotia.

53. And whereas doubts have arisen whether the powers of granting licenses for marriages and probates of wills, commonly called the office of ordinary, which we have reserved to you, our governor, can be exercised by deputation from you to any other person within our said island under your government, it is our express will and pleasure, and you are hereby directed and required not to grant deputations for the exercise of the said powers, commonly called the office of ordinary, to any person or persons whatsoever in our said island under your government.

54. And you are to take especial care that a table of marriages established by the canons of the Church of England be hung up in every orthodox church and duly observed.

55. The Right Reverend Father in God, Edmund, then Lord Bishop of London, having presented a petition to His Majesty King George the First, humbly beseeching him to send instructions to the governors of all the several colonies and plantations in America, that they cause all laws already made against blasphemy, profineness, adultery, fornication, polygamy, incest, profanation of the Lord's day, swearing, and drunkenness in their respective governments to be rigorously executed, and we, thinking it highly just that all persons who shall offend in any of the particulars aforesaid should be prosecuted and punished for their said offences, it is therefore our will and pleasure that you do take care for the due punishment of the aforementioned vices, and that you earnestly recommend that effectual laws be passed for the restraint and punishment of all such of the aforementioned vices against which no laws are as yet provided. And also you are to use your endeavours to render the laws in being more effectual, by providing for the punishment of the aforementioned vices, by presentment upon oath to be made to the temporal courts by the churchwardens of the several parishes, at proper times of the year to be appointed for that purpose; and for the further discouragement of vice and encouragement of virtue and good living, you are not to admit any persons to public trusts or employments in the islands under your government whose ill fame and conversation may occasion scandal.

56. It is our further will and pleasure that you recommend to the legislature to enter upon proper methods for the erecting and maintaining schools in order to the training up of youth to reading, and to a necessary knowledge of the principles of religion. You are not, however, to give your consent to any act respecting religion without a clause suspending its operation until our pleasure shall have been signified thereupon, unless a draft thereof shall have been previously transmitted by you for our consideration and approval.

57. And we do further direct, that in all matters arising within your government connected with the education of youth in the principles of the Christian religion according to the doctrine of the said United Church of England, or connected with the prevention of vice and profaneness, or the conversion of negroes and other slaves, or connected with the worship of Almighty God, or the promotion of religion and virtue, you be advising with the bishop for the time being of the said diocese of Nova Scotia, and be aiding him in the execution of all such designs and undertakings as may be recommended by the said bishop for the promotion of any of the objects before mentioned, so far as such designs and undertakings may be consistent with the law, and with your said commission and these our instructions.

58. You are to transmit to us, through one of our principal secretaries of state, regular monthly returns of the militia of our said island whenever and so long as the same shall be embodied, with a particular state of their arms and accoutrements; and for the due preservation and security of which you are to establish such regulations as you shall judge to be most effectual for that purpose.

59. You shall not upon any occasion whatsoever establish or put in execution any articles of war, or other law martial, upon any of our subjects, inhabitants of our said island, without the consent and advice of our Council.

60. And in case of any distress of any other of our plantations, you shall, upon application of the respective governors thereof unto you, assist them with what aid the condition and safety of our island under your government can spare.

61. You shall, from time to time, give unto us, through one of our principal sccretaries of state, an account of the wants and defects of the island under your government, what are the chief products thereof, what improvements have been lately made, and what further improvements you conceive may be made, or advantages gained by trade, and in what way we may contribute thereunto.

62. If any thing shall happen which may be of advantage or security to our island under your government, which is not herein or by our commission provided for, we do hereby allow you, with the advice and consent of our Council, to take orders for the present therein, giving unto us, through one of our principal secretaries of state, speedy notice thereof, that so you may receive our ratification, if we shall approve the same: Provided always, that you do not, under colour of any power or authority hereby given to you, commence or declare war without our knowledge and particular commands therein first obtained leave for so doing from us, under our sign manual and signet, or by our order in our Privy Council.

63. And whereas we have thought fit, by our commission, to direct that in case of your death or absence, and there be at that time no person within our said island commissioned or appointed by us to be lieutenantgovernor, or specially appointed by us to administer the government within our said island, that the councillor whose name is first placed in our instructions to you, (unless it shall therein be otherwise signified,) and who shall be, at the time of your absence, residing within our said island, and who shall take the oath's appointed to be taken by you or the commander-in-chief of our said island, shall take upon him the administration of the government, and execute our said commission and instructions and the several powers and authorities therein contained, in the manner therein directed. It is, nevertheless, our express will and pleasure that in such cases the councillor so administering the government shall forbear to pass any act or acts but what are immediately necessary for the peace and welfare of the said island, without our particular order for that purpose; and that he shall not take upon him to dissolve the assembly then in being, or to remove or suspend any of the members of our council, nor any judges, justices of the peace, or other officer, civil or military, without the advice or consent of at least seven of the council, nor even then without good and sufficient reason for the same, which the said president is to transmit, signed by himself and the respective council, to us, through one of our principal secretaries of state.

64. And whereas we are willing to provide in the best manner for the support of the government of our said island, by setting apart sufficient allowances to such as shall be our governor or commander-in chief, residing for the time being within the same, our will and pleasure is, that when it shall happen that you shall be absent from our said island, one full moiety of the salary, and of all perquisites and emoluments whatsoever, which would otherwise become due unto you, shall, during the time of your absence, be paid and satisfied unto such lieutenant governor or president of the council for the time being, which we do hereby order and allot unto him for his maintenance, and for the better support of the dignity of our govern-

65. And you are upon all occasions to send to us, through one of our principal secretaries of state, a particular account of your proceedings, and of the conditions of affairs within your government.

[COMMISSION TO THE GOVERNOR OF NEWFOUNDLAND.]

A PROCLAMATION.

William the Fourth, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c.

To all to whom these presents shall come, greeting:

Whereas by our letters-patent under the great seal of our United Kingdom aforesaid, bearing date at Westminster the 2d of March, 1832, in the second year of our reign, we have given and granted to our trusty and well-beloved Sir Thomas John Cochrane, Knight, our governor and commander-in-chief of our island of Newfoundland, full power and authority to summon and call a general assembly of the freeholders and householders within our said island; it is therefore our pleasue, and we do hereby declare and make known to all our loving subjects within the same, that for the purpose of the election of the members of the said assembly, the said island shall be divided into nine districts, to be called respectively,

The district of St. John; do. Conception Bay; do. Fogo; do. Bonavista; do. Trinity Bay; do. Ferryland; do. Placentia and St. Mary; do. Burin; do. Fortune Bay.

And it is our further will and pleasure, and we do hereby declare, that the before-mentioned district of St. John shall consist of and include all that part of our said island bounded by the shore which is situate and lying between Petty Harbour and Broad Cove.

And that the before-mentioned district of Conception Bay shall consist of and include all that part of our said island which, bounded in like manner, is situate and lying between Broad Cove and Bay Verd's Head.

And that the before-mentioned district of Fogo shall consist of and include all that part of our said island which, bounded in like manner, is situate and lying between Cape St. John and Fogo Island, including that island.

And that the before-mentioned district of Bonavista shall consist of and include all that part of our said island which, bounded in like manner, is situate and lying between Cape Freels and Cape Bonavista.

And that the before-mentioned district of Trinity Bay shall consist of and include all that part of our said island which, bounded in like manner, is situate and lying between Cape Bonavista and Cape Verd's Head.

And that the before-mentioned district of Ferryland shall consist of and include all that part of our said island which, bounded in like manner, is situate and lying between Petty Harbour and Cape Race.

And that the before-mentioned district of Placentia and St. Mary shall consist of and include all that part of our said island which, bounded in like manner, is situate and lying between Cape Race and Rushven.

And that the before-mentioned district of Burin shall consist of and include all that part of our said island which, bounded in like manner, is situate and lying between Rushven and Garnish.

And that the before-mentioned district of Fortune Bay shall consist of and include all that part of our said island which, bounded in like manner, is situate and lying between Garnish and Bonne Bay.

And we do further signify and delare our pleasure to be that the said district of St. John shall be represented in the assembly by three members.

And that the said district of Conception Bay shall be represented in the said assembly by four members.

And that each of the said districts of Fogo, of Bonavista, of Trinity Bay, and of Ferryland, shall be represented in the said assembly by one member.

And that the said district of Placentia and St. Mary shall be represented in the said assembly by two members.

And that each of the districts of Burin and Fortune Bay shall be represented in the said assembly by one member.

And it is our will and pleasure that the governor for the time being of our said island do appoint some fit person to be the returning officer within each of the said districts.

And we do further declare our pleasure to be that our said governor do issue in our name writs for the election of the members of the several districts before mentioned, which writs shall be addressed to the several returning officers aforesaid, and shall by them be returned to the Colonial Secretary for the time being of our said island.

And it is our will and pleasure that every man, being of the full age of twenty-one years and upwards, and being of sound understanding, and being our natural born subject, or having been lawfully naturalized, and never having been convicted in due course of law of any infamous crime, and having for two years next immediately preceding the day of election occupied a dwelling-house within our said island as owner or tenant thereof, shall be eligible to be a member of the said house of assembly.

And it is our further will and pleasure that every man who for one year next immediately preceding the day of election hath occupied a dwelling-house within our said island as owner or tenant thereof, and who in other respects may be eligible, according to the regulations aforesaid, to be a member of the said house of assembly, shall be competent and entitled to vote for the election of members of the said assembly in and for the district within which the dwelling-house so occupied as aforesaid by him may be situate.

And it is our pleasure that the votes for the members of the said assembly shall be taken by the said several returning officers at such one or more place or places within each of the said districts as shall for that purpose be appointed in the body of the writ addressed to the returning officer of every such district respectively, and at or within such time or times as shall for the purpose be therein limited: but inasmuch as by reason of the difficulty of internal communication within our said island, many persons entitled to vote might be prevented from the exercise of such their franchise, if in every case it were necessary to attend in person for that purpose, we do therefore declare our pleasure to be, that in respect of any dwelling-house situate at the distance of more than miles from the nearest place of election, within any of the said districts, the vote of any householder, duly qualified as aforesaid, may be given without his personal attendance, by a written notice subscribed by such voter, in the presence of two credible witnesses, and duly attested by their signatures; which notices shall be in such form as our governor for the time being of our said island shall from time to time direct.

And it is our further pleasure, that if any candidate or voter at any such election shall object to any vote then tendered, it shall be the duty of the returning officer to hear such objection, and what may be alleged in support of, or in answer to, the same, and to examine on oath the parties by or against whom such objection may be raised, and any person or persons who may be adduced as a witness or as witnesses on either side; and upon such hearing, to admit or to overrule any such objection as may to such returning officer appear just and right.

And we do further declare our will to be, that the persons in favour of whom the greater number of votes shall be given in any such district shall be publicly declared by such returning officer to be duly elected to be the representatives thereof in the said general assembly, and shall thereupon be returned and take their seats accordingly: provided always, that in cases of peculiar doubt or difficulty, it shall be competent for any such returning officer to make a special return, setting forth the grounds of such doubt, upon which the said house of assembly shall afterwards decide.

And it is our will, and we do further declare, that the assembly so to be chosen as aforesaid shall continue only during our pleasure, and that the said assembly shall not proceed to the dispatch of any business, unless six members at the least shall be present at and during the whole of the deliberations of the said House thereupon.

And whereas it may be necessary, in order to the complete execution of the several purposes aforesaid, that further regulations should be made for the conduct of the said elections, and the return of members to serve in the said house of assembly, we have therefore authorized, and do hereby authorize, our governor for the time being of our said island, by any proclamation or proclamations to be by him from time to time issued in our name and on our behalf, to make such further regulations as may be necessary for the conduct of the said elections, and for the return of members to serve in the said house of assembly, and for the due discharge of the duties of the said returning officer; and which regulations shall be of full force, virtue, and effect, until provision be otherwise made by law, it being nevertheless, our pleasure that the regulations so to be made as aforesaid be not repugnant to, or inconsistent with, the several provisions hereinbefore contained, or any of them.

Given at our court at St. James's, on the twenty-sixth day of July, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two, in the third year of our reign.

No. 3.—TIPPERAH.—In addition to his Zemindaree, in the Plains of Comillah, paying revenue of about 150,000 rupees fixed under the perpetual settlement, the Rajah of Tipperah possesses an extensive but ill-known tract of hill territory to the eastward, which may be estimated to contain 600 square miles. The information respecting this quarter is, however, much too vague and uncertain to warrant any calculations as to the population, number of villages, or revenue, arising from it. From personal observation, however, I can state that the part of Tipperah claimed as independent is not all hilly, but includes many level well-watered vallies, admirably suited for agriculture; but which are, in general, neglected and wholly unoccupied, owing to the unwillingness of the lowlanders to subject themselves to the rapacity and tyranny of the Rajah and his officers; a few spots, however, as at Anger Collah and Killaisur, are under cultivation, and might, if assessed, yield a revenue to the state of about 5,000 rupees.

No. 4.—NORTHERN CACHAR.—Under this designation I include the mountainous country recently held by Tooleram, the chieftain whom I have found it necessary to arrest with a view to bring him to trial for the murder of two of the inhabitants of the country of Dhurumpore, now held in attachment by a Sazawul deputed for that purpose by Mr. Scott. This region does not appear of sufficient importance in any point of view to merit particular notice. Its inhabitants, I understand, belong chiefly to the Cacharee and Maree tribes, and are not more hostile than, from their relative position, it is natural to expect. Lieutenant Fisher is now engaged in forming an arrangement with them for the future government of this country, and this will, ere long, form the subject of a separate despatch.

Next to the states above detailed in the order of geographical progression, follows the confederation of petty chiefs by whom the Khoseat Mountains have hitherto been held.

These are said to be 30 in number; but it is unnecessary, with reference to the immediate object of this despatch, to enter into detail with regard to any but the following:—

No. 23 —Bootan.—From Chardour, in Lower Assam, to the country of the Sikhem Puttee our frontier, for an extent of about 200 miles, touches that of Bootan. Along the line a tract of the low lands, originally acquired perhaps by sufferance, has gradually become the unquestioned right of this state; on it, indeed, they appear to be entirely dependent for grain, as the population is described as being considerable, and far beyond what they could raise food for in the narrow vallies of their own hills. This circumstance places it in our power, in case of a rupture, to reduce Bootan to our terms by merely shutting the doors or passes during the cold season, and preventing its subjects from coming to the plains or receiving any supplies therefrom. Should it prove further necessary to retain the tract of low land in our own possession, the consequent expense might be met by the establishment of hants or markets, on the principle of those in the Goulparagh district, which, on the Bootan frontier, would prove a most plentiful source of revenue.

Of the internal state of Bootan, little more is known now than may be gathered from Captain Turner's Narrative of his Embassy to Thibet, in 1783. A more recent account of the country may probably have been given to the world by Mr. Manning, who lived for a long time at Lassa; but this I have not the means of ascertaining.

I hope, while in Assam, to be able to collect much more information; but I can now add little to what is in print.

The envoys who recently visited me at Cherra were men of low rank and little intelligence. From what I could gather from them, it does not appear that the Chinese exercise a much greater influence than they did in Turner's time, either over the undying superior, the Dhurram Rajah or Sama, or his mortal vassal, the Deb Rajah or immediate ruler of Bootan.

The Booteas are notoriously an unwarlike race, and, from the little which I have seen of their demeanour towards us, I am inclined to think that they have less of the overweening arrogance of the demi-barbarian than might be expected from their political and moral situation. A rupture with this state will only be formidable as indicating that it has the countenance of another and greater power behind it.

Note .- The independent chieftains of Bundlecund have, during a long course of years, and at the periods when the British Government was engaged in protracted warfare with other states, invariably shewn their attachment to British supremacy. During the Mahratta war of 1817-18, the protection of the numerous passes, or Ghauts, into the province, was entrusted to them. During the Burmese war, not merely were offers to assist with their forces submitted, but the commissatiat department was materially aided by the voluntary assistance received from them. During the siege of Bhurtpore, supplies of grain were forwarded from the states nearest the scene of action to the army; and when the Fort of Calpee was attacked by a rebel subject of Salown, the Sumpthur troops, at the request of this office, immediately proceeded to the protection of Koonah, whilst the forces of Ourchah, Jhansi and Duttiah advanced, on the agent's application, to effect his reduction. In the fidelity of the Bondelah states, implicit confidence may be reposed; their attachment to British rule originates in self interest. Under no previous government did they at any time enjoy their possessions free from all demand, either of service or tribute. Their union for the attainment of a common object, is a chimera. Between the Boondelahs and Mahrattahs a deeply-rooted antipathy has long existed, and time has not diminished it; Jhansi would fall an casy prey to Oorchah and Duttiah, and Jaloun could not support its existence against the aggressions of the Juggut Raj branch of the Chuttersal's family. The several members against one of that family, hold each other in mutual distrust and aversion; and as the portion of the province held by the British Government is not claimed by the Boondelahs, as it formed the undisputed part of the ex-peshwa's possesssions, obtained by the adoption of his ancestor by Chuttersal, they would in all probability commit an aggressive act against it, but would turn their arms against each other, if any general ferment should exist in British India: for each alleges a right to some portion of his neighbour's territory. [This estimate was made in the year 1800, and transmitted by Government to the Court of Directors.

I.—General account of the state of Calcutta in 1717. As the Court of Directors may probably wish to have some general account of the state of the town of Calcutta, the following (being extracted from my proposed statistical reports) may be acceptable. The accounts of several respectable natives (collected by my assistant, Mr. Blaquiere) correspond in the fol-lowing description of Calcutta, in the year 1717, viz.:

- 1. That the present town was a village appertaining to the Zillah of Nuddee.
- 2. The houses were scattered about in clusters of 10 or 12 in each, and the inhabitants chiefly husbandmen.
- 3. A forest existed to the southward of the Chaundpaul Ghaut, which was afterwards removed by degrees.
- 4. Between Kiddepoor and the forest were two villages, whose inhabitants were invited to settle in Calcutta by the ancient family of the Seals, who were at that time merchants of great note, and very instrumental in bringing Calcutta into the form of a town.
- 5. The new fort and esplanades are the sites where this forest and the two villages formerly stood.
- 6. The present old inhabitants of the town recollect a creek, which ran from Chaundpaul Ghaut to Ballia Ghaut. They say that the drain before the government house is where it took its course; and there is a ditch to the south of a garden, at the By-takkannah, which bears evident traces of the continuation of this creek.
- 7. There was a small village, consisting of a few straggling houses, surrounded by filthy puddles of water and trees, where the elegant houses at Chouringee now stand.
- 8. Calcutta may be said to have extended northward as far as the Chitpore Bridge, if uncultivated ground covered with wildernesses may be said to have composed a part of it. There was no high road, and it was dangerous to travel at late hours from robbers infesting the paths.

In 1742, a ditch was dug round a considerable part of the present boundaries of Calcutta, to prevent the incursions of the Mahrattas, the expense of which was defrayed by an assessment on the inhabitants of the town.

It appears by Major Orme's History of the War in Bengal, that at the time of the capture of Calcutta, in 1756, there were about 70 houses belonging to the

What are now called the Esplanade, the site of the New Fort, the Course and Chowringee, were even at that period (with all the territory more than 800 yds. to the eastward) a complete jungle interspersed here and there with a few huts, and small parcels of grazing and arable land.

Some tolerable idea may be formed of the state of the town of Calcutta in the beginning of 1798, from the two following statements:

1.-Statement of the Number and Value of Houses. Shops and Habitations in the Town of Calcutta, | belonging to Individuals, the Value estimated at Seven Years purchase.—British subjects, No. of housees, 4,300, value, 84,78,000rs.; Armenians, 640, 7,54,000; Portuguese, and other Christian Inhabi tants, 2,650, 25,36,000rs.; Hindoos, 56,460, 1,58,34,000rs.; Mussulmen, 14,700, 26,87,000rs.; Chinese, 10,7,000rs.; total number, 78,760, value rupees, 3,02,96,000.

2.-Rents per mensem, and number of Houses and other Habitations in the Town of Calcutta -500rs. and above, 23 houses; 400rs. to 500rs., 22; 300rs. to 400rs., 66; 250rs. to 300rs., 56; 200rs. to 250rs., 80; 175rs. to 200rs., 39; 150rs, to 175rs, 62; 125rs. to 150rs., 40; 100rs. to 125rs., 143; 80rs. to 100rs., 94; 60rs. to 80rs., 185; 40rs. to 60rs., 504; 20rs. to 40rs. 1,621; 10rs. to 20rs., 2,737; 5rs. to 10rs., 3,066; small brick houses, shops, and godowns, 9,235; straw and mud houses, and huts, 60,787. Grand total, 159,760.

These statements do not include the Old and New Forts, and many houses, &c. the property of the Honourable Company.

The value of the houses and huts, with the ground appertaining to the same, is stated to be, 3,02,96,000rs. The value agreeable to the assessment by the officers of police, and corrected to the 1st. February 1798, which there is no record.—R. M. M.]

for the purpose of levying a tax of 5 per cent. on the estimated monthly rent of all inhabited houses, huts, &c., was 2,48,60,080rs. Difference, 54,35,920rs.

My estimate, therefore, is about 20 per cent. more than the valuation formed by the officers of police, and is, I believe, as correct as possible.

[The present statement I found in manuscript in a book in the E. I. House. R. M. M.]

Note.—From the foregoing official returns, dated Calcutta 1824 (the latest at the India Honse), it will be seen that in the Lower Provinces of Bengal there are 157,884 villages, and 7,447,653 houses. The population census has been formed by calculating five inmates to every house (a fair average in India), which gives 37,238,365 mouths. This is the nearest approximation to correctness of the population of a vast section of the empire.

Note.—The foregoing return is signed "John Romer, Magistrate;" I give it, as I do several others of population in this Appendix, for the purpose of stimulating further inquiries into the important subject of the population of British India. I am aware of the difficulties in the way of obtaining correct censuses, owing to the jealousy of the natives; but this difficulty may be got over by prudence and kindness. We possess no correct census of any District in British India except those given in this volume, and several of these are not to be relied on. I am strongly of opinion that in many parts there is a decreasing population; and that although several districts in Bengal are densely peopled, the greater part of our territory is but thinly inhabited. R. M. M.

O .- Inhabitants of the Collectorship (exclusive of the City) of Poons, and Villages held in Enam and Surinjam.

The above only comprises the permanent residents; including temporary sojourners and strangers, the population probably amounts to more than 15,500. The apparent disparity between male and female children, is probably to be accounted for by the early marriages of the latter, which causes many to be included in the lists of adults.

It is intended to establish Portuguese Bergis classes. There is a library and museum in connection with this useful institution, the founders of which deserve great credit.

K K.—Education in Bengal.—The district of Nattore has an area of about 350 square miles. It contains 485 villages, occupied by 30,028 families, of which 10,095 are Hindu, and 19,933 Mussulman. The total population is 195,296, of whom 100,579 are males, and 94,717 are females; there are, therefore, on an average, 62 families, or 400 individuals, in a village.

Of the total population 34,939 or 17.9 per cent. are under 5 years of age.
,, 39,429 ,, 20.2 ,, are between 5 and 14 ditto.

The number of native elementary schools in the district is 27, of which 11 are Hindu and 16 Mussulman. They contain 262 boys. The number of native schools of learning is 38, all of which are Hindu. They contain 397 male students. In 1,588 families, of which 1,277 are Hindu, and 311 are Mussulman, the children are receiving occasional domestic instruction. On an average of one and a half child to each family, the number of children in this class will be 2,382. Thus the total number of males receiving instruction is 3,041, of whom 2,644 are between 5 and 14, or 11.6 per cent. of the whole male population between those ages. Females receive no education whatever. Of the adult male population, amounting to 59,500 souls, only 6,121, or 10.3 per cent., possesses even the most insignificant degree of instruction. If the non-adult population be added, it will appear that out of 100,579 males, only 8,765, or 8.7 per cent., possesses or are acquiring any kind of instruction; and, if the female population be added, the proportion will be further reduced to 4.5 per cent.—[Official Report.]

L L.—Recent circumstances have directed public attention to the trade between British India and the Persian Gulf and coast of Arabia; this trade is of considerable value, if properly cultivated, and it would be very desirable to form commercial factories in the Persian Gulf and in the Red Sea, for the purpose of securing this increasing and lucrative traffic.

The merchandize imported into Calcutta for the years ending 1827, from the Persian Gulf and Arabia, amounted to S. R. 85,87,046, and the treasure to S. R. 86,67,716. The exports were S. R. 2,19,22,141, which trade was carried on in 50 English ships, with a tonnage of 20,000, and 80 Arab ships, comprising 35,000 tons. The trade of Madras was, of course, less. The average annual value of the trade between Calcutta and the Persian Gulf is S. R. 55,96,845; between the Gulf and Madras, S. R. 5,49,819; and between Bombay and the Gulf, S. R. 72,24,971.

Allowing only 160 rupees a candy, as the average value of cotton throughout the season, it may be estimated as worth 232 lakhs of rupees.

Opium.—The export of opium, which stands second on the list, was as follows:—In ₹829, 3,420 chests; 1830, 3,506; 1831, 4,472; 1832, 10,105½; 1833, 6,937; 1834, 11,206; 1835, 8,785; 1836, 16,234½. The great increase displayed in 1832 was princi-

The great increase displayed in 1832 was principally owing to the abolition of the Company's monopoly of the drug. Estimating the value of the exports last year at 1,050 rupees a chest, they would, in round numbers, be worth 170 lakhs of rupees.

Wool.—Although its intrinsic value is but trifling, this article promises soon, by means of the Indus, to be one of the most important staples of Bombay. Exports in 1833, 106 bales, 303 cwt.; 1834, 439 bales, 1,719 cwt.; 1835, 2,290 bales, 6,363 cwt.; 1836, 5,125 bales, 14,645 cwt.

3 B.—TABLE OF EASTERN COINS.

[Prepared at the Assay Office, Calcutta Mint, in November, 1832, by H. H. Wilson, Esq., Assay Master.]

The following tables comprise the weight, standard, pure contents, intrinsic value, and mint price of most of the gold and silver coins current in various parts of India, and of a few European coins imported into that country.

The weight and pure contents are expressed in troy grains. The standard of the gold is valued in carats, of the silver in pennyweights, and their respective subdivisions; a quarter of a carat grain and a half pennyweight being the lowest limit of valuation. The relative standard, or the betterness and worseness, has reference to the standard of the Calcutta coins, which both gold and silver are composed of 11 parts fine, and 1 of alloy or, in the terms of the tables, the gold of 22 carats pure and 2 carats alloy, and the silver of 220 pennyweights (11 oz.) fine, and 20 pennyweights (1 oz.) alloy.

The intrinsic value of the coins is the relative value of their pure metal, as compared with the value of the pure contents of he gold mohur and Calcutta rupee. The mint price is what they would realize in the Calcutta mint, after paying any charges for refinage, hould such be necessary in consequence of inferiority of stan rd, and a deduction from the nett value of two per cent, as coinage duty.

The intrinsic value and mint price have been cal-culated upon 00 pieces of each kind of currency as the most convenient mode of expressing their valuation. The ilver coins are valued in rupees the gold in gold mohurs and decimal parts; to determine the value of these in rupees, it is only necessary, for the regulation value, to multiply the mint price by 16; for the Bazar price, by the price of the day; thus, the first item of the gold table, or Ahmedy Pagoda,

* The standard of this coin is not from actual assay, but its reputed purity. It is no doubt of a high value, though not absolutely pure.

† By Regulation, the standard of the Bombay Mohur is 92 parts fine in 100, which is a trifle better than the reported standard; the pure contents are assumed as the same.

‡ The present gold coin of the Madras Mint.

* This is taken from the Bombay Table. † These are coins assayed in 1832, as forming the chief circulation of the district of Chittagong; they are no doubt the same originally as the preceding, being lighter from being longer in use, and a little worse from being perhaps mixed with some of the inferior sorts.

• This coin like the gold Mohurs, was of the standard of 92 fine and eight of alloy, but in 1829 was altered to that of No. 3, in order to equalize the value of the Madras, Bombay, and Furruckabad rupees.

† Short-weight rupees of the Calcutta currency, when brought for re-coinage, are charged a duty of only 1 per cent.

TABLE OF COINS IN USE IN VARIOUS PARTS OF INDIA. NEW COINAGE OF INDIA. FORT WILLIAM, 9TH SEPTEMBER, 1837.

The honourable the governor general in council has resolved that the device of the new rupees, double rupee, half rupee, and quarter rupee, to be issued from the mints of India from and after the 1st September, 1835, in conformity with act XVII of the same year, shall be as follows:—On the obverse, the Head of his Majesty William the Fourth, with the words.—WILLIAM IIII., KING.—On the reverse, the denomination of the coin in English and Persian in the centre, encircled by a laurel wreath; and around the margin the words.—East India company, 1835. The new coin shall be milled on the edge, with serrated or upright milling. The rupee shall measure in diameter one inch and two-tenths of an inch, or one tenth of a foot. The diameter of the double rupee shall be one inch and a half; that of the half rupee, or eight anna piece shall be ninety-five hundredths of an inch; and that of the quarter rupee, or four anna piece shall be three quarters of an inch. These measures being severally the relative proportions to the rupee provided in the Act aforesaid. The weight standard fineness and value of the new (or company's) rupee as defined in the act, are here repeated for general information. Weight, 180 grains troy, or one tola. Standard quality, eleven-twelfths silver, one-twelfth alloy. Value, equal to the Madras, Bombay, Furukhabad, and Sonat rupee; and to fifteen-sixteenths of the Calcutta sicca rupee. The weights of the other silver coins, viz. the double, half, and quarter rupees to bear a due proportion thereto. The governor general of India in council hereby directs that all magistrates, collectors, and others, public officers, do promulgate this proclamation throughout their respective districts, and particularly to notify to all money changers, shroffs, potdars and others, the provision in the aforesaid act. XVII., 1835, against clipping, filing, punching, or otherwise defacing the new coin; as all rupees, double, half, or quarter rupees, so defaced or injured, will be receivable only as bullion; whereas by the act aforesaid, if neither cut, clipped, marked, nor otherwise wilfully impaired, they will be subject to no batta whatever, and will be receivable as a legal tender for their full value until they may, by gradual wear and circulation, have lost two per cent of their original weight.

Published by order of the Gov. Gen. of India in Council,

G. A. Bushby, Secu. to the Govt. of India.

Bengal Coins.-2 double=4 single pysa: 12 pie small=1 anna: 16 annas=1 rupee: 16 rupees=1 gold mohur. When accounts are kept in sicca rupees, they use the imaginary pie of twelve to an anna. Small shells, called cowries, are also made use of for paying coolies, &c. which are reckoned as follows, viz .:-4 cowries=1 gunda; 20 gundas=1 pun; 5 puns=1 anna. But these rates vary from time to time.

A comparative view of the relative value of the several denominations, generally used in keeping accounts.-[These statements down to p. 146, are derived from the Bombay Almanack for 1838.]

Gold and silver weights .- 4 punkhos or quarter grain=1 gram or dahn; 4 dahns=1 rutty; 6 3-8ths rutty =1 anna; 8 rutty=2 massa; 100 rutty, or 121 massa or 16 annas=1 tolla or sicca rupees; 1061 rutty, or 13, 28, 152 massa, or 17 annas=1 gold mohur. A gold mohur weighs 722 and nine tenths troy weight, containing 187, 651 fine gold and 17,051 alloy. A sicca rupee weighs 7, 11 and two thirds ditto, containing 175,928 fine silver and 15,993 allov.

Cloth measure.—3 corbe=1 angualæ: 3 angualæ=1 gheriah; 8 gherries=1 baut, or cubit, 18 inches; 2 haut=1 guz or yard.

Liquid measure.—5 sa. r. weight of liquor=1 chittack; 4 chittacks=1 pouah; 4 pouahs=1 seer; 41 seers = 1 maud; 5 seers make a pussaree, or measure; 8 pusarees or measures make 1 maund; the covid in cloth measure is 9 inches.

Land measure. - 1 biggah makes 20 cottahs; one cottah or 16 chittack, 720 square feet; eight chittack, or half a cottah, 360 ditto; 4 chittacks, or 1 pow, 180 square feet; 2 chittacks, or half a pow, 90 square feet; 1 ditto, 45 ditto; half ditto, 221 ditto; quarters ditto, 111 ditto.

Grain measure. - 5 chittacks = 1 koonkee; 4 koonkees = 1 raik; 4 raiks = 1 pally; 2 pallies = 1 soally; 16 soallies=1 khahoon, or 40 maunds.

Reckoning by the tale.-4 particulars=1 gunda; 5 gundahs, or 24 particulars=1 cooree, or corge.

MADRAS.—Accounts are kept in star pagodas, fanams and cash; and in rupees, quarters and annas. 80 cash are equal to 1 fanam; 42, 44, or 45 fanams ditto 1 star pagoda. Government, the banks, and the houses of agency used to keep their accounts at 42 fanams the star pagoda. The shops and bazars at 44 or 45. The public accounts are now kept in silver rupees, quarters and annas.

MALACCA. Table of money.—1 Japan copand, stamped=10 Dutch or Spanish dollars; 18 tangoes or skillings=1 Dutch dollar; 10 ditto=2 Spanish dollar; 4 ditto=1 stiver; 6 stivers=1 skilling; 8 skillings=1 rix-dollars; 13 ditto=1 ducatooa; 10 ditto=1 English crown; 5 ditto=1 Bombay or Surat rupee; 4 ditto=1 Madral rupee; 3 ditto=1 Arcot rupee. N.B. Accounts are kept here in rix-dollars, (an imaginary coin,) and all contracts for goods, bought or sold, are made in Dutch dollars, though rupees, skillings, double skyes, and doits are most current in the shops or bazar.

Gold and silver weights .- 17 mains = 1 buncal, or 19 10 and seven twelfths T. W.; 20 buncals = 1 catty, or 29 15 11 and eight twelfths S. W.

Great weights.-16 tales=1 catty; 100 catties=1 pecul, 135lb. av. wt.; 3 peculs=1 behar.

PRINCE OF WALES' ISLAND.—10 pice=1 copong (imaginary); 10 copongs=1 Spanish dollar. Pice should be pure tin; 15 pice are 1 catty, or 141b. English. On the exchange of dollars in the bazar, there is a loss of 2 per cent. On dollars without the King of Spain's head, there is a loss of 10 per cent., and in general 5 or 10 on all dollars defaced, Tavol and Mergui. Coins.—The tical and tin pice were the currency of Tavai and Mergui, but the former has been superseded by the rupee. The rates of rupee and pice may be expected to vary, but the following are now in use:—12 small pice=1 large one, or kabean; 40 kabean=1 Madras rupee; 44 ditto=1 sicca rupee; 88 ditto=1 Spanish dollar. These are the same that are used throughout the Burmese Empire, which are made at Ava, and distributed to the provinces. They change their shapes upon the accession of a new king. The present weights are called To alle, or lion weights, as they represent that animal according to the Berman conception of it. Those of the last reign are termed Hansa alle, being made in the shape of the Hansa, or goose. The weight of both kinds is the same. No. 1 to=20 tickels; No. 2 to=10 ditto; No. 3 to=4 ditto; No. 4 to=2 ditto; No 5 to 1½ Madras rupee 225 grains; No. 6 to=½ Madras rupee and ½ annas. The division of the tical—2 table=1 tikal; 2 tammoo=1 mat.; 4 mat.=1 tikal; 100 tikal =1 tabisa or viss; 100 tabis=1 peiya or ava pical, or 250 Penang catties.

Measures.—2 nechi teden=1 temdaum; 100 tabisa=1 teiya or coyan. The tendaum is a basket, by which alone grain is measured. It is equal to 18 viss or 40 penang catties. The measure of length is the cubit, of which there are two sorts—the tendam of about 18 inches, and the saundaum of 22. The latter is termed the King's Cubit, being used in measuring crown lands.

Weights and Meabures. From the Appendix to the Itinerary of Western India of Captain John Clunes.—Throughout India, and particularly the Deccan, a very considerable diversity prevails not merely in every district, but in every village, in measures, whether of weight, length or capacity; nor are the sub-divisions to be found in a determinate proportion of each other. To whatever this may be owing, whether to the want of a common or universal standard in former times, the decay, or abrasion of the measure and weights, the knavery of the owners of them, or to the apathy or connivance of the native district authorities, is probably immaterial, but the present ill defined system must be felt by all the class of buyers as a hardship, and they doubtless would be grateful for any beneficial amendment.

There are three kinds of weights in use in India: the first are for weighing drugs, gold, silver, &c.; the second for all bulky articles; and the third for pearls and precious stones.

Those of the first class seem to be founded on the weight of a tola throughout India, and the tola, under most governments, seems to form with the rupee, or principal current coin of accounts in towns. The weights generally are of iron or lead, sometimes in a determinate form, but oftener as a shapeless mass. In many villages, however, the shopkeepers have only basalt stones as weights, which are met with in beds of rivers. Indeed, when great weights are required, they are generally made of stones, and under any circumstance, considerable advantage would be derived by the people, were the use of stones as weights prohibited under severe enactments. The table of weights annexed will shew the great variety of the first class, and the corresponding English weights, which exist throughout Western and central India. Nor are the weights at the Presidency less multifarious than they are in the interior. In the following table of the various weights by which goods are sold in Bombay, it will strike one as a singular incongruity, that, varying as those weights do, with almost every variety of goods, and that, serving as such they must clog commerce, this system should be submitted to when the fact is known, that actually every article is weighed by one weight, viz., the English avoirdupoise, afterwards reduced by calculation into the great variety of local weights, which are merely nominal.

How much would it facilitate commercial operations, were the English weights the only ones actually in use, substituted for those local ones that exist but in a name, and what an advantage would such afford the stranger, in readily comprehending at once the value of goods, and simplifying his calculations. It is most difficult to overcome native prejudice in favour of customs they have for generations been familiar with, yet might not firmness on the part of European mercantile community in Bombay effect a change?

The small weight, commonly called goldsmith's weight, is either founded on the goonj or ruttee, or the mustard seed. The goonj or ruttee is the small red seed, whether of the white or red species, of the abrus precatorius; these seeds are very uniform in size, and the plant producing them grows wild all over India Two seeds, otherwise goonj, make one waal, a weight represented by a seed of the Cheelur. This weight is further sub-divided as follows:—two barley corns—I goonj and eight mustard seeds—one barley corn,—under different governments of India the total is composed of different proportions of the goonj, or of the mossa: The Bengal tola being of 100 goonj, or 12½ massa; the Malwa tola of 96 goonj, or 120 massa. The Bombay tola of 92 goonj, or 11½ massa. Several districts in the Southern Concon of 92 goonj, or 11½ massa; and 96 goonj, or 1 massa. The pice of Kota in Malwa is equal in weight to 80 massa, so that from these we may hope to obtain something approaching to the common weight of the massa or goonj, the fundamental measures of weight.

The weight of the Bengal massa, in troy grains, is 15,353, being 191,916 troy grains, the weight of a Calcutta sicca rupee, divided by 125, the number of massa in one tola. The weight in troy grains of the tola in Malwa is 190 grains; which being divided by 12, (the number of massa in 1 tola,) gives 15,8333 troy grains for the weight of the massa.

In ascertaining (says Major Sykes) the weight troy of a goonj with a hydrostatic balance, turning with the tenth of a grain, the result was as follows;—32 seeds or goonj, weighed 605 grains troy; 16 seeds or goonj, weighed 305 grains; 8 weighed 15.1; and 56 seeds weighed 1052 grains, which would give an average weight of 1,914 grains troy for each seed; 96 of these would make the tola equal to 183,7536 grains troy. But as the seer weight of 80 rupees, 13,800 grains troy, is to consist of 72 tolas, the tola should weigh 191,6666 grains, instead of 183,7536, affording sufficient evidence that the tola in use, like every other weight, is below the proper standard.

Measures of capacity.—Whether measures of capacity in India are derived from those of length, agreeable to the notions of many able theorists in Europe, and in which they are borne out by very ancient writings among the Hindoos, or whether they were invented originally merely to save trouble in weighing grains and liquids, is a subject of inquiry for the philosopher. I am much inclined to the latter opinion, as far as regards Western India, from observing that the same denominations refer to the measures of weight as to the measures of capacity, and so relatively, to the sub-division. In this case it seems to me highly probable that the tonka or tukka, a small silver coin, current during the period of the Mogul supremacy, and in which the revenue was collected and reckoned throughout the western provinces of their empire, and particularly in the Nizam-Shahee's territories, was the foundation of the weights at present in practice throughout the Deccan. Seventy-two of these tukkas go to the seer, which makes it nearly similar to the tola, and the now, tank or nine tanks, is still a measure for liquids in very general use. The chetak, or six tanks, is the 17th part of a seer or weight in the Deccan; but my inquiries regard the weights that are in use, and not those that have been. The most popular of the actual measures of capacity are the nuotank, the seer, the puseeree and the Adholee.

Dry measure. The adholes.—The dry measure, called adholes, of two seers, which is the largest in use in the Deccan, is in towns and large villages made of wood, turned in a lathe and lackered. It is in form nearly similar to that of an hour glass, and a  $\frac{1}{2}$  seer,  $\frac{3}{4}$  seer, and 5-8ths seer resemble it in form and lackering. In the small villages where the dealers are poorer, these measures are made from large bamboos, sawed through at the joint.

The adholee in the Northern Konkan consists of  $3\frac{1}{4}$  and 4 kutcha seers, and the number of adholees to the kakuni maund varies in different towns in the Collectorate from 17 to 24. Where the 4 seer adholee obtains there the maund contains 20 adholees; and where the adholee is  $3\frac{1}{2}$  seers, there the maund consists of 24 adholees; so that the adholee and not the maund differs; the 17 adholees measure is perhaps confined to Salsette. The Kokuni and Arabia candy are both in general use in this Collectorate; the first consists of seven maunds, the other of eight maunds. The catti, or Deccan candy, is also in use, and is used for measuring salt.

In most countries south of the Nerbudda grains are sold by measures, but in selling the flour a measured seer of grain is put into one scale, and the flour weighed against it.

In countries north of the Nerbudda there seems to be no dry measure of capacity, and every thing is therefore sold by weight. This appears also to be the case in most of that Nizam's districts adjoining those of Ahmednugger. The introduction of measures into the Deccan appears to be of a late date, but on what principle they were constructed it is difficult to conjecture. The solid contents of a seer a capacity is widely different from a seer of weight throughout the Collectorship of both Poona and Ahmednugger; the first filled with the grain bajree, varies from 108 to 120 rupees, while the other weighs about 80 rupees or 73 tola and 4 massa.

The pusseree or punj-serre.—There is a measure as well as weight termed pusseree or punj-seree, both occasionally met with in the Deccan, but the former is in general use in the Nizam's country. It ought to contain five seer as the name imports, but it varies so much, arising either from ignorance or fraud in the construction, that it occasions very general complaint.

In Guzerat the punj-seree is in fact but the representative of weight, but its cubical contents are ascertained through the medium of a variable standard, that is, one species of grain rice in the rash which is liable to fluctuation according to the varying weight of the kind of corn in different soils and seasons.

The large dry measure in Bombay for salt is the para, containing 10½ adholee, whereof 100 make an anna; one anna is equal to 2½ tons, and 1,600 para, or 16 annas, make one rash, or 40 tons. The para measure when used is struck off even with the rim by a rod made for the purpose.

The small dry measure for grain is the seer, whereof four make one puheelee; 17 puheelees a para; and 8 para a candy. Butty or rice in the husk is reckoned by moora of 25 para.

The grain Khundee in the Poonah districts consists of 20 mun, each mun 12 puheelee, but sometimes of 16 puheelee; and each puheelee of 2 adholee; each adholee of two seers. The sub-divisons of the seer are 3-8ths, 2-3rds, 1-4th. The pulla is a measure of capacity, the contents of which weigh 120 sers of 80 Ankoosey rupees the seer; or rather it is the representative of the weight called pulla. The puheelee at Bheema, Shunkurs, Neelsee, and some other places bordering the Konkon, consists of 3\frac{3}{4} seer only, instead of four. The num therefore of 12 puheelee at these places consists of 42 seer instead of 48 dry measure.

Liquid measure.—The liquid measure is used in the Deccan and Concan, by the oil tellers and spirit dealers; the measures used are of brass or iron, commonly in the form of a truncated cone. Like the other measures, the aliquot parts will be found irregular, or varying from truth. Milk in our camps, and indeed in large towns, is sold by arbitrary measures, but they should, properly, be regulated by the seer weight of 80 rupees.

Oil, milk, ghee and spirits are weighed in the Southern Konkan with a seer of 28 tolas. The vessel in which they are contained being previously weighed, and the weight thereof deducted. The liquids are also vended by weight throughout Guzerat, but the oil and spirit dealers' measures constructed on the principle of their solid contents, being equal to the weight they are intended to represent, hence measures must vary with the specific gravity of the articles.

Throughout the Northern Khonkan every talook seems to have its own oil or liquid measure; it seems, however, to have been originally framed to contain a portion of oil, which would weigh one Kutcha seer. When oil is bought for retail, 45 seers are reckoned to the maund.

The liquid seer measure used in Bombay for spirits, arrack and milk is equal in weight to 50 rupees, or 1lb. 10oz. 7dwts. 12grs. troy. The maund consists of 50 of these seers, and the seer is sub-divided into half seers, quarter seers; and the latter into two measures called nou-tanks, or nine tanks, tukka. The measure of oil corresponds with the maund of 28lb., that is the contents weigh that, and the contents of the seer consequently weigh 11. oz. dwt.

Long Measure.—The measures of length are the Khathee, the Guz, and the cubit. The first is only used as a land measure, the other two are more used by artificers, and sometimes in measuring piece goods, cloths, silk, &c., are not sold by the piece. In most of the provinces under this Presidency, the Guz is divided into 20 tussoo. In Guzerat it measures 27.5 inches, making the cubit of 14 tussoo, equal to 19.25 inches. At Bombay and in Malabar it is 28 inches, and the cubit 19.6 inches. In the Deccan, the Dooab, the Southern Konkan, and Surat, and also in Cutch, the Guz is divided into 24 tussoo, but of a greater variety of length, and the cubit into 14 tussoo. The Peishwa's Guz, which is in use in the public departments at Poonah, is 33.86 inches. At seven of the principal towns in the Dooab, the Guz varies from 31.75 inches to 34.75 inches, and broad cloth, velvet, chintz, and other articles of European manufacture are measured by it. An average accurately taken at 12 of the chief towns in the Southern Konkan, makes the Guz 33.438 inches, and the cubit 1.508 inches.

In Surat the Guz used by tailors is 27.8, and by artificers 24 inches. In Cutch the Guz is divided into 24 tussoo, and measures 26.5 inches. The length of the cubit however, almost everywhere, is usually determined by the mean length of five different men's arms measured from the elbow to the end of the middle finger: turbans, &c. are sold by this measure, but it is seldom met with out of Surat, as a measure, unless with tailors: purchasers usually by their own arm's length. The English yard is in common use at Bombay in measuring Europe manufactures, and indeed in many places in the interior.

Superficial and Solid Measures.—Superficial measures for the measurement of land. Solid measures for ascertaining the quantity of timber, and many kind of artificer's work are obtained from the same data as the measures of length.

Artificer's Work.—In superficial measurement throughout Guzerat, Deccan, Konkan, and at the Presidency, the reckoning is made by 100 in length, whether Guz or Cubit by one in breadth. This rule applies also to the manufacture of carpets, mats, &c.

Masonry is calculated by the brass, which is 25 cubits in length by one in breadth, and one in height. The cubits in use among masons in Bombay is 23 inches, (being 4 longer than the timber Guz) so that a brass of masonry contains, 115.74 cubic feet.

Timber is measured by the Guz, and the rule for determining the contents is, by the square of the quarter girt multiplied into the length. A sawyer's Guz is 32 inches in length and 9 inches in breadth; 329 by = 288 square inches, 2 square feet.

Bombay and Canara Measurement of Timber and Plank.—Timber; 20 visvassa make 1 vassa—20 vassa 1 covit or candy. Plank is measured by the guz of 28 English inches, or 24 borels. 24 borels in length, 12 borels in breadth and 1 borel in thickness, make a guz. A borel is equal to 4,666 English inches.

Malabar Measurements.—Timber is measured by the candy or covit—16 moganies make 1 borel—24 borels 1 koll; 24 kolls 1 covit or candy. Plank is measured by the guz—thus 10 moganies make 1 borel—92 borels in breadth, 24 borels in length, and 1 borel in thickness, constitute a guz.

English and Bombay Measurement in the Dock Yard.—Timber—12 cubical feet, and 1,216 inches make a covit or candy—3 covits and 18% vassa make 1 ton or 50 cubical feet. Plank—26 cubical feet, and 206 inches—make 100 guz—(the quantity in which plank is bought and sold.)

APPENDIX IV.—ASIA.

LAND MEASURE.

(Extracted from Captain Thomas Jervis's Report.)

The Land Measures are as follow:—The standard rod of five cubits length used throughout Gujerat called a guntha, also a 'bans,' sometimes a 'moula,' and sometimes a 'wussa.'

Of five and a half cubits length in the Deccan, called a cathee.

Of five cubits, and five mooshtees (or palms breadth) in Malwa, also called cathee.

Of five cubits and five mooshtees (or palms-breadth) in the Konkan, also called cathee.

The length of the several measures, obtained by Major Williams hereunder specified, led me to fix the length of the hustu, or cubit, at about 19.3 or 19.4 inches,—the districts in which the shorter measures are used being so small in comparison of the districts, in which the large measures are used.

In Goojerat the bheega, or veega it is sometimes pronounced, is equal to the square of 20 gunthas; the square of one guntha being termed a wuswassa. 22 wuswassa=1 wassa; and 20 wassa=1 bheega.

It may be observed here, that the terms wussa and wuswassa, so generally used in all measures in Goojerat, are corruptions of beeswa and beeswansa, meaning the twentieth part and twenty-twentieth.

On the western side of India the bheega is equal to the superficial contents of a square of 20 cathees; the square of one cathee is called a poluh. 20 poluh=1 pand; 20 pands=1 bheega; and 120 pands=1 chaoor.

It is customary in the Konkan to reckon 23 pand equal to one bheega, and the mhars, whose office it is to measure the land, do not lay cathee or measuring rod on the ground, but raise the one end up, and pass it quickly over to the supposed place of the other end, which gives a much less quantity than the true superficial content—this last custom is also observed in Goojerat; but in the Deccan, land is measured with a rope, which gives the true contents.

The following is by the late Byram Rowles, Esq. of the Bombay Civil Service, from whose abilities in Revenue Matters, we may infer it to be very correct.

1st.—Acbar Shah's bheega (on the authority of Mr. Colebooke) 3,025 square yards. 2d.—Sashtee or salsette bheega (on the authority of Mr. Duncan) 3,927 square yards. 3d.—The bheega of the Neriad Cusba, (by marks on the Chuklase Bhagul Dhurumsala) 2,994 square yards 4 feet. 4th.—Supposed extent of the large bheega throughout the Neriad villages, 2,500 square yards. 5th.—Small bheega of Sulamee, land positu tenures, as well as the wuseefa, and other lands, not fully assessed, 1,600 square yards. 6th.—Bheega of the western division of Gujerat, comprising grassia tenures, 1,600 square yards. 7th.—Turab of Mahomedan law, 1,600 square yards. 8th.—Kaira bheega, according to the patells rods, 3,404 square yards. 9th.—The Bengal bheega, 1,600 square yards.

There are various modes of reckoning land in the Deccan, but they are all founded on the bheega, measuring in superficial contents, 400 cathee of 5 cubits and 5 palms breadth. In the Poona districts 10 bheega =1 Rooka; 48 bheega=1 tukka: a chandy contains from 20 to 35 bheegas; and a mun or maund of land is the twentieth part of a khandy. In Khandes and in many of the Admednuggur districts, 4 bheegas=1 purtun, and 80 bheega=1 dooree. In the Dharwar Zillah, a koorge is as much land as can be sown with a drill plough in one day, consequently varying from 2 to 8 bheega.

EAST INDIA COMPANY'S CHARTER, 1833.

An Act for effecting an Arrangement with the East India Company, and for the better Government of His Majesty's Indian Territories, till the Thirtieth Day of April One thousand eight hundred and fifty-[28th August 1833.]

Whereas by an Act passed in the Fifty third Year of the Reign of His Majesty King George the Third, intituled an Act for continuing in the East India company for a further Term the Possession of the British Territories in India, together with certain exclusive Privileges; for establishing further Regulations for the Government of the said Territories, and the better Administration of Justice within the same; and for regulating the Trade to and from the places within the Limits of the said Company's Charter, the Possession and Government of the British Territories in India were continued in the United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies for a Term therein mentioned : And whereas the said company are entitled to or claim the Lordships and Islands of St Helena and Bombay under grants from the crown, and other property to a large amount in value, and also certain rights and priviledges not affected by the determination of the term granted by the said recited act: and whereas the said company have consented that all their rights and interests to or in the said territories, and all their territorial and commercial, real and personal assets and property whatsoever, shall, subject to the debts and liabilities now affecting the same, be placed at the disposal of parliament in consideration of certain provisions herein-after mentioned, and have also consented that their right to trade for their own profit in common with other His Majesty's subjects be suspended during such time as the government of the said territories shall be confided to them: and whereas it is expedient that the said territories now under the government of the said company be continued under such government, but in trust for the crown of the united kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and discharged of all claims of the said company to any profit therefrom to their own use, except the dividend herein after secured to them, and that the property of the said company be continued in their possession and at their disposal, in trust for the crown, for the service of the said government, and other purposes in this act mentioned: be it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that from and after the twenty-second day of April one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four the territorial acquisitions and revenues mentioned or referred to in the said act of the fifty-third year of his late Majesty King George the Third, together with the port and island of Bombay, and all other Territories now in the possession and under the government of the said company, except the island of St. Helena, shall remain an continue under such government until the thirtieth day of April one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four; and that all the lands and hereditaments, revenues, rents, and profits of the said company, and all the stores, merchandize, chattels, monies, debts, and real and personal estate whatsoever, except the said island of St. Helena, and the stores and property thereon herein-after mentioned, subject to the debts and liabilities now affecting the same respectively, and the benefit of all contracts, covenants, and engagements, and all rights to fines, penalties, and forfeitures, and other emoluments whatsoever, which the said company shall be seised or possessed of or entitled unto on the said twenty-second day of April one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, shall remain and be vested in, and be held, received, and exercised respectively, according to the nature and quality, estate and interest of and in the same respectively, by the said company, in trust for his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for the service of the government of India, discharged of all claims of the said company to any profit or advantage therefrom to their own use, except the dividend on their capital stock, secured to them as herein-after is mentioned, subject to such powers and authorities for the superintendence, direction, and control over the acts, operations, and concerns of the said company as have been already made or provided by any act or acts of parliament in that behalf, or are made or provided by this act.

2. And be it further enacted, that all and singular the privileges, franchises, abilities, capacities, powers, authorities, whether military or civil, rights, remedies, methods of suit, penalties, forfeitures, disabilities, provisions, matters, and things whatsoever granted to or continued in the said united company by the said act of the fifty-third year of King George the Third, for and during the term limited by the said act, and all other the enactments, provisions, matters, and things contained in the said act, or in any other act or acts, whatsoever, which are limited or may be construed to be limited to continue for and during the term granted to the said company by the said act of the fifty-third year of King George the Third, so far as the same or any of them are in force, and not repealed by or repugnant to the enactments herein-after contained, and all powers of alienation and disposition, rights, franchises, and immunities, which the said united company now have, shall continue and be in force, and may be exercised and enjoyed, as against all persons whomsoever, subject to the superintendence, direction, and control herein-before mentioned, until the thirtieth day of April one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four.

3. Provided always, and be it enacted, that from and after the said twenty-second day of April one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four the exclusive right of trading with the dominions of the Emperor of China, and of trading in tea, continued to the said company by the said act of the fifty-third year of King George the Third, shall cease.

4. And be it enacted, that the said company shall, with all convenient speed after the said twenty-second day of April one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, close their commercial business, and make sale of all their merchandize, stores, and effects at home and abroad, distinguished in their account books as commercial assets, and all their warehouses, lands, tenements, hereditaments, and property whatsoever which may not be retained for the purposes of the government of the said torritories, and get in all debts due to them on account of the commercial branch of the affairs, and reduce their commercial establishments as the same shall become unnecessary, and discontinue and abstain from all commercial business which shall not be incident to the closing of their actual concerns, and to the conversion into money of the property hereinbefore directed to be sold, or which shall not be carried on for the purposes of the said government.

5. Provided always, and be it enacted, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the said company from selling, at the sales of their own goods and merchandize by this act directed or authorized to be made, such goods and merchandize the property of other persons as they may now lawfully sell at their public sales.

6. And be it enacted, that the board of commissioners for the affairs of India shall have full power to superintend, direct, and control the sale of the said merchandize, stores, and effects, and other property hereinbefore directed to be sold, and to determine from time to time, until the said property shall be converted into money, what parts of the said commercial establishments shall be continued and reduced respectively, and to control the allowance and payment of all claims upon the said company connected with the commercial branch of their affairs, and generally to superintend and control all acts and operations whatsoever of the said company whereby the value of the property of the said company may be affected; and the said board shall and may appoint such officers as shall be necessary to attend upon the said board during the winding up of the commercial business of the said company; and that the charge of such salaries or allowances as his Majesty shall, by any warrant or warrants under his sign manual, countersigned by the chancellor of the exchequer for the time being, direct to be paid to such officers, shall be defrayed by the said company, as herein-after mentioned, in addition to the ordinary charges of the said board.

7. And be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said company to take into consideration the claims of any persons now or heretofore employed by or under the said company, or the widows and children of any such persons, whose interests may be affected by the discontinuance of the said company's trade, or who may from time to time be reduced, and, under the control of the said board, to grant such compensations, superannuations, or allowances (the charge thereof to be defrayed by the said company as hereinafter mentioned) as shall appear reasonable: provided always, that no such compensations, superannuations, or allowances shall be granted until the expiration of two calendar months after particulars of the compensation, superannuation, or allowance proposed to be so granted shall have been laid before both houses of parliament.

8. Provided always, and be it enacted, that within the first fourteen sitting days after the first meeting of parliament in every year there be laid before both houses of parliament the particulars of all compensations, superannuations, and allowances so granted, and of the salaries and allowances directed to be paid to such officers as may be appointed by the said board as aforesaid during the preceding year.

9. And be it enacted, that from and after the said twenty-second day of April one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four all the bond debt of the said company in great Britain, and all the territorial debt of the said company of India, and all other debts which shall on that day be owing by the said company, and all sums of money, cost, charges, and expenses which after the said twenty-second day of April one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four may become payable by the said company in respect or by reason of any covenants, contracts, or liabilities then existing, and all debts, expenses, and liabilities whatever which after the same day shall be lawfully contracted and incurred on account of the government of the said territories, and all payments by this act directed to be made, shall be charged and chargeable upon the revenues of the said territories; and that neither any stock or effects which the said company may hereafter have to their own use, nor the dividend by this act secured to them, nor the directors or proprietors of the said company, shall be liable to or chargeable with any of the said debts, payments, or liabilities.

10. Provided always, and be it enacted, that so long as the possession and government of the said territories shall be continued to the said company all persons and bodies politic shall and may have and take the same suits, remedies, and proceedings, legal and equitable, against the said company, in respect of such debts and liabilities as aforesaid, and the property vested in the said company in trust as aforesaid shall be subject and liable to the same judgments and executions, in the same manner and form respectively as if the said property were hereby continued to the said company to their own use.

11. And be it enacted, that out of the revenues of the said territories there shall be paid to or retained by the said company, to their own use a yearly dividend after the rate of ten pounds ten shillings per centum per annum on the present amount of their capital stock; the said dividend to be payable in Great Britain, by equal half-yearly payments, on the sixth day of January and the sixth day of July in every year: the first half-yearly payment to be made on the sixth day of July one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four.

- 12. Provided always, and be it enacted, that the said dividend shall be subject to redemption by parliament upon and at any time after the thirtieth day of April one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, on payment to the company of two hundred pounds sterling for every one hundred pounds of the said capital stock, together with a proportionate part of the same dividend, if the redemption shall take place on any other day than one of the said half-yearly days of payment: provided also, that twelve months notice in writing, signified by the speaker of the house of commons by the order of the house, shall be given to the said company of the intention of parliament to redeem the said dividend.
- 13. Provided always, and be it enacted, that if on or at any time after the said thirtieth day of April one thousand eight hundred and fifty four the said company shall, by the expiration of the term hereby granted, cease to retain, or shall by the authority of parliament be deprived of the possession and government of the said territories, it shall be lawful for the said company within one year thereafter to demand the redemption of the said dividend, and provision shall be made for redeeming the said dividend, after the rate aforesaid, within three years after such demand.
- 14. And be it enacted, that there shall be paid by the said company into the bank of England, to the account of the commissioners for the reduction of the national debt, such sums of money as shall in the whole amount to the sum of two millions sterling, with compound interest after the rate of three pounds ten shillings per centum per annum, computed half-yearly from the said twenty second day of April one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, on so much of the said sums as shall from time to time remain unpaid; and the cashiers of the said bank shall receive all such sums of money, and place the same to a separate account with the said commissioners, to be entituled "the account of the security fund of the India company;" and that as well as the monies so paid into the said bank as the dividends or interests which shall arise therefrom shall from time to time be laid out, under the direction of the said commissioners, in the purchase of capital stock in any of the redeemable public annuities transferable at the bank of England; which capital stock so purchased shall be invested in the names of the said commissioners on account of the said account, until the whole of the sums so received on such account shall have amounted to the sum of twelve millions sterling; and the said monies, stock, and dividends, or interests, shall be a security fund for better securing to the said company the redemption of their said dividend after the rate herein-before appointed for such redemption.
- 15. Provided always, and be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said commissioners for the reduction of the national debt from time to time, and they are hereby required, upon requisition made for that purpose by the court of directors of the said company, to raise and pay to the said company such sums of of money as may be necessary for the payment of the said company's dividend by reason of any failure or delay of the remittances of the proper funds for such payment; such sums of money to be raised by sale or transfer or deposit by way of mortgage of a competent part of the said security fund, according as the said directors, with the approbation of the said board, shall direct; to be repaid into the bank of England to the account of the security fund, with interest after such rate as the court of directors, with the approbation of the said court, shall fix, out of the remittances which shall be made for answering such dividend, as and when such remittances shall be received in England.
- 16. Provided always, and be it enacted, that all dividends on the capital stock forming the said security fund accruing after the monies received by the said bank to the account of such fund shall have amounted to the sum of twelve millions sterling, until the said fund shall be applied to the redemption of the said company's dividend, and also all the said security fund, or so much thereof as shall remain after the said dividend shall be wholly redeemed after the rate aforesaid, shall be applied in aid of the revenues of the said territories.
- 17. And be it enacted, that the said dividend on the company's capital stock shall be paid or retained as aforesaid out of such part of the revenues of the said territories as shall be remitted to Great Britain, in preference to all other charges payable thereout in Great Britain; and that the said sum of two millions sterling shall be paid in manner aforesaid out of any sums which shall on the said twenty-second day of April one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four be due to the said company from the public as and when the same shall be received, and out of any monies which shall arise from the sale of any government stock on that day belonging to the said company, in preference to all other payments thereout; and that, subject to such provisions for priority of charge, the revenues of the said territories, and all monies which shall belong to the said company on the said twenty-second day of April one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, and all monies which shall be thereafter received by the said company from and in respect of the property and rights vested in them in trust as aforesaid, shall be applied to the service of the government of the said territories, and in defraying all charges and payments by this act created, or confirmed and directed to be made respectively, in such order as the said court of directors, under the control of the said board, shall from time to time direct; any thing in any other act or acts contained to the contrary notwithstanding.
- 18. Provided also, and be it enacted, that nothing herein contained shall be construed or operate to the prejudice of any persons claiming or to claim under a deed of covenants dated the tenth day of July one thousand eight hundred and five, and made between the said company of the one part, and the several persons whose hands should be thereto set and affixed, and who respectively were or claimed to be creditors of his Highness the Nabob Wallah Jah, formerly Nabob of Arcot and of the Carnatic in the East Indies, and now deceased, and of his Highness the Nabob Omduh ul Omrah, late Nabob of Arcot and of the Carnatic, and now also deceased, and of his Highness the Ameer ul Omrah, of the other part.
- 19. And be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for his Majesty by any letters patent, or by any commission or commissions to be issued under the great seal of Great Britain from time to time to nominate, constitute, and appoint, during pleasure, such persons as his Majesty shall think fit to be, and who shall accordingly be and be styled, commissioners for the affairs of India; and every enactment, provision, matter, and thing relating to the commissioners for the affairs of India in any other act or acts contained, so far as the same are in force and not repealed by or repugnant to this act, shall de deemed and taken to be applicable to the commissioners to be nominated as aforesaid.

20. And be it enacted, that the lord president of the council, the lord privy seal, the first lord of the treasury, the principal secretaries of state, and the chancellor of the exchequer for the time being shall, by virtue of their respective offices, be and they are hereby declared to be commissioners for the affairs of India, in conjunction with the persons to be nominated in any such commission as aforesaid, and they shall have the same powers respectively as if they had been expressly nominated in such commission, in the order in which they are herein mentioned, next after the commissioner first named therein.

21. And be it enacted, that any two or more of the said commissioners shall and may form a board, for executing the several powers which by this act, or by any other act or acts, are or shall be given to or vested in the commissioners for the affairs of India; and that the commissioner first named in any such letters patent or commission, for the time being, shall be the president of the said board; and that when any board shall be formed in the absence of the president, the commissioner next in order of nomination in this act or in the said commission, of those who shall be present, shall for that turn preside at the said board.

22. And be it enacted, that if the commissioners present at any board shall be equally divided in opinion with respect to any matter by them discussed, then and on every such occasion the president, or in his absence the commissioner acting as such, shall have two voices or the casting vote.

23. And be it enacted, that the said board shall and may nominate and appoint two secretaries, and such other officers as shall be necessary, to attend upon the said board, who shall be subject to dismission at the pleasure of the said board; and each of the said secretaries shall have the same powers, rights, and privileges as by any act or acts now in force are vested in the chief secretary of the commissioners for the affairs of India; and that the president of the said board, but no other commissioner as such, and the said secretaries and other officers, shall be paid by the said company such fixed salaries as his Majesty shall, by any warrant or warrants under his sign manual, countersigned by the chancellor of the exchequer for the time being, direct.

24. And be it enacted, that if at any time the said board shall deem it expedient to require their secretaries and other officers of the said board, or any of them, to take an oath of secrecy, and for the execution of the duties of their respective stations, it shall be lawful for the said board to administer such oath as they shall frame for the purpose.

25. And be it enacted, that the said board shall have and be invested with full power and authority to superintend, direct, and control all acts, operations, and concerns of the said company which in anywise relate to or concern the government or revenues of the said territories, or the property hereby vested in the said company in trust as aforesaid, and all grants of salaries, gratuities, and allowances, and all other payments and charges whatever, out of or upon the said revenues and property respectively, except as herein-after is mentioned.

26. And be it enacted, that the several persons who on the twenty-second day of April one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four shall be commissioners for the affairs of India, and secretaries and officers of such board of commissioners, shall continue and be commissioners for the affairs of India, and secretaries and officers of the said board respectively, with the same powers and subject to the same restrictions as if they had been appointed by virtue of this act, until by the issuing of new patents, commissions, or otherwise, their appointments shall be respectively revoked.

27. And be it enacted, that if, upon the occasion of taking any ballot on the election of a director or directors of the said company, any proprietor, who shall be resident within the United Kingdom, shall, by reason of absence, illness, or otherwise, be desirous of voting by letter of attorney, he shall be at liberty so to do, provided that such letter of attorney shall in every case express the name or names of the candidate or candidates for whom such proprietor shall be so desirous of voting, and shall be executed within ten days next before such election; and the attorney constituted for such purpose shall in every case deliver the vote he is so directed to give openly to the person or persons who shall be authorized by the said company to receive the same; and every such vote shall be accompanied by an affidavit or affirmation to be made before a justice of the peace by the proprietor directing the same so to be given, to the same or the like effect as the oath or affirmation now taken by proprietors voting upon ballots at general courts of the said company, and in which such proprietor shall also state the day of the execution of such letter of attorney; and any person making a false oath or affirmation before a justice of peace for the purpose aforesaid shall be held to have thereby committed wilful perjury; and if any person do unlawfully or corruptly procure or suborn any other person to take the said oath or affirmation before a justice of the peace as aforesaid, whereby he or she shall commit such wilful perjury, and shall thereof be convicted, he, she, or they, for every such offence, shall incur such pains and penalties as are provided by law against subornation of perjury.

28. And be it enacted, that so much of the act of the thirteenth year of the reign of King George the Third, intituled an act for establishing certain regulations for the better management of the affairs of the East India company as well as in India as in Europe, as enacts that no person employed in any civil or military station in the East Indies, or claiming or exercising any power, authority, or jurisdiction therein, shall be capable of being appointed or chosen into the office of director until such person shall have returned to and been resident in England for the space of two years, shall be and is hereby repealed: provided, and if the said court of directors, with the consent of the said board, shall declare such person to be an accountant with the said company, and that his accounts are unsettled, or that a charge against such person is under the consideration of the said court, such person shall not be capable of being chosen into the office of director for the term of two years after his return to England, unless such accounts shall be settled, or such charge be decided on, before the expiration of the said term.

29. And be it further enacted, that the said court of directors shall from time to time deliver to the said

44. Provided always, and be it enacted, that in case the said court of directors, under such control as by this act is provided, shall signify to the said governor-general in council their disallowance of any laws or regulations by the said governor-general in council made, then and in every such case, upon receipt by the said governor-general in council of notice of such disallowance, the said governor-general in council shall forthwith repeal all laws and regulations so disallowed.

45. Provided also, and be it enacted, that all regulations made as aforesaid, so long as they shall remain unrepealed, shall be of the same force and effect within and throughout the said territories as any act of parliament would or ought to be within the same territories, and shall be taken notice of by all courts of justice whatsoever within the same territories, in the same manner as any public act of parliament would and ought to be taken notice of; and it shall not be necessary to register or publish in any court of justice any laws or regulations made by the said governor-general in council.

46. Provided also, and be it enacted, that it shall not be lawful for the said governor-general in council, without the previous sanction of the said court of directors, to make any law or regulation whereby power shall be given to any courts of justice, other than the courts of justice established by his Majesty's charters, to sentence to the punishment of death any of his Majesty's natural born subjects born in Europe, or the children of such subjects, or which shall abolish any of the courts of justice established by his Majesty's charters.

47. And be it enacted, that the said court of directors shall forthwith submit, for the approbation of the said board, such rules as they shall deem expedient for the procedure of the governor general in council in the discharge and exercise of all powers, functions, and duties imposed on or vested in him by virtue of this act, or to be imposed or vested in him by any other act or acts; which rules shall prescribe the modes of promulgation of any laws or regulations to be made by the said governor general in council, and of the authentication of all acts and proceedings whatsoever of the said governor general in council; and such rules, when approved by the said board of commissioners, shall be of the same force as if they had been inserted in this act: Provided always, that such rules shall be laid before both houses of parliament in the session next after the approval thereof.

48. Provided always, and be it enacted, that all laws and regulations shall be made at some meeting of the council at which the said governor general and at least three of the ordinary members of the council shall be assembled, and that all other functions of the said governor general in council may be exercised by the said governor general and one or more ordinary member or members of council, and that in every case of difference of opinion at meetings of the said council where there shall be an equality of voices the said governor general shall have two votes or the casting vote.

- 49. Provided always, and be it enacted, that when and so often as any measure shall be proposed before the said governor general in council whereby the safety, tranquillity or interests of the British possessions in India, or any part thereof, are or may be, in the judgment of the said governor general, essentially affected, and the said governor general shall be of opinion either that the measure so proposed ought to be adopted or carried into execution, or that the same ought to be suspended or wholly rejected, and the majority in council then present shall differ in and dissent from such opinion, the said governor general and members of council are hereby directed forthwith mutually to exchange with and communicate to each other in writing under their respective hands, to be recorded at large on their secret consultations, the grounds and reasons of their respective opinions; and if after considering the same the said governor general and the majority in council shall still differ in opinion, it shall be lawful for the said governor general, of his own authority and on his own responsibility, to suspend or reject the measure so proposed in part or in whole, or to adopt and carry the measure so proposed into execution, as the said governor general shall think fit and expedient.
- 50. And be it enacted, that the said council shall from time to time assemble at such place or places as shall be appointed by the said governor general in council within the said territories, and that as often as the said council shall assemble within any of the presidencies of Fort Saint George, Bombay, or Agra, the governor of such presidency shall act as an extraordinary member of council.
- 51. Provided always, and be it enacted, that nothing herein contained shall extend to affect in any way the right of parliament to make laws for the said territories and for all the inhabitants thereof; and it is expressly declared that a full, complete, and constantly existing right and power is intended to be reserved to parliament to control, supersede, or prevent all proceedings and acts whatsoever of the said governor general in council, and to repeal and alter at any time any law or regulation whatsoever made by the said governor general in council, and in all respects to legislate for the said territories and all the inhabitants thereof in as full and ample a manner as if this act had not been passed; and the better to enable parliament to exercise at all times such right and power, all laws and regulations made by the said governor general in council shall be transmitted to England, and laid before both houses of parliament, in the same manner as is now by law provided concerning the rules and regulations made by the several governments in India.

52. And be it enacted, that all enactments, provisions, matters, and things relating to the governor general of Fort William in Bengal in council, and the governor general of Fort William in Bengal alone, respectively, in any other act or acts contained, so far as the same are now in force, and not repealed by or repugnant to the provisions of this act, shall continue and be in force and be applicable to the governor general of India in council, and to the governor general of India alone, respectively.

53. And whereas it is expedient that, subject to such special arrangements as local circumstances may require, a general system of judicial establishments and police, to which all persons whatsoever, as well Europeans as natives, may be subject, should be established in the said territories at an early period, and that such laws as may be applicable in common to all classes of the inhabitants of the said territories, due regard being had to the rights, feelings, and peculiar usages of the people, should be enacted, and that all laws and customs having the force of law within the same territories should be ascertained and consolidated, and as occasion may require amended; be it therefore enacted, that the said governor general of India in council shall,

as soon as conveniently may be after the passing of this act, issue a commission, and from time to time commissions, to such persons as the said court of directors, with the approbation of the said board of commissioners, shall recommend for that purpose, and to such other persons, if necessary, as the said governor general in council shall think fit, all such persons, not exceeding in the whole at any one time five in number, and to be styled "the Indian Law Commissioners," with all such power as shall be necessary for the purposes here-in-after mentioned; and the said commissioners shall fully inquire into the jurisdiction, powers, and rules of the existing courts of justice and police establishments in the said territories, and all existing forms of judicial procedure, and into the nature and operation of all laws, whether civil or criminal, written or customary, prevailing and in force in any part of the said territories, and whereto any inhabitants of the said territories, whether Europeans or others, are now subject; and the said commissioners shall from time to time make reports in which they shall fully set forth the result of their said inquiries, and shall from time to time suggest such alterations as may in their opinion be beneficially made in the said courts of justice and police establishments, forms of judicial procedure and laws, due regard being had to the distinction of castes, difference of religion, and the manners and opinions prevailing among different races and in different parts of the said territories.

54. And be it enacted, that the said commissioners shall follow such instructions with regard to the researches and inquiries to be made and the places to be visited by them, and all their transactions with reference to the objects of their commission, as they shall from time to time receive from the said governor general of India in council; and they are hereby required to make to the said governor general in council such special reports upon any matters as by such instructions may from time to time be required; and the said governor general in council shall take into consideration the reports from time to time to be made by the said Indian law commissioners, and shall transmit the same, together with the opinions or resolutions of the said governor general in council thereon, to the said court of directors; and which said reports, together with the said opinions or resolutions, shall be laid before both houses of parliament in the same manner as is now by law provided concerning the rules and regulations made by the several governments in India.

55. And be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the governor general of India in council to grant salaries to the said Indian law commissioners and their necessary officers and attendants, and to defray such other expences as may be incident to the said commission, and that the salaries of the said commissioners shall be according to the highest scale of remuneration given to any of the officers or servants of the India

56. And be it enacted, that the executive government of each of the several presidencies of Fort William in Bengal, Fort Saint George, Bombay, and Agra shall be administered by a governor and three councillors, to be styled "the Governor in Council of the said presidencies of Fort William in Bengal, Fort Saint George, Bombay, and Agra, respectively;" and the said governor and councillors respectively of each such presidency shall have the same rights and voices in their assemblies, and shall observe the same order and course in their proceedings, as the governors in council of the presidencies of Fort Saint George and Bombay now have and observe, and that the governor general of India for the time being shall be governor of the presidency of Fort William in Bengal.

57. Provided always, and be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the said court of directors, under such control as is by this act provided, to revoke and suspend, so often and for such periods as the said court shall in that behalf direct, the appointment of councils in all or any of the said presidencies, or to reduce the number of councillors in all or any of the said councils, and during such time as a council shall not be appointed in any such presidency the executive government thereof shall be administered by a governor alone.

58. And be it enacted that the several persons who on the said twenty-second day of April one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, shall be governors of the respective presidencies of Fort Saint George and Bombay, shall be the first governors of the said presidencies respectively under this act; and that the office of governor of the said presidency of Agrs, and all vacancies happening in the offices of the governors of the said presidencies respectively, shall be filled up by the said court of directors, subject to the approbation of his Majesty, to be signified under his royal sign manual, countersigned by the said president of the said board of commissioners.

59. And be it enacted, that in the presidencies in which the appointment of a council shall be suspended under the provision herein-before contained, and during such time as councils shall not be appointed therein respectively, the governors appointed under this act, and in the presidencies in which councils shall from time to time be appointed the said governors in their respective councils, shall have all the rights, powers, duties, functions, and immunities whatsoever, not in anywise repugnant to this act, which the governors of Fort Saint George and Bombay in their respective councils now have within their respective presidencies; and that the governors and members of council of presidencies appointed by or under this act shall severally have all the rights, powers, and immunities respectively, not in anywise repugnant to this act, which the governors and members of council of the presidencies of Fort Saint George and Bombay respectively now have in their respective presidencies; provided that no governor or governor in council shall have the power of making or suspending any regulations or laws in any case whatever, unless in cases of urgent necessity (the burthen of the proof whereof shall be on such governor or governor in council), and then only until the decision of the governor-general of India in council shall have the power of creating any new office, or granting any salary, gratuity, or allowance, without the previous sanction of the governor-general of India in council.

60. Provided always, and be it enacted, that when and so often as the court of directors shall neglect for the space of two calendar months, to be computed from the day whereon the notification of the vacancy of any office or employment in India in the appointment of the said court shall have been received by the said court, to supply such vacancy, then and in every such case it shall be lawful for his Majesty to appoint, by writing under his sign manual, such person as his Majesty shall think proper to supply such vacancy; and that every person so appointed shall have the same powers, privileges, and authorities as if he or they had been appointed by the said court, and shall not be subject to removal or dismissal without the approbation and consent of his Majesty.

61. And be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said court of directors to appoint any person or persons provisionally to succeed to any of the offices aforesaid, for supplying any vacancy or vacancies therein, when the same shall happen by the death or resignation of the person or persons holding the same office or offices respectively, or on his or their departure from India with intent to return to Europe, or on any event or contingency expressed in any such provisional appointment or appointments to the same respectively, and such appointments again to revoke: provided that every provisional appointment to the several offices of governor-general of India, governer of a presidency, and the member of council of India, by this act directed to be appointed from amongst persons who shall not be servants of the said company, shall be subject to the approbation of his majesty, to be signified as aforesaid, but that no person so appointed to succeed provisionally to any of the said offices shall be entitled to any authority, salary, or emolument appertaining thereto until he shall be in the actual possession of such office.

62. And be it enacted, that if any vacancy shall happen in the office of governor-general of India when no provisional or other successor shall be upon the spot to supply such vacancy, then and in every such case the ordinary member of council next in rank to the said governor-general shall hold and execute the said office of governor-general of India and governor of the presidency of Fort William in Bengal until a successor shall arrive, or until some other person on the spot shall be duly appointed thereto: and that every such acting governor-general shall, during the time of his continuing to act as such, have and exercise all the rights and powers of governor-general of India, and shall be entitled to receive the emoluments and advantages appertaining to the office by him supplied, such acting governor-general foregoing his salary and allowance of a member of council for the same period.

63. And be it enacted, that if any vacancy shall happen in the office of governor of Fort Saint George, Bombay, or Agra when no provisional or other successor shall be upon the spot to supply such vacancy, then and in every such case, if there shall be a council in the presidency in which such vacancy shall happen, the member of such council, who shall be next in rank to the governor, other than commander-in-chief or government of the said presidency who shall be senior in the said office of secretary, shall hold and execute the said office of governor until a successor shall arrive, or until some other person on the spot shall be duly appointed thereto: and that every such acting governor shall, during the time of his continuing to act as such, receive and be entitled to the emoluments and advantages appertaining to the office by him supplied, such acting governor foregoing all salaries and allowances by him held and enjoyed at the time of his being called to supply such office.

64. And be it enacted, that if any vacancy shall happen in the office of an ordinary member of council of India when no person provisionally or otherwise appointed to succeed thereto shall be then present on the spot, then and on every such occasion such vacancy shall be supplied by the appointment of the governor-general in council; and if any vacancy shall happen in the office of a member of council of any presidency when no person provisionally or otherwise appointed to succeed thereto shall be then present on the spot, then and on every such occasion such vacancy shall be supplied by the appointment of the governor in council of the presidency in which such vacancy shall happen; and until a successor shall arrive the person so nominated shall execute the office by him supplied, and shall have all the powers thereof, and shall have and be entitled to the salary and other emoluments and advantages appertaining to the said office during his continuance therein, every such temporary member of council foregoing all salaries and allowances by him held and enjoyed at the time of his being appointed to such office: provided always, that no person shall be appointed a temporary member of council who might not have been appointed by the said court of directors to fill the vacancy supplied by such temporary appointment.

65. And be it further enacted, that the said governor-general in council shall have and be invested by virtue of this act with full power and authority to superintend and control the governors and governors in council of Fort William in Bengal, Fort Saint George, Bombay, and Agra, in all points relating to the civil or military administration of the said presidencies respectively, and the said governors and governors in council shall be bound to obey such orders and instructions of the said governor-general in council in all cases whatsoever.

66. And be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the governors or governors in council of Fort William in Bengal, Fort Saint George, Bombay, and Agra respectively, to propose to the said governor-general in council drafts or projects of any laws or regulations which the said governors or governors in council respectively may think expedient, together with their reasons for proposing the same; and the said governor-general in council is hereby required to take the same and such reasons into consideration, and to communicate the resolutions of the said governor-general in council thereon to the governor or governor in council by whom the same shall have been proposed.

67. And be it enacted, that when the said governor-general shall visit any of the presidencies of Fort Saint George, Bombay, or Agra, the powers of the governors of those presidencies respectively shall not by reason of such visit be suspended.

68. And be it enacted, that the said governors and governors in council of the said presidencies of Fort William in Bengal, Fort Saint George, Bombay, and Agra respectively shall and they are hereby respectively required regularly to transmit to the said governor-general in council true and exact copies of all such orders and acts of their respective governments, and also advice and intelligence of all transactions and matters which shall have come to their knowledge, and which they shall deem material to be communicated to the said governor-general in council as aforesaid, or as the said governor-general in council shall from time to time require.

69. And be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said governor-general in council, as often as the exigencies of the public service may appear to him to require, to appoint such one of the ordinary members of the said council of India as he may think fit to be deputy-governor of the said presidency of Fort William in Bengal, and such deputy-governor shall be invested with all the powers and perform all the duties of the said governor of the presidency of Fort William in Bengal, but shall receive no additional salary by reason of such appointment.

70. And be it enacted, that whenever the said governor-general in council shall declare that it is expedient that the said governor-general should visit any part of India unaccompanied by any member or members of the council of India, it shall be lawful for the said governor-general in council, previously to the departure of the said governor-general, to nominate some member of the council of India to be president of the said council, in whom, during the absence of the said governor-general from the said presidency of Fort William in Bengal, the powers of the said governor-general in assemblies of the said council shall be reposed; and it shall be lawful in every such case for the said Governor-general in council, by a law or regulation for that purpose to be made, to authorize the governor-general alone to exercise all or any of the powers which might be exercised by the said governor-general in council, except the power of making laws or regulations: provided always, that during the absence of the governor-general no law or regulation shall be made by the said president and council without the assent in writing of the said governor-general.

71. And be it enacted, that there shall not, by reason of the division of the territories now subject to the government of the presidency of Fort William in Bengal into two presidencies as aforesaid, be any separation between the establishments and forces thereof respectively, or any alteration in the course and order of promotion and succession of the company's servants in the same two presidencies respectively, but that all the servants, civil and military, of the Bengal establishments and forces, shall and may succeed and be appointed to all commands and offices within either of the said presidencies respectively as if this Act had not been passed.

- 72. And be it enacted, that for the purposes of an Act passed in the fourth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the Fourth, intituled, an Act to consolidate and amend the laws for punishing mutiny and desertion of officers and soldiers in the service of the East India Company, and to authorize soldiers and sailors in the East Indies to send and receive letters at a reduced rate of postage, and of any articles of war made or to be made under the same, the presidency of Fort William in Bengal shall be taken and deemed to comprise under and within it all the territories which by or in virtue of this Act shall be divided between the presidencies of Fort William in Bengal and Agra respectively, and shall for all the purposes aforesaid be taken to be the presidency of Fort William in Bengal in the said Act mentioned.
- 73. And be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said governor-general in council from time to time to make articles of war for the government of the native officers and soldiers in the military service of the company, and for the administration of justice by courts martial to be holden on such officers and soldiers, and such articles of war from time to time to repeal or vary and amend; and such articles of war shall be made and taken notice of in the same manner as all other the laws and regulations to be made by the said governor-general in council under this Act, and shall prevail and be in force, and shall be of exclusive authority over all the native officers and soldiers in the said military service, to whatever presidency such officers and soldiers may belong, or wheresoever they may be serving: provided nevertheless, that until such articles of war shall be made by the said governor-general in council, any articles of war for or relating to the govern-ment of the company's native forces, which at the time of this Act coming into operation shall be in force
- and use in any part or parts of the said territories, shall remain in force.

  74. And be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for his Majesty, by any writing under his sign manual, countersigned by the president of the said board of commissioners, to remove or dismiss any person holding any office, employment, or commission, civil or military, under the said company in India, and to vacate any appointment or commission of any person to any such office or employment; provided that a copy of every such writing, attested by the said president, shall within eight days after the same shall be signed by his Majesty, be transmitted or delivered to the chairman or deputy chairman of the said company.
- 75. Provided always, and be it enacted, that nothing in this Act contained shall take away the power of the said court of directors to remove or dismiss any of the officers or servants of the said company, but that the said court shall and may at all times have full liberty to remove or dismiss any such officers or servants at their will and pleasure; provided that any servant of the said company appointed by his Majesty through the default of appointment by the said court of directors shall not be dismissed or removed without his Majesty's approbation, as hereinbefore is mentioned.
- 76. And be it enacted, that there shall be paid to the several officers hereinafter named the several salaries act against the names of such officers, subject to such reduction of the said several salaries respectively as the said court of directors, with the sanction of the said board, may at any time think fit; (that is to say,)

To the governor-general of India, two hundred and forty thousand sicca rupees:

To each ordinary member of the council of India, ninety-six thousand sicca rupees:

To each governor of the presidencies of Fort Saint George, Bombay, and Agra, one hundred and twenty thousand sicca rupees:

To each member of any council to be appointed in any presidency, sixty thousand sicca rupees:

And the salaries of the said officers respectively shall commence from their respectively taking upon them the execution of their respective offices, and the said salaries shall be the whole profit or advantage which the said officers shall enjoy during their continuance in such offices respectively; and it shall be and it is hereby declared to be a misdemeanor for any such officer to accept for his own use, in the discharge of his office, any present, gift, donation, gratuity or reward, pecuniary or otherwise whatsoever, or to trade or traffic for his own benefit or for the benefit of any other person or persons whatsoever; and the said court of directors are hereby required to pay to all and singular the officers and persons hereinafter named who shall be resident in the United Kingdom at the time of their respective appointments, for the purpose of defraying the expenses of their equipment and voyage, such sums of money as are set against the names of such officers and persons respectively; (that is to say,)

To the governor-general, five thousand pounds:

To each member of the council of India, one thousand two hundred pounds:

To each governor of the presidencies of Fort Saint George, Bombay and Agra, two thousand five hundred pounds:

Provided also, that any governor-general, governor, or member of council appointed by or by virtue of this Act, who shall at the time of passing this Act hold the office of governor-general, governor, or member of council respectively, shall receive the same salary and allowances that he would have received if this Act had not been passed.

77. Provided always, and be it enacted, that if any governor-general, governor, or ordinary member of the council of India, or any member of the council of any presidency, shall hold or enjoy any pension, salary, or any place, office or emolument of profit under the crown or any public office of the said company, or any annuity payable out of the civil or military fund of the said company, the salary of his office of governor-general of India, governor or member of council, shall be reduced by the amount of the pension, salary, annuity, or profits of office so respectively held or enjoyed by him.

78. And be it enacted, that the said court of directors, with the approbation of the said board of commissioners, shall and may from time to time make regulations for the division and distribution of the patronage and power of nomination of and to the offices, commands, and employments in the said territories, and in all or any of the presidencies thereof, among the said governor-general in council, governor-general, governors in council, governors, commander-in-chief, and other commanding officers respectively appointed or to be appointed under this Act.

79. And be it enacted, that the return to Europe or the departure from India with intent to return to Europe of any governor-general of India, governor, member of council, or commander-in-chief, shall be deemed in law a resignation and avoidance of his office or employment, and that no act or declaration of any governor-general, or governor, or member of council, other than as aforesaid, excepting a declaration in writing under hand and seal, delivered to the secretary for the public department of the presidency wherein he shall be, in order to its being recorded, shall be deemed or held as a resignation or surrender of his said office; and that the salary and other allowances of any such governor-general or other officer respectively shall cease from the day of such his departure, resignation, or surrender; and that if any such governorgeneral or member of council of India shall leave the said territories, or if any governor or other officer whatever in the service of the said company shall leave the presidency to which he shall belong, other than in the known actual service of the said company, the salary and allowances appertaining to his office shall not be paid or payable during his absence to any agent or other person for his use; and in the event of his not returning, or of his coming to Europe, his salary and allowances shall be deemed to have ceased on the day of his leaving the said territories, or the presidency to which he may have belonged; provided that it shall be lawful for the said company to make such payment as is now by law permitted to be made to the representatives of their officers or servants who, having left their stations intending to return thereto, shall die during their absence.

80. And be it enacted, that every wilful disobeying, and every wilful omitting, forbearing, or neglecting to execute the orders or instructions of the said court of directors by any governor-general of India, governor, member of council, or commander in chief, or by any other of the officers or servants of the said company, unless in cases of necessity (the burthen of the proof of which necessity shall be on the person so disobeying or omitting, forbearing or neglecting, to execute such orders or instructions as aforesaid); and every wilful breach of the trust and duty of any office or employment by any such governor-general, governor, member of council, or commander-in-chief, or any of the officers or servants of the said company, shall be deemed and taken to be a misdemeanor at Law, and shall or may be proceeded against and punished as such by virtue of this Act.

- 81. And be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for any natural-born subjects of his Majesty to proceed by sea to any port or place having a custom-house establishment within the said territories, and to reside thereat, or to proceed to and reside in or pass through any part of such of the said territories as were under the government of the said company on the first day of January one thousand eight hundred, and in any part of the countries ceded by the nabob of the Carnatic, of the province of Cuttack, and of the settlements of Singapore and Malacca, without any license whatever; provided that all subjects of his Majesty not natives of the said territories shall, on their arrival in any part of the said territories from any port or place not within the said territories, make known in writing their names, places of destination, and objects of pursuit in India, to the chief officer of the customs or other officer authorized for that purpose at such port or place as aforesaid.
- 82. Provided always, and be it enacted, that it shall not be lawful for any subject of his Majesty, except the servants of the said company and others now lawfully authorized to reside in the said territories, to enter the same by land, or to proceed to or reside in any place or places in such parts of the said territories as are not hereinbefore in that behalf mentioned, without license from the said board of commissioners, or the said court of directors, or the said governor-general in council, or a governor or governor in council of any of the said presidencies for that purpose first obtained: Provided always, that no license given to any natural-born subject of his Majesty to reside in parts of the territories not open to all such subjects shall be determined or revoked unless in accordance with the terms of some express clause of revocation or determination in such license contained.
- 83. Provided always, and be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said governor-general in council, with the previous consent and approbation of the said court of directors for that purpose obtained, to declare any place or places whatever within the said territories open to all his Majesty's natural-born subjects, and it shall be thenceforth lawful for any of his Majesty's natural born subjects to proceed to, or reside in, or pass through any place or places declared open without any license whatever.

84. And be it enacted, that the said governor-general in council shall and he is hereby required, as soon as conveniently may be, to make laws or regulations providing for the prevention or punishment of the illicit entrance into or residence in the said territories of persons not authorized to enter or reside therein.

85. And whereas the removal of restrictions on the intercourse of Europeans with the said territories will render it necessary to provide against any mischiefs or dangers that may arise therefrom, be it therefore enacted, that the said governor-general in council shall and he is hereby required, by laws or regulations, to provide with all convenient speed for the protection of the natives of the said territories from insult and outrage in their persons, religions, or opinions.

86. And be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for any natural-born subject of his Majesty authorized to reside in the said territories to acquire and hold lands, or any right, interest, or profit in or out of lands, for any term of years, in such part or parts of the said territories as he shall be so authorized to reside in: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be taken to prevent the said governor-general in council from enabling, by any laws or regulations, or otherwise, any subjects of his Majesty to acquire or hold any lands, or rights, interests, or profits in or out of lands, in any part of the said territories, and for any estates or terms whatever.

87. And be it enacted, that no native of the said territories, nor any natural-born subject of his Majesty resident therein, shall, by reason only of his religion, place of birth, descent, colour, or any of them, be disabled from holding any place, office, or employment under the said company.

88. And be it further enacted, that the said governor-general in council shall and he is hereby required forthwith to take into consideration the means of mitigating the state of slavery, and of ameliorating the condition of slaves, and of extinguishing slavery throughout the said territories so soon as such extinction shall be practicable and safe, and from time to time to prepare and transmit to the said court of directors drafts of laws or regulations for the purposes aforesaid, and that in preparing such drafts due regard shall be had to the laws of marriage and the rights and authorities of fathers and heads of families, and that such drafts shall forthwith after receipt thereof be taken into consideration by the said court of directors, who shall, with all convenient speed, communicate to the said governor-general in council their instructions on the drafts of the said laws and regulations, but no such laws and regulations shall be promulgated or put in force without the previous consent of the said court; and the said court shall, within fourteen days after the first meeting of parliament in every year, lay before both houses of parliament a report of the drafts of such rules and regulations as shall have been received by them, and of their resolutions or proceedings thereon.

89. And whereas the present diocese of the bishoprick of Calcutta is of too great an extent for the incumbent thereof to perform efficiently all the duties of the office without endangering his health and life, and it is therefore expedient to diminish the labours of the bishop of the said diocese, and for that purpose to make provision for assigning new limits to the diocese of the said bishop, and for founding and constituting two separate and distinct bishopricks, but nevertheless the bishops thereof to be subordinate and subject to the bishop of Calcutta for the time being, and his successors, as their metropolitan; be it therefore enacted, that in case it shall please his Majesty to erect, found, and constitute two bishopricks, one to be styled the Bishoprick of Madras, and the other the Bishoprick of Bombay, and from time to time to nominate and appoint bishops to such bishopricks, under the style and title of bishops of Madras and Bombay respectively, there shall be paid from and out of the revenues of the said territories to such bishops respectively the sum of twenty-four thousand sicca rupees by the year.

90. And be it enacted, that the said salaries shall commence from the time at which such persons as shall be appointed to the said office of bishop shall take upon them the execution of their respective offices; and that such salaries shall be in lieu of all fees of office, perquisites, emoluments, or advantages whatsoever; and that no fees of office, perquisites, emoluments, or advantages whatsoever shall be accepted, received, or taken by such bishop or either of them, in any manner or on account or pretence whatsoever, other than the salaries aforesaid; and that such bishops respectively shall be entitled to such salaries so long as they shall respectively exercise the functions of their several offices in the British territories aforesaid.

91. And be it enacted, that the said court of directors shall and they are required to pay to the bishops so from time to time to be appointed to the said bishopricks of Madras and Bombay, in case they shall be resident in the United Kingdom at the time of their respective appointments, the sum of five hundred pounds each, for the purpose of defraying the expenses of their equipments and voyage.

92. Provided always, and be it enacted, that such bishops shall not have or use any jurisdiction, or exercise any episcopal functions whatsoever, either in the said territories or elsewhere, but only such jurisdiction and functions as shall or may from time to time be limited to them respectively by his Majesty by his royal letters patent under the great seal of the said United Kingdom.

93. And be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for his Majesty from time to time, if he shall think fit, by his royal letters patent under the great seal of the said United Kingdom, to assign limits to the diocese of the bishoprick of Calcutta and to the dioceses of the said bishopricks of Madras and Bombay respectively, and from time to time to alter and vary the same limits respectively, as to his Majesty shall seem fit, and to grant to such bishops respectively within the limits of their respective dioceses the exercise of episcopal functions, and of such ecclesiastical jurisdiction as his Majesty shall think necessary for the superintendence and good government of the ministers of the United Church of England and Ireland therein.

94. Provided always, and be it enacted, that the bishop of Calcutta for the time being shall be deemed and taken to be the metropolitan bishop in India, and as such shall have, enjoy, and exercise all such ecclesiastical jurisdiction and episcopal functions, for the purposes aforesaid, as his Majesty shall by his royal letters patent under the great seal of the said United Kingdom think necessary to direct, subject nevertheless to the general superintendence and revision of the Archbishop of Canterbury for the time being; and that the bishops of Madras and Bombay for the time being respectively shall be subject to the bishop of Calcutta for the time being as such metropolitan, and shall at the time of their respective appointments to such bishop-ricks, or at the time of their respective consecrations as bishop, take an oath of obedience to the said bishop of Calcutta in such manner as his Majesty by his said royal letters patent shall be pleased to direct.

95. And be it enacted, that when and as often as it shall please his Majesty to issue any letters patent respecting the bishoprick of Calcutta, Madras, or Bombay, or for the nomination or appointment of any person thereto respectively, the warrant for the bill in every such case shall be countersigned by the president of the board of commissioners for the affairs of India, and by no other person.

96. And be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for his Majesty, his heirs and successors, by warrant under his royal sign manual, countersigned by the chancellor of the exchequer for the time being, to grant to any such bishop of Madras or Bombay respectively who shall have exercised in the British territories aforesaid for fifteen years the office of such bishop a pension not exceeding eight hundred pounds per annum, to be paid quarterly by the said company.

97. And be it enacted, that in all cases when it shall happen the said person nominated and appointed to be bishop of either of the said bishopricks of Madras or Bombay shall depart this life within six calendar months next after the day when he shall have arrived in India for the purpose of taking upon him the office of such bishop, there shall be payable out of the territorial revenues from which the salary of such bishop so dying shall be payable, to the legal personal representatives of such bishop, such sum or sums of money as shall, together with the sum or sums paid to or drawn by such bishop in respect of his salary, make up the full amount of one year's salary; and when and so often as it shall happen that any such bishop shall depart this life while in possession of such office, and after the expiration of six calendar months from the time of his arrival in India for the purpose of taking upon him such office, then and in every such case there shall be payable, out of the territorial revenues from which the salary of the said bishop so dying shall be payable, to his legal personal representatives, over and above what may have been due to him at the time of his death, a sum equal to the full amount of the salary of such bishop for six calendar months.

98. And be it enacted, that if it shall happen that either of the bishops of Madras or Bombay shall be translated to the bishopric of Calcutta, the period of residence of such person as bishop of Madras or Bombay shall be accounted for and taken as a residence as bishop of Calcutta; and if any person now an archdeacon in the said territories shall be appointed bishop of Madras or Bombay, the period of his residence in India as such archdeacon shall for all the purposes of this act be accounted for and taken as a residence as such bishop.

99. Provided also, and be it enacted, that if any person under the degree of a bishop shall be appointed to either of the bishopricks of Calcutta, Madras, or Bombay, who at the time of such appointment shall be resident in India, then and in such case it shall and may be lawful for the Archbishop of Canterbury, when and as he shall be required so to do by his Majesty by his royal letters patent under the great seal of the said United Kingdom, to issue a commission under his hand and seal, to be directed to the two remaining bishops, authorizing and charging them to perform all such requisite ceremonies for the consecration of the person so to be appointed to the degree and office of a bishop.

100. And be it enacted, that the expences of visitations to be made from time to time by the said bishops of Madras and Bombay respectively shall be paid by the said company out of the revenues of the said territories; provided that no greater sum on account of such visitations be at any time issued than shall from time to time be defined and settled by the court of directors of the said company, with the approbation of the commissioners for the affairs of India.

101. And be it enacted, that no archdeacon hereafter to be appointed for the archdeaconry of the presidency of Fort William in Bengal, or the archdeaconry of the presidency of Fort Saint George, or the archdeaconry of the presidency and Island of Bombay, shall receive in respect of his archdeaconry any salary exceeding three thousand sicca rupees per annum: provided always, that the whole expence incurred in respect of the said bishops and archdeacons shall not exceed one hundred and twenty thousand sicca rupees per annum.

102. And be it enacted, that of the establishment of chaplains maintained by the said company at each of the presidencies of the said territories two chaplains shall always be ministers of the church of Scotland, and shall have and enjoy from the said company such salary as shall from time to time be allotted to the military chaplains at the several presidencies: provided always, that the ministers of the church of Scotland to be appointed chaplains at the said presidencies as aforesaid shall be ordained and inducted by the Presbytery of Edinburgh according to the forms and solemnities used in the church of Scotland, and shall be subject to the spiritual and ecclesiastical jurisdiction in all things of the Presbytery of Edinburgh, whose judgments shall be subject to dissent, protest, and appeal to the provincial synod of Lothian and Tweedale, and to the general assembly of the church of Scotland: provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prevent the governor general in council from granting from time to time, with the sanction of the court of directors and of the commissioners for the affairs of India, to any sect, persuasion, or community of Christians not being of the united church of England and Ireland, or of the church of Scotland, such sums of money as may be expedient for the purpose of instruction or for the maintenance of places of worship.

103. And whereas it is expedient to provide for the due qualification of persons to be employed in the civil service of the said company in the said territories, be it therefore enacted, that the said governor-general of India in council shall, as soon as may be after the first day of January in every year, make and transmit to the said court of directors a prospective estimate of the number of persons who, in the opinion of the said governor-general in council, will be necessary, in addition to those already in India or likely to return from Europe, to supply the expected vacancies in the civil establishments of the respective governments in India in such one of the subsequent years as shall be fixed in the rules and regulations herein-after mentioned; and it shall be lawful for the said board of commissioners to reduce such estimate, so that the reasons for such reduction be given to the said court of directors; and in the month of June in every year, if the said estimate shall have been then received by the said board, and if not, then within one month after such estimate shall have been received, the said board of commissioners shall certify to the said court of directors what number of persons shall be nominated as candidates for admission, and what number of students shall be admitted to the college of the said company at Haileybury in the then current year, but so that at least four such candidates, no one of whom shall be under the age of seventeen or above the age of twenty years, be nominated, and no more than one student admitted for every such expected vacancy in the said civil establishments, according to such estimate or reduced estimate as aforesaid; and it shall be lawful for the said court of directors to nominate such a number of candidates for admission to the said college as shall be mentioned in the certificate of the said board; and if the said court of directors shall not within one month after the receipt of such certificate nominate the whole number mentioned therein, it shall be lawful for the said board of commissioners to nominate so many as shall be necessary to supply the deficiency.

104. And be it enacted, that when and so often as any vacancy shall happen in the number of students in the said college by death, expulsion, or resignation it shall be lawful for the said board of commissioners to add in respect of every such vacancy one to the number of the students to be admitted and four to the number of candidates for admission to be nominated by the said court in the following year.

105. And be it enacted, that the said candidates for admission to the said college shall be subjected to an examination in such branches of knowledge and by such examiners as the said board shall direct, and shall be classed in a list to be prepared by the examiners, and the candidates whose names shall stand highest in such list shall be admitted by the said court as students in the said college until the number to be admitted for that year, according to the certificate of the said board, be supplied.

106. And be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said board of commissioners and they are hereby required, forthwith after the passing of this act, to form such rules, regulations, and provisions for the guidance of the said governor-general in council in the formation of the estimate herein-before mentioned, and for the good government of the said college, as in their judgment shall appear best adapted to secure fit candidates for admission into the same, and for the examination and qualification of such candidates, and of the students of the said college, after they shall have completed their residence there, and for the appointment and remuneration of proper examiners; and such plan, rules and regulations and provisions respectively shall be submitted to his Majesty in council for his revision and approbation; and when the same shall have been so revised and approved by his Majesty in council, the same shall not afterwards be altered or repealed, except by the said board of commissioners, with the approbation of his Majesty in council.

107. And be it enacted, that at the expiration of such time as shall be fixed by such rules, regulations, and provisions made as aforesaid, so many of the said students as shall have a certificate from the said college of good conduct during the term of their residence therein shall be subjected to an examination in the studies prosecuted in the said college, and so many of the said students as shall appear duly qualified shall be classed according to merit in a list to be prepared by the examiners, and shall be nominated to supply the vacancies in the civil establishments in India, and have seniority therein according to their priority in the said list; and if there shall be at the same time vacancies in the establishment of more than one of the said presidencies, the students on the said list shall, according to such priority, have the right of electing to which of the said establishments they will be appointed.

108. And be it enacted, that no appointment of any professor or teacher at the said college shall be valid or effectual until the same shall have been approved by the board of commissioners.

109. And be it enacted, that every power, authority, and function by this or any other act or acts given to and vested in the said court of directors shall be deemed and taken to be subject to such control of the said board of commissioners as in this act is mentioned, unless there shall be something in the enactments conferring such powers, authorities, or functions inconsistent with such construction, and except as to any patronage or right of appointing to office vested in or reserved to the said court.

110. Provided always, and be it enacted, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to enable the said board of commissioners to give or cause to be given directions ordering or authorizing the payment of any extraordinary allowance or gratuity, or the increase of any established salary, allowance, or emolument, unless in the cases and subject to the provisions in and subject to which such directions may now be given by the said board, or to increase the sum now payable by the said company on account of the said board, except only by such salaries or allowances as shall be payable to the officers to be appointed as hereinbefore is mentioned to attend upon the said board during the winding up of the commercial business of the said company.

111. And be it enacted, that whenever in this act, or in any act hereafter to be passed, the term East India Company is or shall be used, it shall be held to apply to the united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, and that the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies may, in all suits, proceedings, and transactions whatsoever after the passing of this act, be called by the name of the East India Company.

112. And be it enacted, that the Island of Saint Helena, and all forts, factories, public edifices, and hereditaments whatsoever in the said island, and all stores and property thereon fit or used for the service of the government thereof, shall be vested in his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the said island shall be governed by such orders as his Majesty in council shall from time to time issue in that behalf.

113. And be it further enacted, that every supercargo and other civil servant of the said company, now employed by the said company in the factory at Canton or in the Island of Saint Helena, shall be capable of taking and holding any office in any presidency or establishment of the said territories which he would have been capable of taking and holding if he had been a civil servant in such presidency or on such establishment during the same time as he shall have been in the service of the said company.

114. And be it enacted, that from and after the passing of this act all enactments and provisions directing the said company to provide for keeping a stock of tea shall be repealed.

115. And be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for any court of justice established by his Majesty's charters in the said territories to approve, admit, and enrol persons as barristers, advocates, and attornies in such court without any licence from the said company, any thing in any such charter contained to the contrary notwithstanding: provided always, that the being entitled to practise as an advocate in the principal courts of Scotland is and shall be deemed and taken to be a qualification for admission as an advocate in any court in India equal to that of having been called to the bar in England or Ireland.

116. And be it further enacted, that the court of directors of the said company shall, within the said fourteen days next after the first day of May in every year, lay before both houses of parliament an account, made up according to the latest advices which shall have been received, of the annual produce of the revenues of the said territories in India, distinguishing the same and the respective heads thereof at each of their several presidencies or settlements, and of all their annual receipts and disbursements at home and abroad, distinguishing the same under the respective heads thereof, together with the latest estimate of the same, and also the amount of their debts, with the rates of interest they respectively carry, and the annual amount of such interest, the state of their effects and credits at each presidency or settlement, and in England or elsewhere, according to the latest advices which shall have been received thereof, and also a list of their several establishments, and the salaries and allowances payable by the said court of directors in respect thereof; and the said court of directors, under the direction and control of the said board of commissioners, shall forthwith prepare forms of the said accounts and estimates in such manner as to exhibit a complete and accurate view of the financial affairs of the said company; and if any new or increased salaries, establishments, or pensions shall have been granted or created within any year, the particulars thereof shall be specially stated and explained at the foot of the account of the said year.

117. And be it enacted, that this act shall commence and take effect from and after the passing thereof, so far as to authorize the appointment or prospective or provisional appointment of the governor-general of India, governors, members of council, or other officers, under the provisions herein contained, and so far as herein-before in that behalf-mentioned, and to all other matters and things, from and after the twenty-second day of April next.

[The following is an abstract of the Charter granted by the Supreme Government in 1835; the sideheads alone are given.]

3 D.-CHARTER OF THE BANK OF BENGAL.

The act recites the former charters of 1823 and 1809. Provision of former charter giving to government the power of increasing the capital stock referred to. Notice issued by government under above provision referred to. Opening subscription for twenty lacks additional capital. The same duly communicated to proprietors at general meeting 6th April 1835. The said additional capital being duly subscribed on the date preceding date of the charter. And appropriate the control of the charter and the control of the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the charter and the c scribed on the date preceding date of the charter. And proprietors having determined to apply for a new charter. To be exchanged for the old as provided therein. And the governor-general in council having agreed to grant a new charter. And the old charter being surrendered. And it being determined to express the new capital in the new rupees recently issued. And 70 lacks of sa. rs. being equal to 74,66,666-10-8 of the said new rupees, which the governor-general in council agrees to make up to 75 lacks by taking 33,333-5-4 for government. And has paid up the said sum. And the 5 lacks is to be divided into 1875 shares of 4,000 company's rupees each. Of which the government takes 275. Numbered from 1 to 275, leaving 1,600 to be divided amongst proprietors as per schedule annexed. #### 3 E.—CEYLON CHARTER OF JUSTICE, 1833.

WILLIAM the Fourth, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the

William the Fourth, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith, &c. to all whom these presents shall come, greeting:

1. Whereas, his late Majesty King George the Third, by three several charters and letters-patent under the great seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing date respectively at Westminster the 18th day of April, in the year of our Lord, 1801, the sixth day of August, in the year of our Lord, 1810, and the 30th day of October, in the year of our Lord, 1811, did establish within his said late Majesty's settlement of the island of Ceylon and the territories and dependencies thereof, a certain court called the supreme court of judicature in the island of Ceylon, and a certain other court called the high court of appeal in the island of Ceylon, and did make certain other provisions for the due administration of justice in the said settlement, territories, and dependencies: And whereas since the day on which the last of the said several charters and letters-patent bears date, a certain territory in the interior of the said island of Ceylon, called the kingdom of Kandy, or the Kandyan provinces of the island of Ceylon, hath become and now is subject to his Majesty, whereby the whole island of Ceylon with its dependencies has become and now is part of his Majesty's dominions: And whereas it is provided by each and every of the said several charters and letters-patent, that nothing therein respectively contained, or any act which should be done under the authority thereof respectively, should extend or be deemed or construed to extend to prevent his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, from making such further or other provision for the administration of justice throughout the said settlements and territories in the said island of Ceylon with their dependencies, at his and their will and pleasure, and as circumstances might require, his late Majesty meaning and intending fully and absolutely, and to all intents and pur that we on full consideration of the premises, and of our certain knowledge and mere motion, have thought fit to revoke and annul, and do hereby revoke and annul each and every of the said charters and letters-patent, such revocation to take ffect at and from after the time when (as hercinafter mentioned) this our charter will come into operation in our said island.

2. And whereas in the several districts and provinces of the said island there now are several courts appointed to administer justice by the exercise of original jurisdiction to the inhabitants of the said districts and provinces, known respectively by the names and titles of the provincial courts, the courts of the sitting magistrates, the court of the judicial agent, the courts of the agents of government, the revenue ccurts, and the court of the sitting magistrate of the Mahabadde: And whereas such courts differ among themselves in respect of their constitution, of their rules of procedure, and of the kinds and degrees of jurisdiction which they exercise within the limits of their respective districts or provinces: Now know ye, that we upon full consideration of the premises have thought fit to direct, ordain and appoint, that the said provincial courts, the said courts of the sitting magistrates, the said court of the judicial commissioner, the said court of the judicial agent, the said courts of the agents of government, the said revenue courts, and the said court of the sitting magistrate of the Mahabadde, shall be and the same are hereby respectively abelished, such abolition to take effect at and from after the time when (as hereinafter mentioned) this our charter will come into operation in our said island. in our said island.

abolition to take effect at and from after the time when (as hereinafter mentioned) this our charter will come into operation in our said island.

3. And whereas the governor of our said island for the time being, and the said court of the judicial commissioner have hitherto exercised an appellate jurisdiction for the administration of justice in certain cases arising in the Kandyan provinces of our said islands. And whereas certain courts called the minor courts of appeal, and certain courts called the minor courts of appeal from revenue cases, have hitherto exercised an appellate jurisdiction for the administration of justice in certain cases arising in the maritime provinces of the said island: And whereas the existence of several in inpendent appellate judicatures in the said island tends to introduce uncertainty into the administration of justice there: Now know ye, that we upon full consideration of the provinces of the said island; and othereas the existence of several in inpendent appellate jurisdictions of the governor of the said island, and of the said court of the judicial commissioner respectively, shall be and the same are hereby respectively abolished, and that the said minor courts of appeal and the said minor courts of appeal for revenue cases, and such their appellate jurisdiction, shall be and the same are hereby abolished.

4. And to provide for the administration of justice hereafter in our said island, our will and pleasure is, and we do hereby direct, that the entire administration of justice hereafter in our said island, our will and pleasure is, and we do hereby direct, that the irrisdiction of our Lord High Admiral or the commissioners for executing his office, or under any commission issued or to be issued by our Lord High Admiral or be commissioners for executing his office, or under any commission issued or to be issued by our Lord High Admiral or by the commissioners for executing his office, or under any commission issued or to be issued by our Lord High Admiral or the commissione and before one chief justice and two puisne justices, and that the chief justice shall be called and known by the name and style of "the chief justice of the island of Ceylon;" and that the said chief justice and puisne justices shall from time to time be nominated and appointed to such their offices by letters-patent, to be issued under the public scal of the said island, in pursuance of warrants to be from time to time issued by, our heirs and successors, under our or their sign manual, and shall hold such their offices during the pleasure of us, our heirs and successors.

7. And we do further direct and appoint, that upon the death, resignation, sickness, or incapacity of the said chief justice, or any of the said pulsne justices, or in case of the absence of any of them from the said island, or in case of any such suspension from office as hereinafter mentioned, of any such chief justice or puisne justice, it shall and may be lawful to and for the given to heave the power or of our said island, for the time being.   51. And we do further appoint, declare, and direct, that the judge on any such circuit as aforesaid, holding the said criminal sessions of the said supreme court, shall and may issue his mandate under his hand, and directed to all and every the fiscals and other keepers of prisons within the limits of his circuit, to certify to the said judge the several persons then in their or any of their custody, committed for and charged with any crimes or offences whatsoever; and the said fiscals or other keepers of prisons shall and are hereby required to make, certify, and transmit due returns to such mandate, by specifying in a calendar or list, to be annexed to such mandate respectively, the time and times when all and every of the said persons so in their custody was or were committed, and by whose authority particularly, and on what charge or charges, crime or crimes respectively, in writing; and to the said list or calendar shall also be annexed such information or informations, upon oath, as may have been taken against them or any of them, and be then remaining in the hands of the said fiscals or keepers of prisons respectively; and if need be, according to the tenor and exigence of such mandate, such fiscal or keepers of prisons shall bring the said persons so in their custody, or any of them, before the said judge, wheresoever the said judge shall then be holding the criminal sessions of the said supreme court, together with such witness or witnesses whose name or names shall appear to be written or endorsed on the respective commitments, by virtue of which such prisoners or prisoner were or was delivered into their custody respectively, in order that such prisoners or prisoner were or was delivered into their
- persons in such extender or fist.

  52. And we do further direct, declare, and appoint, that any judge of the supreme court remaining at Colombo, shall within the limits of the district of Colombo exercise the same jurisdiction, and hold such and the same civil and criminal sessions, as the said judges of the supreme court are by these presents directed, appointed, and ordained to exercise and to hold on their respective circuits within the limits of their respective circuits.
- to hold on their respective circuits within the limits of their respective circuits.

  33. And we do further ordain and appoint, that whenever any question of law, pleading, evidence, or practice, shall arise for adjudication at any civil or criminal sessions of the said supreme court, at any such circuit as aforesaid, or within the said district of Colombo, which shall appear to the judge presiding at such sessions to be a question of doubt and difficulty, it shall be lawful for such judge to reserve such question of law, pleading, evidence, or practice, for the decision of the judges of the said supreme court collectively, and to report any question so reserved to the said judges at some general sessions of the said supreme court to be held for that purpose as hereinatter mentioned.

  54. And we do further direct and appoint, that the judges of the said supreme court shall from time to time, as occasion may require, collectively hold a general sessions at Colombo to hear and inquire of any question of law, pleading, evidence, or practice so reserved as aforesaid, and to decide the same according to law.

  55. And we further authorise and require the respective judges of the said supreme court on such circuits as aforesaid, and at the sessions so to be holden for the District of Colombo, to inspect and examine the records of the different district courts; and if it shall appear that contradictory or inconsistent decisions have been given by different district courts, or by the same district court upon different occasions, upon any matters of law, evidence, pleading, or practice, then and in every such case the said judges of the supreme court shall report to the judges of the supreme court at then and in every such case the said judges of the supreme court shall report to the judges of the supreme court at Colombo, at such general sessions as aforesaid, any such contradictions or inconsistencies; and the said judges of the supreme court shall, after due consideration of the matters so brought before them, prepare the draft of such a declaratory law upon any matter or law or evidence in respect of which such contradictory or inconsistent decisions shall have been given, as the occasion shall appear to them to require, and shall transmit such draft under the said fits said court to the governor for the time being of our said island, who shall thereupon lay the draft of such declaratory law before the legislative council of the said island for their consideration.

56. And we further direct and ordain, that the said judges of the supreme court shall, in pursuance of the powers hereinafter vested in them, after due consideration of any reports so to be made as afore-aid by any such judge, of any such corrections or inconsistency as afore-said, in any matter of pleading or practice, make or establish such general rules and orders of court for the removal of any doubts respecting any such matters, as the occasion shall appear to them to require.

13. And whereas we have by our said commission given and granted to you full power and authority, with the advice and consent of the said legislative council of our said island of Ceylon, to make, enact, ordain, and establish laws for the order, peace, and good government of our said island, subject nevertheless to all such rules and regulations as by our general instructions we should think fit to prescribe in that behalf: Now we do hereby declare the following to be the several rules and regulations so mentioned and referred to in your said commission.

14. It is our will and pleasure and we do hereby direct, that no law ordinance shall be made or enacted by the said legislative council, unless the same shall have been previously proposed by yourself, and that no question shall be debated at the said council, unless the same shall first have been proposed for that purpose by you.

15. Provided nevertheless, and it is our pleasure, that if any member of the said legislative council shall deem any:

law fit to be enacted by the said council, or any question proper to be there debated, and shall of such his opinion transmit a written statement to you, it shall be lawful for any such member of the said legislative council to enter upon the minutes thereof a copy of any such statement, together with the reason upon which such his opinion may be founded.

16. And we do further direct that minutes be regularly kept of the proceedings of the said legislative council by the colonial secretary or his assistant, and that the said legislative council shall not ever proceed to the despatch of business until the minutes of the last preceding meeting have first been read and confirmed or corrected as may be necessary.

17. And we do further require and enjoin you twice in each year to transmit to us through one of our principal secretaries of state, a full and exact copy of the minutes of the said legislative council for the last preceding half-year, with an index to the subjects contained therein.

18. And it is our further pleasure that you do not propose or assent to any ordinance whatever respecting the constitution, proceedings, numbers, or mode of appointing or electing any of the members of the said legislative council or otherwise, in relation to any of the matters mentioned or referred to in your said commission and in these our instructions, which shall be in anywise repugnant to or inconsistent with such commission or instructions, or repugnant to any Act of Parliament, or to any order made or to be made by us in our privy council, extending to or in force within our said island, but that any such ordinance or pretended ordinances shall be absolutely null and void to all intents and purposes.

19. And you are expressly enjoined not to propose or assent to any ordinance whatever whereby any person may be impeded or hindered from celebrating or attending the worship of Almighty God in a peaceable and orderly manner, although such worship may not be conducted according to the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England.

20. And we do further enjoin you not to propose or assent to any ordinance whatever whereby any new rate or duty may be imposed or levied, or our revenue might be lessened or impaired, or whereby our prerogative might be diminished or in any respect infringed, or whereby any increase or diminuish might be made in number, allowance, or salary of any public officers which have or shall have received our sanction, without our special leave or command therein first received.

21. And we do further direct, that you do not propose or assent to any ordinance whatever whereby bills of credit or debentures, or other negociable securities of whatever nature, may be issued in lieu of money on the credit of the said island, or whereby any government paper currency may be established therein, or whereby any such bills, or any other paper currency, or any coin, save only the legal coin of the realm, may be made or declared to be a legal tender, without special permission from us in that behalf first obtained.

without special permission from us in that behalf first obtained.

22. And we do further enjoin and command you not to propose or assent to any ordinance whatever by which persons, not being European by birth or descent, might be subjected or made liable to any disabilities or restrictions to which persons of European birth or descent would not be also subjected or made liable.

23. And it is our further pleasure that you do not propose or assent to any ordinances whatever for raising money by the institution of any public or private lotteries.

24. And it is our will and pleasure that you do not propose or assent to any ordinance whatever for the naturalization of aliens, or for the divorce of persons joined together in holy matrimony, or for establishing a title in any person to lands or other immoveable property acquired by any alien before his or her naturalization.

25. And we do further direct that you do not propose or assent to any ordinance whatever by which any tax or the mission traders, or non persons residing and carrying on business for a short time within

And we do interest that you do not propose or assent to any ornance winaver by which any tax or duty might be imposed upon transient traders, or upon persons residing and carrying on business for a short time within our said island, from which other traders or persons carrying on the like business would be exempt.

26. And we do further direct that you do not propose or assent to any ordinance whatever whereby any grant of money or other donation or gratuity may be made by the said legislative council to you, or to any member of the said

27. And we do further order and direct that you do not propose or assent to any private ordinance whatever whereby the property of any individual may be affected, in which there is not a saving of the rights of us, our heirs, and successors, and all of all bodles politic and corporate, and of all other persons, excepting those at whose instance or for whose especial benefit such ordinance may be passed, and those claiming by, from, through, and under them.

28. And it is our will and pleasure that you do not propose or assent to any ordinance whatever to which our assent has once been refused, without express leave for that purpose first obtained from us.

29. And for the sake of orderly despatch, and the prevention of all undue precipitation in the enactment of ordinances intended to affect the property of individuals by the said legislative council, we do hereby authorize and require you from time to time, as occasion may require, to frame and propose to the said council for their adoption, such standing order-rules, and forms of proceeding as may be best adapted for the purpose aforesaid, and for insuring previously to the passing of any ordinance intended to affect or benefit private persons, that due notice may be given to all parties concerned of the provisions thereof, with ample opportunity for opposing the same, and that a full and impartial examination may take place of the grounds upon which the same may be proposed or resisted; and we do authorize you from time to time, with the consent of the said council, to revoke, alter, or renew such rules, orders, and forms as there may be occasion; and we do direct that the same, when adopted by them, shall be duly observed in all their proceedings.

30. And it is our further will and pleasure, that all laws to be enacted by the said legislative council shall henceforth be styled "Ordinances enacted by the governor of Ceylon, with the advice and consent of the legislative council thereof;" and that no other style or form shall ever henceforth be observed in a only in the case of ordinances for raising the annual supplies for the service of the said island, and in any other cases in which the delay incident to a previous communication with us would be productive of serious injury or inconvenience, in which several cases we do hereby anthorize you, with the advice of the said legislative council, to determine the time at which any such ordinance shall take effect and have its operation within the said island; which proceeding, with the reasons thereof, you shall on the earliest occasion report to us through one of our principal secretaries of state. And we do hereby reserve to us, our heirs, and successors, full power and anthority to confirm and finally enact or to disallow any ordinance which may be passed by you, with the advice and consent of the said legislative council, fether in whole or in part, such confirmation or disallowance being from time to time signified to you through one of our principal secretaries of state. And we do further reserve to ourselves, our heirs, and successors, with the advice of our and their privy council, full power and authority to amend any such ordinance as aforesaid in such manner as may be necessary and expedient; and if on any occasion our pleasure should not be signified to you upon any such ordinance as aforesaid within three years next after the date thereof, then and in every such case it is our pleasure that from and after the expiration of suration term of three years, such ordinance shall be in every such case it is our pleasure that from and after the expiration of such term of three years, such ordinance shall be deemed to be disallowed, and shall thenceforth cease to have any force or effect within our said island.

32. And we do require and enjoin you to transmit to the chief judge of the supreme court of judicature of the said island, to be enrolled in the said court, a transcript, duly authenticated in the manner before-mentioned, of every ordinance to be passed by you, with the advice and consent of the said legislative council, together with a certificate under your band and passed by you, with the advice and consent of the said legislative council, together with a certificate under your hand and seal of the effect of every order which you may receive from us for confirming or disallowing in the whole or in part, or for amending the provisions of any such ordinance, which certificates shall in like manner be enrolled in the said court, and there remain on record, to the intent that the judges of the said court may, without further or other proof, take cognizance of all ordinances to be made and promulgated for the peace, good order, and government of the said island: Provided always and we do hereby declare, that the judges of the said court have not and shall not have any right or authority to prevent or delay the enrolment of any such ordinance, and that the validity thereof doth not and shall not depend upon such enrolment.

33. And we do further declare our pleasure to be, that in the month of January, or at the earliest practicable period at the commencement of each year, you do cause a complete collection to be published for general information of all ordinances enrolled during the preceding year. And we do particularly require and direct that transcripts of all minutes and proecedings of the said legislative council be regularly transmitted every six months without fall, for our information, through

34. And we do further direct, that all ordinances to be made by you, with the advice of the said legislative council, be distinguished by titles, and that the ordinances of each year be also distinguished by numerical marks, commencing on each successive year with number one, and proceeding in arithmetical progression to the number corresponding with the total number of ordinances enacted during the year; and that every such ordinance be divided into successive clauses or paragraphs, distinguished in like manner by numerical marks, and that to every such clause be annexed in the margin a short summary of its contents; and you are to observe that subjects which have no proper relation to each other, be not comprised to contents and you are to observe that subjects which have no proper relation to each other, be not comprised in one and the same ordinance; and that no enactments be introduced into any such ordinance which may be foreign to its professed scope and object; and that no perpetual clause be part of any temporary ordinance; and that no law or ordinance be sampended, altered, continued, revised, or repealed by general words, but that the title and date of every such law or ordinance be particularly mentioned and expressed in the ordinance suspending, altering, continuing, revising, or repealing the same.

35. And we do direct that no law shall by you be proposed to the said legislative council or enacted by them, unless the draft of the same shall first have been published in the Gazette of our said island, or otherwise made publicly known for at least three weeks next before the enactment thereof.

36. And whereas by our said letters patent we have, as before mentioned, signified our pleasure to be, that there should be within our said island a council, to be called the Executive Council thereof, and to be constituted in such manner as we should by these our instructions direct: Now we do direct and declare that the said executive council shall consist of the several persons following; that is to say, the senior officer in command of our land forces in the said island, and not being in the administration of the government thereof; the colonial secretary for the time being; the King's advocate for the time being; the colonial treasurer for the time being; and the government agent for the Central Province for the time being.

37. And we do hereby direct and require, that in the execution of the powers and authorities committed to you by your said commission, you do in all cases consult with the said executive council, excepting only when the matters to be decided said commission, you do in all cases consult with the said executive council, excepting only when the matters to be decided shall be too unimportant to require their advice, or too urgent to admit of such advice being given by the time within which it may be necessary for you to act in respect of any such matters; provided that in all such urgent cases you do subsequently and at the earliest practicable period communicate to the said executive council the measures which you may so have adopted with the reasons thereof.

38. And we do authorize and require the said members of the said executive council to meet in obedience to any summonses which shall by you for that purpose be addressed to them, and to consult with and advise you upon any question connected with the executive government of our said island, which may by you be proposed for their consideration: provided always that two of such members at the least be always present on any such occasion, and that distinct minutes be kept of their deliberations and proceedings, which minutes it shall be the duty of the said colonial secretary, or his assistant, to keep. And we do require you to transmit to us, twice at least in each year, through one of our principal secretaries of state, fall and exact copies of all such minutes.

39. And we do authorize you in your discretion, and if it shall in any case appear right so to do, to act in the exercise of the power committed to you by your said commission, in opposition to the advice which may in any such case be given to you by the members of your said executive council; provided nevertheless that, in any such case, you do fully report to us, by the first convenient opportunity, every such proceeding with the grounds and reasons thereof.

40. And whereas we have by our said commission given to you full power and authority in our name and in our behalf, but subject nevertheless to such provisions as are in this respect contained in your general instructions, to make and execute in our name, and under the public seal of our said island, grants of waste lands to us belonging within the same, to private persons, or for the public uses of our subjects there resident: Now we do hereby require and authorize you, from time to time as occasion may require, to cause all necessary surveys to he made of the vacant or waste lands to us belonging in our said island, and to cause the persons making such surveys to report to you what particular lands it may be proper to reserve for public reads, or other internal communications by land or water, or as the sites of towns, villages, churches, school houses, or apsronage-houses, or as places for the future extension of any existing towns or villages, or as places fit to be set apart for the recreation or amusement of the inhabitants of any town or village, or for promoting the health of such inhabitants, or as the sites of quaye or landing places or towing-paths, which it may at any future time be expedient to erect, form, or establish on the sea-coast, or in the neighbourhood of navigoble streams, or as places which it may be desirable to reserve for any other purpose of public convenience, utility, health or enjoyment; and you are specially to require persons making such surveys to specify in their reports, and to distinguish in the charts or maps to be thereunto annexed, such tracts, pieces, or parcels of land within our said island as may appear to them best adapted to answer and promote the several purpose before mentioned. And it is our will, and we do strictly enjoin and require you, that you do not on any pretence whatsoever grant, con-40. And whereas we have by our said commission given to you full power and authority in our name and in our bewithin our said island as may appear to them best adapted to answer and promote the several purposes before mentioned. And it is our will, and we do strictly enjoin and require you, that you do not on any pretence whatsoever grant, convey, or demise to any person or persons any of the lands which may be so specified as fit to be reserved as aforesaid, nor permit or suffer any such lands to be occupied by any private person for any private purpose.

41. And we do further charge and require you not to make any grant of land to or in trust for or for the use of any private person, by any one instrument, or by successive instruments, exceeding 160 acres in the whole, without our private person, by any one instrument, or by successive instruments, exceeding 100 acres in the whole, without our special permission for that purpose first obtained.

42. And whereas in and by your said commission we have granted unto you power and authority, in our name and in our behalf, to grant to any person convicted of any crime in any of the tribunals in our said island an absolute or conditional pardon: Now we do enjoin and require you, in every case where you shall be applied to for any such pardon, and in every case whatever in which sentence of death shall have been passed, to obtain from the judge who presided at the trail of any such offender, a report in writing of the proceedings upon any such trial, and of the evidence then adduced, and of the epinion of such judge whether the conviction of any such offender was obtained in due course of law, and whether any reason exists for the total or partial remission or commutation of any such sentence. And we destrictly command that you do not more any occasion permits any such kind of nunishment to be indicted as an in no do strictly command that you do not upon any occasion permit any such kind of punishment to be inflicted as can in no case be inflicted by the law of England, and that you do not remit any fine or forfeiture above the value of 50l. sterling, without previously signifying to us the nature of the offence committed and the amount of the proposed remission, and receiving our directions thereupon; but in the meanwhile it shall be lawful for you to suspend the payment of such fine or forfeiture.

43. It being our intention that all persons inhabiting our island under your government should have full liberty of conscience, and the free exercise of all such modes of religious worship as are not prohibited by law, we do hereby require you to permit all persons within our said island to have such liberty, and to exercise such modes of religious worship as are not prohibited by law, provided they be contented with a quiet and peaceable enjoyment of the same, not giving offence or scandal to the government.

44. It is our further will and pleasure that you recommend proper measures for erecting and maintaining schools in order to the training up of youth to reading, and to a necessary knowledge of the principles of religion. You are not however to propose or a-sent to any ordinance respecting religion, without a clause suspending its operation until our pleasure shall have been signified thereupon, unless a draft thereof shall have been previously transmitted by you for

45. And whereas we have by our said commission authorized you, upon sufficient cause to you appearing, to suspend from the exercise of his office within our said island, any person exercising the same under and by virtue of any commission strictly required and enjoined you, in proceeding to any such suspension, to observe the directions in that behalf given to you in and by your general instructions: Now we do charge and require you that, before proceeding to any such suspension, you do consult with the said executive council, and that you do signify, by a statement in writing to the person so to be suspended, the grounds of such your intended proceeding against him, and that you do call upon any such person to communicate to you in writing a statement of the grounds upon which and the evidence by which he may be desirous to exculpate himself, and that you transmit both of the said statements to us, through one of our principal secretaries of state, by the earliest conveyance.

46. And we do hereby direct and instruct you, that all commissions and appointments to be granted by you to any person or persons for exercising any office or employment in or concerning the said island be granted during pleasure only, and that whenever you shall appoint to any vacant office or employment any person not by us especially directed be appointed thereto, you shall at the same time expressly apprize such person that such appointment is to be considered only as temporary and provisional, until our allowance or disallowance thereof be signified.

47. And whereas great prejudice may happen to our service and to the security of the said island, by the absence of the governor, you shall not, upon any pretence whatever, quit the said island without having first obtained leave from us for so doing under our sign manual and signet, or through one of our principal secretaries of state.

3 F.—PECULIAR OFFICES AMONG THE CEYLONESE.

The Singalese have certain established national laws or old customs, according to which most things are determined, where the will of the king does not interpose to make any alteration. The children inherit the landed property, which does not descend exclusively to the cidest son; but where the right of primogeniture is allowed, the individual is obliged to support the mother and children. No man may marry a woman who has run away from her husband until the husband has married another woman. The children of a freeman by a mother who is a slave, are born slaves, but the children of a slave by a free woman are free. who cannot make a sevenfold restitution becomes a slave. Old people who run in debt barter their children for the amount, or pawn them as a security for the payment.

In a part of Valentyn's work, entitled "Extract uyt de Consideratien van de Heer van Rheede over Ceylon," dated in the year 1677, it is said that a ganima, or village, is composed of several hamlets; a pattu, or district, of several villages; a corle, or county, of several pattus; and a dessaveny, or province, of several corles.-Hist. Ceylon, 323, n.

A coraul is the overseer or president of a corle or county, who has two, three or four attacoraals under him, according to the size of the corle and the number of pattus into which it is divided. He has moreover from six to eight lascaryns, pamideas, or messengers, subject to his orders. The attacoraals are to see that these orders are punctually executed.

Cariacoranno, or the majoraals, may be denominated the bailiffs of a village. They vary from one or two to six or more, according to the size, culture and population of the village. It is their business to attend to the payment of the annual imposts, to see that the land is sowed and the harvest got in at the proper time, and to render a good account to the lord or proprietor of the soil. When the lord visits the village it is their duty to see that proper apartments are prepared for him, that they are hung with white calico, and his stool covered with the same. They are also to attend to the supply of his food during his stay.

Lianno is the same as clerk or scribe of the village, who keeps an account, which he gives to the lord, of all the products and dues thereof.

Canganeme is an officer who musters the people of the village and calls them together when any work is to be done.

Mananus is a measurer of grain; when the harvest has been got in it is his business to measure out that grain, which is a common stock, to the different proprietors. He was also particularly to measure the corn that was due as an impost to the king.

Gamhewaja a village lascaryn, who at the orders of the Kadan of the village calls the people together, and goes from house to house to announce on what day they are to meet.

Haindes execute the work that is to be done in a village, and work by turns for the king or the proprietor.

Coolies, porters of all kinds of burdens and bearers of the palanquins. These coolies are of the cast or race of the vellalas, who sprang up in the time of the Portuguese. Before their time there were no coolies among the vellalas, but only among the inferior castes.

APPENDIX V.—AUSTRAL-ASIA.*

A.—Sexual Proportion of the Free and Convict Population in New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land.—[From the Report of the House of Commons Transportation Committee in 1838,]

Since the year 1793, 74,200 convicts have been transported to New South Wales, of whom not more than 10,000 were females; from 1825 to 1836 there have been 45,029 immigrants into that colony; yet by the census of 1836 its population did not exceed 77,096, not more, probably much less, than three-fifths of the number of persons that have landed at Port Jackson during the last half-century. The number of convicts transported to Van Diemen's Land since 1817, have been 27,759, of whom 2,974 were women. The population of the colony in 1834 was 40,283, of whom 11,482 were women. The disproportion of sexes is about the same in both penal colonies; it exists chiefly amongst the convicts, and is most remarkable in the country districts.

In 1836 the free population of New South Wales amounted to 49,255, of whom about 17,000 had been convicts. In 1834 the free population of Van Diemen's Land did not exceed 23,315, of whom about 3,000 were expirees. In 1836, Sydney covered an area of about 2,000 acres, and contained about 20,000 inhabitants; of this number 3,500 were convicts, most of them in assigned service, and about 7,000 had probably been prisoners of the crown.

K .- CRIME IN NEW SOUTH WALES.

(From the H. C. Select Committee on Transportation, in 1838.)

The committee have not been able to obtain any returns of any importance with regard to summary convictions in New South Wales. In 1835, the number of convicts in that colony were about 28,000, and the summary convictions in the year were estimated to be about 22,000. In one month in 1833, as has already been stated, 247 convicts were flogged, and 9,784 lashes inflicted, which would make for the whole, 2,964 floggings, and above 108,000 lashes inflicted.

The following tables refer to the amount of grave crimes committed in the penal colonies, and which are cognizable only before the Supreme Court and Quarter Sessions. It should be remarked, that no convicts are prosecuted by the Attorney-general in Van Diemen's Land, except for crimes punishable with death; for all lesser crimes they are tried summarily before magistrates, so that generally offences committed by convicts do not appear in the returns of crime as published.

Ireland, seven years ending with 1834: persons tried 88,259; acquitted 17,578; convicted 70,681; acquittals 20 per cent; convictions 80 ditto. Scotland, year 1835: persons tried 2,076; acquitted 287; convicted 1,789; acquittals 14 per cent; convictions 86 per cent.—Total acquittals 56 per cent—convictions tions 244 per cent. Average of the three countries, acquittals 18 2 3rds; convictions 81 1-3rd. In M'Culloch's Work, the numbers for Ireland and Scotland are printed as follows:—Ireland, total tried 88,259; acquitted 17,578; convicted 73,681. Scotland, total tried 2,076; acquitted 172; convicted 1,789. But as the total acquitted and convicted varies in both cases from the total tried, the difference has been deducted from the convictions in Ireland, and added to the acquittals in Scotland.

By Tables in the Appendix to Crawford's Report on Penitentiaries (United States), printed by Order of the House of Commons, August 1834, the following proportions are shown of acquittals and convictions to the whole number of cases tried in the periods referred to.—England and Wales, seven years, from 1827 to 1833, acquittals 21 per cent; convictions 79 ditto.—Ireland, same period, acquittals 21 per cent; convictions 79 ditto.—Order 1832 acquittals 21 per cent; convictions 79 ditto.—Order 1832 acquittals 21 per cent; convictions 79 ditto.—Scotland, year 1833, acquittals 11 per cent; convictions 89 ditto.

O .- TREATMENT OF CONVICTS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.

Copy of a Despatch from Governor Sir R. Bourke, K. C. B., to Lord Glenelg, dated Government House, Sydney, 4th December, 1837. (Separate.)

My Lord,—In reply to your Lordship's despatch of the 30th April, 1837, I have the honour to transmit answers to the queries touching the treatment of convicts in New South Wales, presented by the Prison Discipline Society. In these answers I have confined myself almost entirely to statements of facts, referring occasionally to published regulations, and to those despatches addressed by this government to the Colonial Office, which have been laid before the House of Commons, and printed by its order. I have, however, in replying to the last query, alluded generally, and without giving numbers and dates, to despatches which have not been printed, which your Lordship can communicate or not as may seem proper.

(Signed.)

I have, &c. Richard Bourke.

Enclosure to Sir R. Bourke's Despatch (marked separate), 4th December, 1837, with an Appendix.

- 1. On landing in the colony, under whose care and superintendence are the convicts placed? Under that of the principal superintendent of convicts.
- 2. In what description of building are they lodged on their arrival? In Hyde Park Barracks, Sydney. The construction and arrangements of this building do not materially differ from those of a military barrack.
- 3. Do they associate by day? There is no other restriction in this respect than what arises from their several occupations. They are mostly kept to work in gangs in the streets of Sydney, from their landing until assigned. Some hours of the day during this period are, when required, allotted to their receiving religious instructions from the clergy of their several communions, who attend at Hyde Park to impart it. To give longer time for this course of instruction, Dr. Polding, the Roman-catholic bishop, shortly after his arrival in New South Wales, requested that the period between the arrival and assignment of the convict should be lengthened, which was done accordingly. He has, as regards those of his communion, attended to it with great earnestness and regularity; and there is reason to believe that the result has been beneficial to those who receive his admonitions, and to the public in general.

4. Are they separate at night? If not, in what numbers are they confined? —They sleep in hammocks in large rooms, the numbers in each varying with the size of the room.

- 5. What distinction is made in the treatment, discipline, or assignment of convicts sentenced to 7, 14, 21 years, or for life. None in their assignment. There is a distinction between convicts sentenced to different terms of transportation, in the length of probationary servitude required, before they can obtain tickets of leave. The statute 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 61, s. 2, enacts, that no convict shall obtain any remission of servitude from the governor of the colony until he shall first have completed, of a sentence of life, eight years; of a sentence for 14 years, six years; of a sentence for seven years, four years. The nature of the servitude, while it lasts, is not in any way affected by the length of time for which it is imposed. In all cases the remission is delayed by misconduct; and if this be gross, or repeated, it will preclude the convict from receiving any indulgence whilst the term of his sentence endures. (See Ticket-of-leave Regulation of 25th May 1835.)
- 6. Is regard paid in those respects to their former station in society, or good conduct on their voyage, or previous guilty habits in England? With regard to former station in society, those convicts who are well educated, or have been engaged in mercantile pursuits, or in the profession of the law, are separated from the rest, by removal from Sydney immediately on arrival, to the distant settlement of Port Macquarie, to which place they are restricted until the expiration of their sentence, or until they receive a pardon. A few convicts have likewise been for some years past sent out, with express directions from the secretary of state for the Colonies, founded upon recommendations of the judges before whom they were severally tried, either for their removal to Norfolk Island, or their employment in hard labour on the roads or public works within the colony, instead of assignment to private service. Except in the cases above enumerated, no distinction in treatment, discipline, or assignment is made on account of either station, good conduct on the voyage, or previous guilty habits; of which last, indeed, little or nothing is known here by any communication through an official channel. With respect to assignment to private service, it may be proper to observe, that it is now governed by a code of regulations calculated to ensure a due distribution of convict labour, according to the power of the colonists to employ it, and the means of supply possessed by government, with the strictest impartiality in the assignment. The exercise of a discretionary power in distributing convicts by a board, as formerly practised, was found to be extremely invidious, from its very extensive influence over private interests. The whole mechanism of assignment is now in the hands of a single ministerial officer aworn to administer the regulations without favour. (See Regulations. 9 May 1835.)

sworn to administer the regulations without favour. (See Regulations, 9 May 1835.)
7. What means are taken, and how soon after the arrival of convicts, to procure situations for those who are allowed to work as mechanics, &c., or to enter domestic service? They are assigned without delay, mechanics as well as domestic servants and labourers, pursuant to the regulation above referred to.

8. On what terms are mechanics or domestic servants usually employed; and are they allowed any proportion of their earnings. The government does not recognise the practice of paying any wages whatever to convicts, although there is little doubt that many, and especially mechanics and domestic servants, do receive wages from their masters, whose interest it is to encourage and conciliate them. Distinctions are also made by masters, from similar motives, in the articles of food and clothing. The treatment which is prescribed to the master in these respects, by the order of government, may be considered as a minimum which the servant is entitled to demand as a right. Most masters supply tea, sugar, or milk, and sometimes tobacco, in small quantities, in addition to the ration required by regulation.

9. Do employers enter into any security to the government for the proper maintenance and treatment of the convicts?—The power of the government to remove, not only the aervant improperly dealt with, but all the other convict servants of the offending master, is the only security; but this is as ample as any other supposed security could be.

10. Has the government any continued surveillance over convicts who are assigned to settlers, either as field-labourers or as domestic servants?—The surveillance over convicts, exercised as through the summary jurisdiction of magistrates, may be understood by perusal of the Act of Council, 3 Will. 4, No 3. Any complaint of the convict himself may be heard before the same tribunal; and if the magistrates represent misconduct on the part of the master, the governor exercises the power of removal referred to in the answer to query 9.

11. Is a settler required to make a report to the Governor from time to time relative to the conduct and treatment of a convict in his service? if so, what is the nature of such report?—When the time required by law to render the convict eligible for indulgence has expired, the form of his application for a ticket of leave contains a certificate to be signed by his master. If the master decline signing it, the regulations acquaint him that the servant will be considered blameless. The master may also be called on by the magistrates to give his reasons for omitting to insert the servant's character. (See Ticket of Leave Regulations before referred to.) This is the only report required from the master of the nature alluded to. If the servant behave ill, and the master desires to punish him, he applies to the magistrates. Reports of the hearing of such complaints are transmitted monthly to the Government by the magistrates.

12. Are any and what precautions taken to prevent convicts from absconding from their employers?—No coercion is used for this purpose by the government, the servant being placed in the custody of the master, who is at liberty to watch him as he thinks fit, or lock him up at night in his room, hut or barrack. The means adopted for the apprehension of runaways, and the punishment which on conviction they incur, as stated in the next reply, may however be considered as the precautions referred to in the query.

13. In the case of absconding, what measures are adopted for the recapture of prisoners? If taken, what punishments are usually inflicted; and what is the greatest punishment to which they are liable?—1. A corps of mounted police and a numerous constabulary are kept up, whose attention is directed to the apprehension of runaway convicts, and their exertions stimulated by rewards for all such captures to a greater or less amount, according to circumstances. 2. The apprehension of these delinquents is much facilitated by an Act of Council, (last renewed and amended in the session of 1834), which gives a power of apprehension on bare suspicion. Nothing but the peculiar case of the colony could render such a law tolerable to Englishmen. 3. The punishment for absconding is 50 lashes, or 14 days' solitary confinement with bread and water, or one month's treadmill for the first offence. If the convict is found illegally at large with fire-arms, he is liable on this alone, without any proof of having actually committed an outrage, to be convicted of felony (3 Gul. 4, No. 3, s. 12); and a second absconding is of itself punishable with a year's labour in irons, (Id. s. 12). 4. A penalty of not less than 51., or more than 101., is imposed on any free person harbouring a runaway convict (3 Gul. 4, No. 3, sec. 25), recoverable in a summary way before any two justices. This is in a case where the runaway has committed no other offence. If he be a robber or housebreaker, the harbourer, knowing him to be such, is liable to capital punishment as an accessory, (Id. sec. 13). If the harbourer be a convict, he is liable, in the first case, to whipping or one year to an ironed gang, (Id. sec. 25); and in the latter to the same punishment as a free person.

14. Are any particular description of convicts distinguished by a dress, mark, or badge?—The convicts in ironed gangs, and those employed on public works, by order of the Secretary of State, as before referred to, are distinguished by particoloured winter and branded summer clothing.

- 15. What is the daily ration of food per head for convicts in the service of the Government?—See annual contracts for 1837, and contracts for the colonial service for 1838.
- 16. Are spirituous liquors allowed, and in what quantities?—None are ever issued to convicts in the service of Government. In private service masters sometimes allow spirits to their convict servants when washing sheep, but wine or beer are now given by many instead of rum. The Licensing Act imposes severe penalities on publicans supplying convicts with any quantity without consent of the master. Drunkenness is punishable in the convict by whipping or solitary confinement. If the master occasion or permit the offence, he is liable to lose his servant.
- 17. What number of hours per day are such prisoners employed, and at what decription of labour?—Ten bours of labour per day is the maximum. The principal work of government gangs is on the streets, roads, and in the quarries. A gang is employed in the botanical gardens at Sydney, and others with the royal engineer, commissariat, and other public departments. Mechanics in those gangs are employed in their several trades. Many convicts, not brought up to any trade, have become good stone-cutters and setters during their employment by Government.
- 18. What punishments are usually inflicted for refractory conduct or negligence of work?—See 3 Gul. 4, No. 3.
- 19. Is corporal punishment inflicted, and to what extent, and by whose directions, and under whose superintendence?—Corporal punishment is inflicted under the provisions of the Colonial Act referred to in the preceding number. The punishments within their respective charges are superintended by the police magistrates, assistant engineers, and superintendent of Hyde Park Barracks. In the necessary absence of the police magistrates, a chief constable superintends. For further information on this head, see Reports of Police Magistrates, printed for the House of Commons, in Appendix to Sir Richard Bourke's Despatch to Mr. Secretary Stanley, of January 1834.
- 20. Is solitary confinement adopted as a punishment? for what offences, and to what extent?—The magistrates have by law, in nearly every case, a discretionary power of substituting solitary confinement for corporal punishment. But in practice this discretion is materially restricted by the want of a sufficient number of solitary cells. The slow progress of the required gaols and other public buildings, (the cause of which has been frequently reported to Her Majesty's Government), has contributed to this deficiency. When the buildings now commenced or contemplated, are completed, it will be in the power of the magistrates to apply solitary confinement as a punishment much more frequently. But in such a country as New South Wales any (even the most extravagant) expenditure could not secure the means of such punishment in the remoter districts; and the difficulty, expense, and other mischiefs arising out of escorts, if the offender be ordered to a distant place of confinement, will always lead to the alternative of corporal punishment in many cases where solitary confinement would have been preferred if the necessary buildings were at hand.
- 21. What is the usual daily rations for convicts assigned to settlers?—See Scale of Rations as prescribed by Government Order before referred to.
- 22. Where do such convicts take their meals, and reside when not at work?—There is no positive regulation on this head; and where regulation is silent, the treatment of the convict, as of a free servant, depends on the master by whom, and the occupation in which, he is employed. The mass of convict servants are however, agricultural or pastoral, and are lodged in rough huts on the farm or stock station, being provided with bedding, and some few articles of furniture. In those huts they cook their rations, and take their meals.
  - 23. Are they allowed spirituous liquors? and in what quantities?—See reply to No. 16.
- 24. What number of hours per day are they employed, and at what kinds of labour?—The occupations and circumstances of master and servant have been found too varied to allow of any positive regulation in this respect. Complaints against the servant for neglect of work, or against the master for excessive imposition of labour, are respectively cognizable by the magistrates of each district.
- 25. What punishments are usually inflicted for refractory conduct or neglect of work?—See Act of Council before referred to, and reply to No. 20.
- 26. What checks exist against excessive punishment?—The limitations prescribed by the colonial law before referred to.
- 27. How is the Sunday usually spent among convicts?—The only imperative rule which the Government has found it possible to apply is that which secures to the convict freedom from all compulsory labour on the Sunday. Some masters read prayers to such of their servants as are willing to join in the form of worship used. Places of public worship are open to convicts; in some seats are especially appropriated for them; but the variety of creeds and degrees of education, as well in masters as servants, and the remote habitations of the majority of settlers, render it absolutely impossible, though otherwise desirable, to introduce any more specific regulation on this subject than the establishment of the right of the convict to rest from his labours, with the privilege of attending Divine worship if easily accessible in his neighbourhood. The provisions for rendering it thus accessible belong to the general subject of the colonial ecclesiastical affairs, as to which see the papers on this subject lately printed for the House of Commons.
- 28. Are any means generally employed for moral and religious improvement of such convict?—See preceding reply; to which it may be added, that some masters supply their assigned servants with the Holy Scriptures, books of prayer, and religious and moral works.
  - 29. Is each convict furnished with a Bible ?- See foregoing reply.
- 30. What description of convicts are employed in the road-gangs and quarries?—See replies to Nos. 3, 6, and 17.
  - 31. By whom are they appropriated, and on what principle are they selected?
  - 32. Are any desription of convicts ironed during the hours of labour, or at any other time?
  - 33. In what numbers do they work?
  - 34. In what manner do they associate at their meals, and are they confined at night?

- 35. Are any armed guards placed as superintendents over this class of convicts?
- 36. How is the Sunday spent by this description of convicts?
- 37. What means are provided for their moral and religious improvement?

See regulations for ironed-gangs, road and bridge parties.

- 38. What parts of the colony are assigned as penal settlements?—Norfolk Island and Moreton Bay.
  39. What class of convicts are sent there?—Those who, having arrived in this colony under sentence of transportation, are again sentenced to transportation by the colonial courts for subsequent offences: and a few sent there on their first coming out by order of the Secretary of State.
- 40. At what kind of labour are they employed, and for what number of hours daily?—At field labour in the quarries, or in any way that is required, for 10 hours daily.
- 41. In what does the distinction consist between the treatment of ordinary convicts in the colony, and those assigned to penal settlements?—There are no settlers allowed either at Norfolk Island or Moreton Bay. No convicts are therefore assigned to private service. A very few of the best conducted are permitted to serve the Government officers at those places. The rest are worked in gangs in field labour, in the quarries, or roads, or other public works, as required; locked up in barracks at night, and liable to be punished corporally at the discretion of the commandant, not exceeding 300 lashes. They are in other respects subject to the provisions of the Colonial Act, 3 W. 4, No. 3, before referred to.
  - 42. How is the Sunday spent by convicts in penal settlements?
  - 43. What means are provided for their moral and religious improvement?

Sunday, as in the colony, is at the penal settlements a day of rest from labour; and the service of the church of England, and of the Roman-catholick church, is performed by members of each to the congrega-tions of their respective communions. There is at present a chaplain of the church of England at Norfolk island, on account of his health, who does duty there A protestant chaplain was specially appointed for the island in 1836, who after a short service resigned. A Roman catholic priest is expected out immediately. It has been found extremely difficult to procure clergymen for this station, repeated applications from the colony having been made without effect. Cathechists have been employed by direction of the local government or commandant, and the religious services of Sunday have been thus provided for, and moral and religious instruction communicated by lectures and books. Chaplains have not been provided for Moreton Bay, where the number of convicts is small, and it is proposed to withdraw them from the station; but there is now a Protestant missionary there who performs divine service, lectures, and attends to the schools, and Sunday service has always been provided for by the commandant.

- 44. What is the number of the free population, and of convicts, in the principal towns of New South Wales?
- 45. What is the number of the free population, and of convicts, in the rural districts?—A copy of the last census is annexed.
- 46. On the expiration of their sentences, what course is usually adopted by the convicts to obtain a livelihood?—This question does not admit of a general answer. The modes in which convicts whose sentences have expired obtain a livelihood, are as various as those of an equal number of other persons of different qualifications and pursuits.
- 47. Are liberated convicts registered, or is there any kind of inspection over them on the part of the government?-They hold certificates of freedom, to protect them from being dealt with as convicts under servitude. They are not liable to any particular inspection on account of their having been previously under servitude, unless they have suffered a colonial sentence of transportation to a penal settlement. Such persons on becoming free are placed under the special surveillance of the police.
- 48. What proportion are considered to return to England !- It is not possible to state the proportion . but it is considered too insignificant to be of any importance.
- 49. What number of convicts have been transported a second time during each of the last 10 years?-This information can be more accurately obtained at the office of the secretary of state for the home department.
- 50. What has been the number of executions in the colonies in each of the last five years ?—See return.
- 51. What descriptions of crime are most prevalent in the colony?—Drunkenness and petty thefts constitute a large proportion of the offences brought before the police and inferior courts; and cattle stealing has been for the last three or four years a very frequent subject of investigation before the superior tribunals. The scattered locations and pastoral pursuits of the settlers have facilitated the commission of this crime, but it has been lately much checked by the vigorous administration of the law.
- 52. What effect have letters from influential persons in England in producing mitigation of a prisoner's sentence? Since the passing of the Act 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 62, which prescribes given periods of probationary servitude, letters from influential persons in England has been nearly, if not wholly, without effect; good conduct for the prescribed periods leading to indulgence at their expiration as a matter of course, upon bare application properly authenticated under the ticket of leave regulations before referred to; to which it may be added, that applications for pardon from convicts who have held a ticket-of-leave for six years, without interruption, who have few or no colonial offences recorded against them, and are well recommended by respectable people in the colony, are usually transmitted for the gracious allowance of the crown. This government cannot do more than law and regulation authorize in deference to any recommendation whatever; and no influence is necessary to obtain for the well conducted convict what these permit.
  - 53. Are settlers permitted to lend convicts to each other?
- 54. Are convicts allowed to quit for a time the settler with whom they have been located, to visit another settler? Not unless in particular cases, for which see Assignment Regulations, before referred to.
- 55. The wives of convicts, who go out to their husbands at the government expense, by whom are they received immediately on their arrival? According to the policy of the regulation now in force, the wife is not officially applied for, until her husband has a prospect of obtaining a ticket-of-leave before her arrival.

Being qualified by this indulgence to labour for his living and that of his family, she joins him on her arrival, and no other interference of the Government is necessary than to inform her where her husband resides, which is done by the principal superintendent of convicts.

- 56. What period usually elapses on their arrival before they join their husbands? See foregoing reply.
- 57. When they join their husbands, in what manner are they domiciliated? According to the condition and occupation of the husband. The Government does not interfere with their domestic arrangements.
- 58. What proportion of convicts exported during the last ten years have become signally respectable, or signally troublesome, or remained between the two extremes? Answer, if possible, year by year; should any remarkable variance, in the above proportion, year by year, occur, suggest if any general cause can be assigned for it? The convicts in New South Wales are by far too numerous, and the true conduct of those in private service is necessarily too little known to the officers of Government, to admit of an answer upon which any just reliance could be placed. An estimate from the police history of every convict, as recorded in the office of the principal superintendent of convicts, would not furnish a satisfactory reply.
- 59. Are instances frequent, or very rare, of convicts reforming after being sent to a penal settlement? It is the opinion of clergymen, Protestant and Catholic, who have visited Norfolk Island on duty, that the system pursued there is not such as to effect a change of heart and disposition in the criminals who are subjected to it. On the other hand, it is found that instances of a second transportation to a penal station are very rare indeed, and that the convicts returned from thence conduct themselves regularly; many who have been at penal settlements obtained tickets of-leave after undergoing the full period of servitude reckoned from their return, in conformity to the regulations before referred to.
- 60. What has been the conduct, in such instances as can be obtained, of convicts whose wives have been allowed to join them from England, or who have been allowed to marry in the colony? There can be no doubt of the beneficial effect on the character of the convict, produced by sending to him his wife and family, provided he be qualified, by holding indulgence, to live with and maintain them. When by any means they arrive before this degree of liberty is obtained, or that the husband lose it afterwards by misconduct, the result is frequently deplorable, as the wife and children are not always able to maintain themselves. In some instances, the master to whom the husband is assigned may consent to receive and maintain the family, but Government does not require such a condition. In general, it is observed, that convicts with wives, whether brought from home or wedded in the colony, conduct themselves in an orderly manner.
- 61. Can any difference be traced between the conduct of convicts who have relations in the colony (convicts or others), and that of such as have none? None, it is believed.
- 62. Could detailed statements be obtained of the career of any considerable number of such convicts as have reformed; if so, procure them? It would be difficult to procure any upon the correctness of which reliance could be placed; nor is it quite clear what is intended in this question, or in 59, by the word reformed. Real reformation of heart and disposition can be known to Him only who is the Searcher of Hearts. It may be stated, however, of the convicts in general, that a large proportion of those who have served their sentences, or obtained pardons, or tickets of leave, scattered over all parts of this immense colony, conduct themselves in such a manner as to keep out of the hands of the police and the clutches of the law. In their homes and families they will not be found, in the same proportion, free from the grosser vices and immoralities to which the lower class of the people are subject. Nevertheless, there are very many of admitted probity and industry, and many who bring up their children virtuously and decently; and, judging from the conduct and appearance of such families, they might be considered as not below the ordinary standard of the peasantry of England. Of the convicts in servitude a large proportion are found, upon application for their tickets-of-leave, to have no offence, or very trivial offences, recorded against them; and many obtain good characters from their masters and the magistrates. There are also many emancipists in trade, many shopkeepers, and others, large proprietors of land and houses, become wealthy by a course of industry and frugality, pursued steadily for many years.
- 63. Have any temperance societies been established in the colony; if so, have any convicts joined them, and with what effect?—Many, with very useful effect, considering the strength of the temptations they have to encounter.
- 64. Is the distinction very marked in the colony between emancipated convicts and free settlers; and, if so, is it readily acquiesced in or complained of?—See reply to No. 67.
- 65. Are any collection of books within the colony in the reach of the convicts; if so, transmit catalogues of them?—As to convicts in government employ, see regulations for ironed gangs, before referred to. As to those dispersed in the service of the colonists, see replies to Nos. 27 and 28. With regard to convict boys under 16 years of age, whose sentence seldom exceeds seven years; these are not assigned to a settler without an engagement on his part, that the boy shall receive elementary, religious, and moral instruction, and shall be taught to read and write. Under this engagement the boy is permanently assigned for what remains of his sentence of seven years.
- 66. Are any attempts made to establish schools for the convict's benefit; or is any other machinery, purely moral, brought to bear upon them?—See replies to Nos. 3, 27, 28, and 65, and regulations for ironed gangs, before referred to.
- 67. Make such general remarks as occur on the whole convict system of the colony, and on its effect on the moral and social state of the community; also remark on the effect of the latter on it. Enter on the subject largely, making any observations and suggestions which may be instructive or useful in regard thereto?—In the correspondence of this government with the colonial office, the convict system of New South Wales has been largely discussed; and some of the most important of those papers have been laid before the House of Commons, and printed by its order. It appears, therefore, hardly necessary to renew the topic here, at the length which the query seems to contemplate; whilst a few unconnected and general observations would not add any value to the foregoing statements of facts.

Enclosure to Sir Richard Bourke's Despatch, 4th December 1837. (Separate.) Colonial Secretary's office, Sydney, 25th May, 1835.

Tickets of Leave.—The ticket-of-leave regulations published in the summary dated 1st October 1830, having been partly superseded by act of parliament, and requiring revision in other respects, his excellency the governor has been pleased to direct, that the following be observed, with reference to that indulgence, from and after the 30th day of June next.

I. Qualification.—1. The first and indispensable qualification, is the completion of the probationary servitude required by the act of the Imperial parliament, 2 and 3 Will. 4, c. 62, s. 2, viz -Four years of a sentence for 7 years, six years of a sentence for 14 years, eight years of a sentence for life, to be reckoned from the date of employment by the government, or of assignment to private service in the colony.

II. Additional probation on account of changes of service.-In addition to the probation required by law, one year is added for every change of service of any male convict appearing to have been occasioned by his

III. Additional Probation on account of punishment.-1. One year is added for every punishment inflicted on a male convict by colonial sentence, except that to an ironed-gang, or penal settlement, in which cases the probation recommences from the expiration of the sentence.

2. As it has sometimes happened that a convict has behaved so ill as to be punished between the period of application for a ticket of-leave and the decision thereon, magistrates by whom such punishments are ordered, and masters by whom the complaints are made are to give immediate and special notice, by letter to the principal superintendent of convicts, of all such cases, in order that the required additional probation may be enforced.

IV. Discretion of the Magistrates.—Notwitstanding the foregoing rules, magistrates entertaining an application for a ticket-of-leave, are not precluded from recommending, at the instance of the master, a remission of the additional probation required, either for change of service or punishment, if they shall be of opinion that the subsequent good conduct of the applicant has merited the remission. This observation will equally apply to an application made for the first time, and to that authorized by (VI. 6) of these rules.

V. Probation of Female Convicts.—As the propriety of granting tickets-of-leave to female convicts materially depends upon the connexions which it may enable them to form or maintain, it is not intended to lay down any strict rules with regard to them, in addition to those imposed by the statute referred to in paragraph 1. When the probation thereby required has been completed, the giving or withholding of a ticketof-leave will depend on the particular circumstances of each case. Magistrates will, however, continue to receive and forward the applications of females as is now practised, being careful in addition to inquire and represent, not only their eligibility from term of service and good conduct, but also the manner in which they propose to maintain themselves while holding the desired indulgence.

VI. Mode of Application, and of Inquiry and decision thereon.—1. Applications for tickets of leave are to be presented personally by the applicant (in a form to be supplied for that purpose) to the petty sessions of the district in which he is employed, on such day or days in every month as the justices shall appoint and make known in their respective districts. If but one justice should be present, such justice may receive and deal with the application in conformity to these regulations. If the applicant's place of employment be not within any authorised district, he shall apply to the nearest court of petty sessions. No application is to be received by the sessions which is not in the prescribed form, and signed by the master or overseer.

2. Blank forms of applications for tickets of leave will be delivered to masters, gratis, by the clerks of the several benches, upon demand, and masters are required to be constantly provided with them for the use of the convicts in their service who have applications to make.

3. Should the master of any servant applying for a ticket, consider the applicant undeserving the indulgence, he is required to state his opinion in writing to the bench, with the grounds of it. In case he decline giving such written statement, the magistrates are bound to consider the applicant as deserving.

To allow full time for the inquiries hereinafter directed, the application may be made three months before the term of probation required by law or regulation has expired, and the master of every servant entitled to apply under this rule, is bound to furnish him with a printed form of application and pass to the appropriate court of petty sessions, and further to answer all questions of such court, relating to the conduct and claims of the applicant; attending in person for such purpose, if required.

5. If the court shall have reason to believe that any convict has knowingly presented an application for a ticket of leave, before the time herein prescribed, or made any false entry of service in it, either with respect to dates, or by omitting to enter the several services in which he shall have been employed, the bench shall immediately report the case through the principal superintendent of convicts, for the governor's information, and one year (or more if the case shall seem to deserve a higher degree of punishment) of additional servitude will be required of every such offender.

- 6. It is to be understood that the master is required to give the form and pass before mentioned three months before the expiration of the period of servitude to which the convict is bound by the statute 2 and 3 W. IV., chap. 62 referred to in paragraph 1, But if, after submission to the proper authorities, the application of a ticket of leave be refused, and an additional period of probation be required, the master will not consider himself obliged to give another form and pass, for the purpose of a renewed application, until the expiration of the additional period. If, however, from the subsequent good conduct of the servant, the master shall wish to obtain a remission of the additional probation, he may furnish the servant with the form, stating thereon his desire that the additional probation be remitted, and his reason for such recommendation.
- 7. The court entertaining the application, will enter on the form all such particulars relating to the conduct of the applicant, as can be obtained from his present or former masters (if these be residing within the district), or from their own records; and will add such observations as the case may seem to require, and transmit all applications so prepared on the last day of every month, or oftener, if required, to the principal superintendent of convicts. Previously to transmission, the clerk of the bench will transcribe the applications into a book to be kept for the purpose, in which a column will be left to enter the decision when obtained, but the original application, with the magistrates' remarks thereon, attested by their signatures, are in all cases to be forwarded to the principal superintendent of convicts, for the governor's information.

8. The principal superintendent will, on receipt of such application, examine the records of his office for such other facts as may be necessary to complete the evidence in favour of or against the claim, referring, where necessary, to the former masters, or to the magistrates of the several districts in which the applicants may have formerly served, or to other convenient sources of information. The principal superintendent will then forward the application, with the several statements and certificates, and his report upon the qualification of the applicant, to be submitted to the governor.

9. If the application be rejected, additional probation being required, such rejection will be notified immediately by the principal superintendent of convicts to the court of petty sessions through which the application was forwarded. The magistrates will take the earliest opportunity of informing the master, and will post a notice of the fact in some conspicuous place inside and outside the court-house, and will not receive any application for a ticket of leave from the same party, until the additional period of probation shall have expired, unless at the instance of the master, as before-mentioned. (VI. 6.)

VII. Restoration of Ticket cancelled.—Any convict whose ticket of leave has been cancelled by the governor, may apply for its restoration, through the master to whom he has been assigned, and not otherwise. The master will, if he thinks the servant deserving of indulgence, apply for the restoration by letter, addressed to the appropriate court of petty sessions, who will forward it, with their remarks endorsed thereon, to the principal superintendent of convicts, to be laid, with that officer's report, before the governor. Unless in this manner, no application shall be made for the restoration of a ticket of leave, until the convict shall have served a probation of four years from the date of his ticket being cancelled, when a regular application in the manner and form prescribed in paragraph VI. may be made for a new ticket.

Note.—When the convict affected by any of the foregoing regulations is in the service of government, the officer in charge of such convict is to be considered as the master within the meaning of the regulations.

VIII. Muster of Persons holding Tickets-of-leave .- (Males)-1. Holders of tickets-of-leave for the district of Sydney, residing within the town, shall be mustered in the parishes in which they reside, under the inspection of a police-magistrate, upon the first day of every month, (or the second if the first shall fall on a Sunday), at such place and hour for each parish as the first police-magistrate shall appoint.

2. Every holder of a ticket-of-leave, residing within the town of Sydney, shall, within one month from the date hereof, give to the wardsman of the parish in which he resides, a written return, containing his name, ship, occupation, and place of abode, according to a form to be obtained gratis at the police-office. Any ticket of leave holder neglecting to give such return will become liable to be apprehended as a runaway.

If a ticket-of-leave holder shall quit his residence for another in the same parish, he shall within 24 hours report in writing to the wardsman the place to which he removes, or if the removal be from one parish to another, he shall report in like manner his removal and actual residence, both to the wardsman whose parish he quits, and to the wardsman within whose parish he takes up his new residence. Any neglect of this regulation will cause an immediate cancellation of his ticket.

4. Holders of tickets-of-leave, residing without the town of Sydney, but within the district for which petty sessions are held at Sydney, shall be mustered quarterly in Sydney, under the inspection of a police-magistrate, on the first days of January, April, July, and October, in every year, or the second if the first should fall on a sunday, at such place and time as the first police-magistrate shall appoint.

5. Holders of tickets-of-leave in the other districts of the colony shall be mustered quarterly, on the days mentioned in the preceding regulation, at the court-house at which the petty sessions for such district are held, by a police-magistrate where such is stationed in the district, or otherwise by the clerks of petty sessions, under the inspection of a justice of the peace acting for the district.

6. Holders of tickets of leave for any place not included in a district for which petty sessions are held, and a clerk of the bench appointed, will be mustered quarterly, on the days above mentioned, before the nearest justice of the peace, according to instructions which will be given him to this effect.

7. Immediately after each muster, the magistrate under whose superintendence it has been made, or the clerk of the bench, if no magistrate has attended, will report the names of all absentees to the principal superintendent of convicts, for the governor's information.

8. The magistrate superintending the muster, will, whenever he thinks it necessary, interrogate the holder of a ticket-of-leave respecting his means of subsistence and manner of life, and if he shall not be satisfied that the ticket-of-leave holder subsists honestly, he will render a special report of the case to the principal superintendent of convicts, for the governor's information.

9. No other musters than the foregoing will be required from the first day of July next, but any holder of a ticket-of-leave failing to attend at muster as herein required, or to show such cause for non-appearance as the governor, upon investigation of the case, shall think it right to admit; will be deprived of his ticket.

10. If any ticket-of-leave holder shall be found without the limits of the district for which the ticket is granted, unless under authority of a pass or licence, obtained as hereinafter mentioned, the ticket will be immediately cancelled.

11. Tickets of leave formerly granted for minor districts, or places of less extent than the district for which petty sessions are now holden, shall in future be considered as extending to the entire district for which such petty sessions are holden.

Females. 1. Women holding tickets-of-leave are not required to muster in person, but if residing within the town of Sydney shall leave, or cause to be left at such place within the parish where they dwell, as the first police-magistrate shall direct, on some day in the first week of every month, a report in the form hereunto annexed. In like manner women holding tickets of-leave, and residing within the district of Sydney outside the town, or in any other district of the colony in which petty sessions are held, shall leave or cause to be left a similar report, on some day of the first week in every quarter, at the police-office or court-house of the district; and if residing in a district where a magistrate acts singly, the certificate shall be left at his residence. Any omission in the delivery of these reports, unless satisfactorily accounted for to the magistrates, or any false statement therein, will subject the offender to the loss of her ticket; and the magistrates are requested to cause frequent inquiry to be made to ascertain the correctness of these reports. At the same time as it is desirable that married women, and generally women of good character, should not be obliged to leave their homes to deliver these reports, the magistrates are authorized to dispense with them where the character and habits of the woman shall justify in her case a relaxation of the rule. Printed forms of reports may be obtained gratis on application to the clerks of the several benches of magistrates.

2. Women found absent from their district without a pass or licence, as hereinafter mentioned, will be subject to the loss of their ticket, equally with males.

IX.—Passes. 1. Holders of tickets-of-leave, whether male or female who shall show reasonable cause, to the satisfaction of the nearest justice of the peace, for absenting themselves from their district, may receive a pass from such justice for any time not exceeding 14 days. If any longer pass is required, application must be made to the principal superintendent of convicts through the petty sessions of the district, or if the applicant do not reside within a district, then through the nearest justice of the peace, and thereupon the principal superintendent of convicts may grant such pass as the nature of the case shall require.

2. When holders of tickets-of-leave shall be obliged, from the nature of their occupation, to attend the markets in Sydney, application may be made in like manner through the petty sessions, or nearest justice, to the principal superintendent of convicts, who will grant them, if satisfied with the propriety of the application, a license to attend the markets accordingly. Such license to remain in force one year only; but to be renewable annually, upon a fresh application made in the same manner.

X. Change of District.—All applications for transfer of a ticket of leave from one district to another, or for permission to reside without the bounds of the district for which the ticket is granted, must be made to the principal superintendent of convicts, through the petty sessions of the district for which the ticket already held is granted, or through the nearest justice, as the case may be, as hereinbefore directed with regard to special passes.

By His Excellency's Command,

Alexander M'Leay.

Enclosure to Sir Richard Bourke's Despatch, 4th December, 1837. (Separate) Government Order, Colonial Secretary's office, Sydney, 29th June, 1831.

Assigned Servants.—The great expense to which the government is subjected, by the maintenance and treatment of the assigned servants of settlers, when sent into colonial hospitals, having been brought under its notice, and the attention of the government having also been called to the expense to which His Majesty's Treasury has been subjected in keeping up an extensive constabulary, a great proportion of whose time has been employed in conducting the servants of settlers from Sydney to their masters in the interior, and taking others back, who, from misconduct, or from other circumstances, are returned to the government; the following regulations have been laid down in these cases respectively, viz.

1. That the master shall pay at the rate of 1s. a day for the time his servant shall be in the hospital, to the extent of 30 days. Should the servant continue under treatment for any longer period, the master will not be required to make any further payment.

2. That the persons who send their servants into any of the hospitals shall appoint an agent on the spot to take them away as soon as they are recovered, and unless they be so taken away, they shall be considered as immediately assignable to other parties, in order to prevent the hospital from being improperly burthened with men who do not require treatment.

3. That all persons to whom convicts shall be assigned shall send for them to Sydney, or to such other place as they shall be assembled at. For example, the men to be assigned from road parties will be collected at or near the stations of the assistant surveyors of roads:—(1) At Parramatta. (2.) At Colletts', on the Bathurst road. (3) At the station of the assistant-surveyor, on the Maitland road. (4.) At Bong Bong.

4. That if the party to whom a prisoner is assigned shall fail to send for him, the prisoner will be assigned to some other person; and in order to prevent a recurrence of the inconvenience which must be experienced in such cases, the master will not be considered as an eligible candidate for servants in future.

5. That in order to avoid disappointment, it is suggested that persons residing at a distance applying for servants, who may be assigned in Sydney, should appoint an agent, whose name and residence should be stated in the application, to receive at the time any men who may be assigned to them.

6. That as all convicts who are assigned immediately on their arrival from England and Ireland, are supplied with a complete suit of new clothing, and as it is only reasonable that the person having the benefit of the convict's services should be at the expense of this clothing, the assignees of all such convicts will henceforth be required to pay 20s. for the clothing so furnished at the time of receiving the men.

The government has further been induced, as well with a view of protecting those masters who act with liberality towards their servants from the complaints of the discontented and ill-disposed, as to insure to all assigned servants a due proportion of food and clothing, to lay down the following regulations for the supply of these necessaries:

7. Rations — The weekly ration is to consist as follows, viz.: 12 lbs. of wheat, or 9 lbs. of seconds flour; or, in lieu thereof, at the discretion of the master,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  lbs. of maize meal, and 9 lbs. of wheat, or 7 lbs. of seconds flour, and 7 lbs. of beef or mutton, or  $4\frac{1}{2}$  lbs. of salt pork, 2 oz. of salt, 2 oz. of soap.

Any articles which the master may supply beyond those above specified are to be considered as indulgences, which he is at liberty to discontinue whenever he may think proper.

8. Clothing.—The clothing which assigned servants will be entitled to annually is to consist of two frocks or jackets, three shirts, two pair of trowsers, three pair of shoes, one hat or cap; and is to be issued as follows, viz.:

On the 1st of May in each year.—One woollen jacket, of Parramatta or strong English cloth; one pair of woollen trowsers, of Parramatta or strong English cloth; one shirt, one pair of shoes, one hat or cap.

On the 1st of August.—One shirt, and one pair of shoes.

On the 1st of November.—One woollen or duck jacket, one pair of woollen or duck trowsers, as may best suit the age and state of health of the servant during the summer season, one shirt, one pair of shoes.

The shirts are to be of strong linen or cotton, and the shoes of stout and durable leather.

Each man is to be kept constantly supplied with at least one good blanket and palliasse or wool mattress, which are to be considered the property of the master.

- 9. In the event of a man being assigned who shall have been clothed by the government at any time within two months previous to the general issue on the 1st of May, his master will not be required to supply him with any clothing until 1st of August, and then only with those articles which are specified for that day. In like manner, the master of any servant clothed by the government between the 1st September and 1st November shall only be required to issue to him a shirt and a pair of shoes on the 1st of February following; but after those dates respectively, the several articles enumerated must be regularly supplied at the established periods.
- 10. Persons who do not comply with these regulations, which are founded on just and equitable principles, as they reciprocally apply to the government, the settler and the assigned servant, cannot be allowed the indulgence of having convicts assigned to them thereafter.

By command of his Excellency the Governor,

Alexander M'Leay.

Enclosure to Sir Richard Bourke's despatch, 4 December 1837. (Separate.)

New South Wales .- Anno Tertio Gulielmi IV. Regis.

By his Excellency major-general Sir Richard Bourke, captain-general and governor-in-chief of the territory of New South Wales and its dependencies, and vice-admiral of the same, with the advice of the legislative council.

- No. 3. An act to consolidate and amend the laws for the transportation and punishment of offenders in New South Wales, and for defining the respective powers and authorities of general quarter sessions, and of petty sessions; and for determining the places at which the same shall be holden; and for better regulating the summary jurisdiction of justices of the peace; and for repealing certain laws and ordinances relating thereto.—(24 August, 1832.)
- 1. Whereas it is expedient to consolidate and amend the laws now in force for the transportation and punishment of offenders convicted of transportable felonies in New South Wales, and to define and regulate petition of Mr. Macarthur, and on the plan of a joint company; and that he should be further directed to state also in what manner he conceives the growth of fine wool can best be encouraged, together with the hopes he may entertain that a supply of that article can be afforded from New South Wales, and to what extent such supply is likely to be obtained, and within what space of time.

That the lords of the committee think it right to observe that a conditional grant of lands of a reasonable extent may that the lords of the committee think it right to observe that a conditional grant of lands of a reasonable extent may be, perhaps, with safety granted to Mr. Macarthur for the pasturage of sheep only, or to other persons, provided a power be reserved in such grant to resume the same at any future period, on giving other land further distant from the cultivated land of the colony (with reasonable indemnification for expenses incurred in fencing, &c.,) and that such conditional grant would not cramp the cultivation of the colony, or be attended with bad effects in any manner at present apparent to the lords of the committee.

That in addition to these encouragements, it occurs to their Lordships that the governor should be directed to provide mutton for the food of the convicts rather than to feed them on salted provisions; and that it might equally tend to encourage the breed of sheep with fine wool, if it were recommended to the governor to purchase only that description of sheep for that purpose, or at least to give a preference to sheep of that description over any other kind, and to give an advanced price for the sheep with fine wool. That many other ways may, however, occur to the governor, from his local knowledge, of promoting an object so important to this country; and that he should be directed to state the same to Lord Camden.

Camden.

That from the information obtained from the fleeces brought from the settlement in question, and from the description given of the climate of the colony, the lords of the committee are led to imagine and entertain hopes that wool of a fine quality may be produced in this colony; and that as wool of such fine quality is much wanted and desired by the munifacturers of cloth in England, it being mostly drawn at this time from a country influenced, if not dependent on France, their lordships entertain no doubt that it is well deserving the attention of his Majesty's government to encourage the produce of fine wool in the colony of New South Wales.

Z .- STATE PAPERS.

Extract of a Letter from Governor Philips, Botany Bay, to the Right Hon. Lord Sydney, dated Sidney Cove, 12th February, 1700.

[The following extracts from State Papers will convey a knowledge of the early condition of the now flourishing settlement in Australia.]

ment in Australia.]

I had the honour of informing your lordship, that a settlement was intended to be made at a place I named Rose-hill. At the head of this harbour there is a creek, which at half flood has water for large boats to go three miles up: and one mile higher the water is fresh and the soil good,—a very industrious man, whom I brought from England, is employed there at present, and has under his direction a hundred convicts who work in clearing and cultivating the ground. A barn, granary, and other necessary buildings are creeted, and 27 acres in corn promise a good crop. The soil is good, and the country for 20 miles to the westward, which is as far as I have examined, lies well for cultivation; but even there the labour of clearing the ground is very great, and I have seen none that can be cultivated without cutting down the timber, except some few particular spots, which from their situation, lying at a distance from either of the harbours) can be of no advantage to us at present; and I presume, the meadows mentioned in Captain Cook's voyage were seen from the high grounds above Botany Bay, and from whence they appear well to the eye, but when examined, are found to be marshes, the draining of which would be a work of time, and not to be attempted by the first settlers.

The captain's guard, which until lately did duty at Rose-hill, is now reduced to a licutenant and twelve privates, and incheded merely as a guard to the store which contains the provisions, and which is in the redoubt; for I am now sensible there is nothing to be apprehended from the natives, and the little attention which had been desired of the officers, more than what was immediately garrison duty, when at Rose-hill, is now no longer required.

At Sydney Cove all the officers are in good huts, and the men in barracks, and although many unforeseen difficuties have been met with, I believe there is not an individual, from the governor to the private soldier, whose situation is not more eligible at this time than he had any reaso

Years.

The stores have been lately over-run with rats, and they are equally numerous in the gardens, where they do considerable damage: and as the loss in the stores could only be known by removing all the provisions, that work was ordered to be done, and many casks of flower and rice were found to be damaged, or totally destroyed. The loss in these two articles by the rats, since landing, has been more than twelve thousand weight.

Vegetables and provisions having been frequently stolen in the night from the convicts and others, twelve convicts were chosen as a night watch, and they have actually answered the end proposed, no robbery having been committed for several months, and the convicts in general, have behaved better than I ever expected. Only two convicts have suffered several months, and the convicts in general have behaved better than I ever expected. Only two convicts have sufficed death in the last year. Four were executed the first year.

As near two years have now passed since we first landed in this country, some judgment may be formed of the climate, and I believe a finer or more healthy one is not to be found in any part of the world. Of 1030 people who were landed, and you whom were worn out by old age, the scurvy and various disorders; only 27 have died in 21 months, and by the surgeon's returns it appears, that 26 of those died from disorders of long standing, and which, it is more than probable, would have carried them off much sooner in England. Fifty-nine children have been born in the above time.

In December, the earn at Rose-hill was got in; the corn was exceedingly good; about 200 bushels of wheat, and about 60 of barley, with a small quantity of flax, Indian corn, and oats; all of which is preserved for seed. Here I beg leave to observe to your lordship, that if extlers are sent out, and the convicts divided amongst them, this settlement will very shortly maintain it elf, but without which, this country cannot be cultivated to any advantage. At present, I have only one person (who has about a hundred convicts under his direction) who is employed in cultivating the ground for the public benefit, and he has returned the quantity of corn above mentioned into the public store; the officers have not raised sufficient to support the little stock they have. Some ground I have had in cultivation will return 40 bushels of wheat into store; so that the produce of the labour of the convicts employed by them who have an interest in their labour. The giving convicts to the officers have been expected; and which I take the liberty of pointing out to your lordship, in this place, to show as fully as possible, the state of this colony, and the necessity of convicts being employed by them who have an interest in their labour. The giving convicts to the officers and the necessity of convicts being employed by them who have an interest in their labour. The giving convicts to the officers has been hitherto necessary, but it is attended with many inconveniences, for which the advantages arising to the officers do not make amonds; it will therefore be discontinued after this detachment is relieved unless particularly directed. The numbers employed in culdvation will, of course, be increased, as the necessary buildings are finished.

In November, the Supply sailed for Norfolk island with some convicts, and returned after being absent six weeks; all the people in that island were well, and their crops, after all they had suffered from rats, birds, and a worm, which had done them considerable damage, so good, that they had grain sufficient for six month's bread for every one upon the island, reserving sufficient for their next year's crops.

Early in January, 1790, the Supply again sailed for Norfolk island with more convicts, and in her passage left a small party on Lord Howe island to hunt for turtle; but in fifteen days three only were taken. No great advantages will at present accrue from thence. The island has fresh water, but no anchoring ground.

Since the deaths mentioned in a former part of this letter, one woman has suffered for robbery, five children have died,

Since the deaths mentioned in a former part of this letter, one woman has suffered for robbery, five children have died, and twenty-eight children been born.

Extract of a Letter from Governor Philips to the Right Hon. Lord Sydney, dated Botany Bay, 13th February, 1790.

In order to get a knowledge of the country round the settlement, frequent excursions have been made since the ships In order to get a knowledge of the country found the settlement, frequent excursions have been made since the ships sailed in November, 1788, soon after which I went to Botany Bay, and the five days spent in that harbour confirmed me in the opinion I had first formed of it; that it afforded no eligible situation for fixing the settlement, and was a bad harbour, not affording good security for ships against the easterly winds, which frequently blow very hard in the winter, and which has been further proved by Captain Hunter and the first Lieutenant of the Sirius, who went there to survey the Bay.

After having been several times with the boats to Broken Bay, in order to examine the different branches in that harbour, a river was found, but the want of provisions obliged us to return without being able to trace it to its source, which has since been done; and in the 16 days we were then out, all those branches which had any depth of water were traced as far since been done; and in the 16 days we were then out, all those branches which had any depth of water were traced as far as the boats could proceed.

The breadth of this river, named the Hawkesbury, is from 300 to 800 feet, and it appears from the soundings we had, to be navigable for the largest merciant ships to the foot of Richmond-hill; but as the water near the head of the river sometimes rises after very heavy rains 30 feet above its common level, it would not be safe for ships to go so far up; but 15 or 20 miles below Richmond-hill, as being the head of the river, it there growing very shallow and dividing into two branches.

miles below Richmond-hill they would lie in tresh water, and perfectly safe. I speak of Richmond-hill, as being the head of the river, it there growing very shallow and dividing into two branches.

The high rocky country which forms Broken Bay, is lost as you proceed up the Hawkesbury, and the banks of the river are there covered with timber, the soil a rich light mould, and, judging from the little we saw of the country, I should suppose it good land to a very considerable extent; the other branches of fresh water are shoals, but probably run many miles further into the country than we could trace them in our boats. On these rivers we saw great numbers of wild ducks and some black swans; and on the banks of the Hawkesbury, several decoys were set by the natives to catch quails.

Richmond-hill (near the foot of which a fall of water prevented our proceeding further with the boats) is the southern extremity of a range of hills, which running to the northward, most probably join the mountains which lie nearly parallel to the coast, from 50 to 60 miles inland. The soil of Richmond-hill is good, and it lies well for cultivation. Our prospect from the hill was very extensive from the southward and eastward, and the country appearing from the height at which we were, a level covered with timber. There is a flat of six or seven miles between Richmond-hill and a break in the mountains, which separates Lansdown and Carmarthen-hills, and in this flat I suppose the Hawkesbury continues its course, but which could not be seen for the timber, that with very few exceptions covers the country wherever the soil is good. The great advantages of so noble a river when a settlement can be made on its banks will be obvious to your Lordship.

The settlement made at Port Jackson, near the head of the harbour (Rose-hill), very fully answers my expectations: the soil is exceeding good, lies well for cultivation, and is well watered. Six miles to the southward there is a small fritt, which is said to be very wholesome. This river, which on his own farm, which I suppose to be from 500 to 1000 acres. It will be necessary to give that number of convicts to those settlers who come out, and to support them for two years from the public stores; in that time, if they are at all industrious, they will be in a situation to support themselves, and I do not think they would be able to do it in less time. At the expiration of the two years, they may return half the convicts they have been allowed, and want no further assistance from

It may be necessary to grant land to officers and soldiers, who, becoming settlers, will of course be entitled to every indulgence; but few of the officers now here have reaped any good advantage from being allowed convicts, and it is attended with unavoidable inconvenience from the convicts being let so much to themselves, and from their mixing with the soldiers. It may be found more to the advantage of the Crown, and the officers likewise, if officers on duty in this the soldiers. It may be found more to the advantage of the Crown, and the officers likewise, if officers on duty in this settlement were allowed a certain quantity of grain to support their live stock until they have a market to go to: and I make no doubt but that in the third year from the time settlers arrive, there will be a market, well supplied with grain, poultry, hogs, and goats, of all which there has been a great increase, but killed from wanting corn to support them; and the natives so frequently setting fire to the country, which they do to catch the opossum, flying squirrel, and other animals, has prevented swine from being turned out, as was intended.

If this plan of distributing among the settlers those convicts who are not immediately necessary for carrying on the public works is approved of, and which I suppose will, as appearing to me most likely to render this settlement independent for the necessaries of life in the shortest time possible, there are many regulations which will of course take place.

A A .- CHARTER OF JUSTICE-NEW SOUTH WALES, 13th of October, 1823.

GEORGE the Fourth, by the grace of God, of the united Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting: Whereas by an Act passed in the fourth year of our reign, intituled "An Act to provide until the 1st day of July, 1827, and until the end of the next Session of Parliament, for the better Administration of Justice in New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land, and for the more effectual government thereof, and for other purposes relating thereto," it was enacted that it should be lawful for us, our heirs, or successors, by charters or letters-patent under the great seal of our united Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, to erect and establish courts of judicature in New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land respectively, which should be styled "The Supreme Court of New South Wales," and "The Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land; and that each of such courts respectively should be holden by one judge or chief justice, and should have such ministerial or other officers as should be necessary for the administration of justice in the said courts respectively, and for the execution of the judgments, decrees, orders, and process thereof; and it was enacted that the said judges should from time to time be appointed by us, our heirs, and successors, and that the said ministerial and other officers of the said courts respectively should from time to time be appointed to and removed from their respective offices in such manner as we, our heirs, and successors should by such charters or letters-patent as aforesaid direct; and that the said judges should be respectively entitled to receive such reasonable salaries as we, our heirs, and successors should approve and direct, which salaries should be in lieu of all fees or other the respective powers and authorities of the courts of general quarter sessions, and of petty sessions, as well as of one justice of the peace exercising a summary jurisdiction in certain cases, and to determine, by proper authority, the places at which the said courts shall be respectively holden: and whereas, for these purposes, it is expedient and necessary that certain laws or ordinances of the governor and council of New South Wales should be repealed: be it therefore enacted, by his excellency the governor of New South Wales, with the advice of the legislative council thereof, that a certain act or ordinance of the governor and council of New South Wales, passed in the sixth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Fourth, (No. 9.) intituled "an act or ordinance passed in the seventh year of the peace in the exercise of their summary jurisdiction;" and an act or ordinance passed in the seventh year of the same reign, (No. 5) intituled "an act for the transportation of offenders to penal settlements, and for the more effectual punishment and security of the same;" and an act or ordinance passed in the 11th year of the same reign, (No. 12.) intituled "an act for the punishment and transportation of offenders in New South Wales;" and also another act or ordinance passed in the same year of the same reign, (No. 13.) intituled "an act to amend an act of the governor and council," intituled "an act for instituting and regulating courts of general and quarter sessions in New South Wales, and for better regulating the powers of justices of the peace therein," shall, from and after the commencement of this act or ordinance, be, and the same are hereby repealed.

- 2. And be it further enacted, that this act or ordinance shall commence and take effect on the 1st day of October next after the passing thereof; and that on or after that day, all things remaining to be done touching the transportation, removal, punishment, employment and discipline of persons sentenced or ordered to be transported, or to be kept to labour in irons on the roads or public works of the said colony under any act or ordinance of the governor in council, shall be continued, done, and completed under the provisions of this act or ordinance: and that all sentences and orders for transportation, and all other orders, instructions, and directions made, issued, or given, under any such act or ordinance of the governor in council, in force at the commencement of this act or ordinance, shall continue in force until they shall be revoked or superseded.
- 3. And be it further enacted, that if any person who shall have arrived in the said colony as a transported felon or offender, in pursuance of the sentence or order of any court or competent authority, shall be convicted in the Supreme Court, or in any court of general quarter sessions, of any offence punishable by the law of England with transportation, every such person shall, at the discretion of the court, be sentenced either to suffer such punishment as the law of England has awarded to such offence, or, in lieu thereof, if a male, to be kept to labour in irons on the roads or public works of the said colony; or if a female to be imprisoned and kept to labour in any gaol or factory appointed by the governor for the custody of female offenders, for a time not exceeding three years.
- 4. And be it further enacted, that every sentence of transportation passed in due course of law upon any offender in New South Wales or its dependencies, and every order made by the governor for the transportation of any such offender in lieu of capital punishment, shall subject such offender to be conveyed to such penal settlement within the said colony or its dependencies at such time and in such manner as the governor for the time being shall direct and appoint; and that every offender shall be detained and kept at such penal settlement until he or she shall have served such sentence, or shall be removed therefrom by lawful authority; and that every sentence or order passed or made for keeping such offender as aforesaid, to labour in irons upon the roads or other public works of the said colony, shall subject such offender to be placed and kept to labour upon such roads or public works as the governor for the time being shall direct and appoint, and such offender shall be detained and worked in the manner authorized by this law or ordinance upon such roads and public works until he shall have served such sentence, or shall be removed from the same by lawful authority.
- 5. Provided always, and be it further enacted, that no person who shall have been born within the said colony or its dependencies, or who shall have arrived free therein, shall be liable, upon any sentence of transportation passed for the first time upon any such offender, to be conveyed to any such penal settlement as aforesaid, or kept to labour in irons on the roads or public works of the said colony, but that every such offender shall for such first offence be liable to be transported to such place beyond the seas within his Majesty's dominions as shall be duly appointed for such purpose by the governor for the time being, in pursuance of the directions of the statute, and of his Majesty's order in council (6. Geo. 4, c. 69; 11 Nov. 1825. Proviso.) in such case respectively made and provided, and in such manner as such governor shall order and direct; and if any such offender shall, after having been ordered to be transported to such place beyond the seas as aforesaid, be found at large within the limits of the said colony or its dependencies, before his or her sentence of transportation shall have expired, or shall have been otherwise determined by lawful authority. such offender shall, upon conviction before the Supreme Court of being unlawfully at large, contrary to the provisions of this act or ordinance, be liable to be transported for the term of his or her natural life to such penal settlement as the governor for the time being shall appoint, in like manner as other transported felons under the provisions of this act or ordinance; provided, however, that nothing hereinbefore contained shall be deemed or taken to apply to any order made by the governor for the time being for the transportation of any offender in lieu of capital punishment, but that any such offender may be transported to such place, for such term, and upon such conditions as such governor shall appoint and direct.
- 6. And be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the governor for the time being, by order in writing, duly made for such purpose, to cause any offender who has been, or shall hereafter be, transported to any penal settlement, to be withdrawn from such penal settlement and to be removed or conveyed to some other penal settlement within the said colony or its dependencies, and there kept for the residue of his or her sentence, subject and liable to the same laws, rules and regulations as if such offender had been originally transported to such other penal settlement.
- 7. And be it further enacted, that all persons who shall have been, or shall be, transported or removed as aforesaid, to any penal settlement within the said colony or its dependencies, shall be under the custody and management of a commandant or superintendent, duly appointed for such purpose by the governor for the time being; and every such commandant or superintendent shall have the same powers over such offenders as are incident to the office of sheriff or gaoler; and if any offender shall, during such custody, be guilty of misbehaviour or disorderly conduct, such commandant or superintendent shall be authorized to inflict such moderate punishment as shall be allowed by any rules and regulations, to be made from time to time, for the management and discipline of such penal settlement by the governor, with the advice of the executive council; and, subject to such rules, shall keep every offender in his custody to labour, and duly provided with food and clothing, according to a scale to be set forth in the said rules; and in case of the absence of any such commandant or superintendent, or of the vacancy of his office, his powers and duties shall be exercised and discharged in all respects by the officer or person upon whom the command of such penal settlement shall devolve.

- 8. And be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for any such commandant or superintendent, at every penal settlement as aforesaid, and every officer or person upon whom the command of the same may devolve, to act in every respect as a justice of the peace, duly named and qualified as a justice of the peace, in and for such penal settlement.
- 9. Whereas, by virtue of the provisions of a certain act of parliament, passed in the sixth year of the reign of his late Majesty, and of his Majesty's order in council consequent thereon, the governor of New South Wales did, by proclamation, bearing date the 15th day of August 1826, appoint certain places within the said colony or its dependencies to which offenders convicted in New South Wales, and being under sentence or order of transportation, should be sent or transported; and whereas it is expedient that no ship or trading vessel should be permitted to enter or touch at, or hold intercourse with, any such place or places: be it therefore enacted, that it shall not be lawful for any master, mariner, or other person commanding, navigating or sailing in any ship, vessel, or boat, to enter, touch at, or communicate with, the penal settlements at Moreton Bay and Norfolk Island respectively, or with any other place or places within the said colony or its dependencies to be appointed by the governor for the transportation of any offender or offenders under sentence or order of transportation made, or to be made, by any court or competent authority in New South Wales, without the licence or permission in writing of the governor being first had and obtained for such purpose; and any person or persons who shall enter, touch at, or communicate with, any such place or places as aforesaid, shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and, upon being thereof duly convicted before the Supreme Court of New South Wales, shall, for every such offence, incur, and be liable to, a fine not exceeding 1001, or to imprisonment for any time not exceeding one year, or to both, at the discretion of the said court.

10. And be it further enacted, that all persons who have been, or shall be, ordered to be kept to labour in irons, on the roads, or other public works of the colony, shall be under custody and management of superintendents, who shall be appointed for such purpose by the governor for the time being; and every such superintendent shall keep every offender in his custody to labour, and duly provided with food and clothing, in conformity to such rules and regulations as the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, shall from time to time institute in this behalf.

- 11. And be it further enacted, that every female offender who shall be committed by due course of law to any goal or factory appointed by the Governor for the custody of female offenders, shall be under the management of a matron or superintendent, to be appointed for such purpose by the Governor for the time being, and such matron or superintendent shall observe and follow such rules and regulations in respect of the care and keeping of such female offenders as shall be established by the governor with the advice of the executive council.
- 12. And be it further enacted, that it shall not be lawful for any person being under sentence for any felony or transportable offence, to carry or have in his possession any fire-arms or other weapon of offence, except with the leave and consent in writing, and for the protection of the property of his master, employer, or overseer; and in every such consent as aforesaid, the place, time, occasion in and for which such arms or other weapons are intended to be used, shall be truly and specifically stated; and if such person as aforesaid shall hold a ticket of leave or other partial or temporary remission of sentence, except with the like consent in writing of a justice of the peace of the district in which he may reside, such last-mentioned consent to remain in force for three calendar months and no longer, and to be renewed from time to time as occasion may require; and if any such person shall be found with any fire-arms or other such weapon as aforesaid in his possession contrary to this law or ordinance, and without being able to prove that the same was intended to be used for a lawful purpose, every such person shall be guilty of felony, and being thereof lawfully convicted, shall be transported to some penal settlement for the term of his natural life.
- 13. And whereas robbers and housebreakers are greatly encouraged to commit felonies by persons who make it their business to receive, harbour and conceal such offenders and their spoil; be it therefore enacted, that if any person shall conceal or receive any goods, chattels, money, bill, note, or effects whatsoever, that shall have been feloniously stolen by means of force, or putting in bodily fear, from the person, or from the dwelling-house of another person, knowing the same to have been so stolen, every such person shall be transported for the term of his or her natural life; and any person who shall receive, harbour, or conceal any such robber or housebreaker, knowing him to have committed any such felony, shall be taken to be an accessory in such felony, and being thereof lawfully convicted shall suffer death.
- 14. And whereas by a certain act or ordinance of the governor in council, passed in the 10th year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Fourth, (No. 7.) initialed, "An Act for instituting and regulating Courts of General and Quarter Sessions in New South Wales," it is, amongst other things, provided, that courts of general and quarter sessions, for the colony in New South Wales shall be holden at the places named in the said act; and whereas it is expedient to amend the same: be it therefore enacted, that courts of general quarter sessions for the colony of New South Wales shall be holden at the following places; that is to say, at Sydney, Parramatta, Campbell-town, Windsor, Maitland, and Bathurst, and at such other places within the said colony, and at such times respectively, as the governor for the time being shall, by any proclamation duly issued for such purpose, appoint, and at no other place whatsoever; and that the said several and respective courts shall have and exercise such and the like jurisdiction and authority, and shall be composed, and shall proceed in all respects in such and the like manner as in and by the said act or ordinance, passed in the 10th year of the reign of his said late Majesty, is directed and required.

- 15. And be it further enacted, that if any person who shall have been transported or removed to New South Wales, or any of its dependencies, by any court or competent authority, and whose sentence shall not have expired or been remitted, shall be convicted in a summary way before any court of general quarter sessions of any misdemeanor or other offence which, if committed in England, would subject such offender upon conviction, either a first or second time, to no higher degree of punishment than imprisonment, with hard labour, every such offender shall, at the discretion of the court, be sentenced either to suffer such punishment as the law of England has awarded to such offence, or in lieu thereof to be transported to a penal settlement; or if a male, to be worked in irons on the roads or public works of the colony for the term of two years.
- 16. And be it further enacted, that any two or more of his Majesty's justices assigned to keep the peace, assembled and sitting in open court at any place within the said colony, or its dependencies, appointed in manner hereinafter mentioned (such court not being a court of general quarter sessions as aforesaid), shall be deemed to be, and shall be, a court of petty sessions; and every such court of petty sessions shall have power and authority to take cognizance in a summary way of all misdemeanours, pilferings from a master or mistress, and simple larcenies to the value of any sum under 51., which have been or shall be committed by any felon or offender transported or removed to the said colony or its dependencies, whose sentene hath not expired or been remitted at the time of committing such offence; and also of all complaints made against such felon or offender for drunkenness, disobedience of orders, neglect of work, absconding from the employment of Government or from the service of his or her master, abusive language to his or her master or overseer, or other disorderly or dishonest conduct; and the said offences respectively to punish as hereinafter directed.
- 17. And be it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the governor for the time being, by any notice published in the Government Gazette, to appoint places at which petty sessions shall be holden, and to nominate one fit and proper person to be clerk to every such petty sessions, who shall attend to discharge the duties of his office at the place for which he shall be nominated, and at no other place whatever.
- 18. And be it further enacted, that every such offender under sentence of transportation as aforesaid, who shall be duly convicted in a summary manner before any two or more justices in petty sessions assembled, of any misdemeanor, pilfering from a master or mistress, or of any larceny as aforesaid, shall, for a first offence, be liable, if a male, to be whipped by the infliction of any number of lashes not exceeding 50, or to be kept to labour in irons on the roads or public works of the said colony, for any time not less than six nor more than 12 calendar months; or, if a female, to be imprisoned for a like time and kept to labour, in any gaol or factory appointed by the governor from time to time for the custody of female offenders; and every such offender who shall be duly convicted as aforesaid of drunkenness, disobedience of orders, neglect of work, absconding from the employment of government, or from the service of his or her master, abusive language to his or her master or overseer, or other disorderly or dishonest conduct, shall, for a first offence, be liable, if a male, to be whipped by the infliction of any number of lashes not exceeding 50; or to be worked on the tread-mill, or imprisoned and kept to hard labour for any time not exceeding two calendar months, or to be kept in solitary confinement on bread and water, for any time not exceeding 14 days; or if a female, to be imprisoned and kept to labour in any gaol or factory as aforesaid, for any time not exceeding two calendar months, or to be kept in solitary confinement, on bread and water, for any time not exceeding 14 days, according to the several kinds and degrees of such offences respectively: and every such offender as aforesaid, who shall be convicted before such justices as aforesaid, a second time or oftener, of any such misdemeanor, pilfering, larceny, drunkenness, disobedience, neglect, abusive language, or other disorderly or dishonest conduct as aforesaid, shall be liable to have his or her punishment increased by the infliction of any additional number of lashes, or by augmenting the time of working in irons, or on the tread-mill, or of confinement, solitary or otherwise, according to the sex of the offender and the degree of the offence, and as such justices shall adjudge: provided always, that such additional punishment shall in no one case be more than double the amount of punishment for which any such first offence is liable to be punished as aforesaid.
- 19. And be it further enacted, that every offender under sentence of transportation as aforesaid, who shall be convicted before such justices in petty sessions, a second time or oftener, of absconding from the employment of government, or from the service of his or her master or mistress, shall be liable, if a male, to be kept to labour in irons on the roads or public works of the said colony for 12 calendar months.
- 20. And whereas it frequently happens that transported felons abscond and absent themselves from service, and cannot be apprehended until the term of their transportation has expired; be it therefore enacted, that as often as any person being under sentence of transportation or order of removal, shall abscond or absent himself or herself from the service of his or her master or employer, every such person shall be liable to be tried in a summary manner by or before any court or tribunal authorized by law to take cognizance of offences committed by transported offenders, although at the time of such trial such sentence may have expired, and being lawfully convicted of such absconding, shall be liable to serve for such and the like time as such person absconded and was absent from the service of his or her master or employer, and shall be subject and liable to all such and the like punishments, and to be dealt with in all respects as persons absconding during any subsisting sentence are liable to by this law or ordinance.
- 21. And be it further enacted, that 24 hours' absence from the employment of government, or from private service, without due leave having been first obtained for such purpose, shall be deemed an absconding, and shall render every transported felon or offender so absent liable to the penalties thereof; and if any master, superintendent, or overseer shall fail or neglect to report to the principal superintendent of convicts, and to the nearest justice of the peace, the absenting or absconding of any such person from his or her service or superintendence, within three days after such absconding as aforesaid, such master, employer, superintendent, or overseer shall, for every such failure or neglect, forfeit and pay a sum of not less than than 51. nor more than 101., to be recovered in a summary way before any two justices of the peace; one moiety of such fine to be for the use of the king, and the other moiety to the person or persons informing or suing for the same.

- 22. And be it further enacted, that if any offender who shall have been, or who shall be, transported or removed to any penal settlement, or put to labour in irons on the roads or other public works of the said colony, or imprisoned in any gaol or factory, appointed by the governor for the custody of female offenders as aforesaid, shall escape from such penal settlement, or from such roads or public works, or from such gaol or factory, every such offender shall, upon summary conviction before any two or more justices in petty sessions, be liable, if a male, to be publicly whipped by the infliction of any number of lashes not exceeding 100, and to be forthwith transported or sent back to the penal settlement, roads, or place of work from which he scaped, there to receive the punishment to which he shall have been sentenced; or, if a female, to be returned to the place of confinement from which she escaped, and kept in solitary confinement on bread and water, for any time not exceeding one calendar month; and every such offender shall be detained until he or she shall have served the full measure of his or her sentences, as well as of the time during which he or she shall have escaped or been absent: provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to exempt any such offender so escaping from any other punishment to which he or she may be liable by law.
- 23. And whereas it frequently happens that persons under sentence of transportation, and persons sentenced to labour on the roads or other public works of the said colony, either wilfully disable themselves from working, or designedly prevent or protract the cure of any disease or complaint which they have contracted, in order to evade servitude; be it therefore further enacted, that in case any person, being under any such sentence as aforesaid, shall wilfully disable himself or herself, or shall designedly prevent or protract the cure of any disease or complaint which he or she may have contracted, in order to evade servitude, every such offender, being summarily convicted of such offence before any one or more justice or justices of the peace, shall be liable to serve for such further time as such person shall have been absent at hospital, or otherwise disabled from serving his or her master or employer as aforesaid; and in every such case a certificate, under the hand of the principal or other surgeon of the hospital or district who shall have the care of and be attending upon such person, that he or she had so wilfully disabled himself or herself, or designedly prevented or protracted his or her cure of any such disease or complaint as aforesaid, shall be deemed sufficient proof of such offence.
- 24. And be it further enacted, that whenever any offender shall be convicted before the justices in petty sessions as aforesaid, and sentenced to hard labour in irons on the roads or public works, it shall and may be lawful for any two or more of such justices to order, if they shall think fit, every such offender to be immediately put in irons; and such justices, by warrant under their hands, shall direct that he be conveyed to the nearest iron-gang, and be there delivered over to the superintendent, to be kept at labour in irons for the time for which he shall have been sentenced; and every such superintendent shall, under the authority of such warrant, receive every offender so committed to his charge, and keep him to labour in irons for the time specified therein, unless sooner released by due course of law: provided always, that every such warrant shall be signed by at least two justices who tried and sentenced the offender, and that whenever any such offender, not being in irons, shall be delivered over to any superintendent, he shall forthwith put such offender in irons, and keep him to labour as hereinbefore directed.
- 25. And be it further enacted, that if any person shall harbour or conceal any transported felon or offender who may be illegally at large, or shall seduce or excite any such person to abscond from the employment of government, or the service of his or her master or mistress, every such person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a penalty or sum not less than 5l. nor more than 10l., to be recovered in a summary way before any two justices of the peace; one moiety to be appropriated to the king, and the other moiety to the person who may first inform or sue for the same; and if such offender shall be a convict under sentence of transportation, he shall be liable, if a male, to be whipped, by the infliction of not more than 100 lashes, or to be worked in irons upon the roads or public works of the colony for 12 calendar months; or, if a female, to be imprisoned and kept to labour in any gaol or factory appointed by the governor for the custody of female offenders, for 12 calendar months.
- 26. And whereas by certain acts or ordinances of the governor of New South Wales, with the advice of the legislative council, certain duties are required to be performed by benches of magistrates and clerks of the bench; it is hereby enacted and declared, that the said duties shall henceforth be performed by the said justices in petty sessions assembled, and by the clerks of petty sessions respectively.
- 27. And be it further enacted, that any one of his Majesty's justices assigned to keep the peace within the said colonies and its dependencies, shall, within the county, district, or place wherein he shall reside, or in any other county district or place adjacent thereto wherein there shall be no justice of the peace residing, have power and authority to take cognizance in a summary way, of all complaints made against any such transported felon or offender as aforesaid, whose sentence shall not have expired or been remitted as aforesaid, for drunkenness, disobedience of orders, neglect of work, absconding from the employment of government, or the service of his or her master, abusive language to his or her master, or overseer, or other disorderly or dishonest conduct; and the said offences respectively to punish in such and the like manner, according to the kind and degree of the offence, as in and by this law or ordinance is provided and limited for the punishment of transported felons or offenders convicted of a first offence before any two or more justices sitting in petty sessions.
- 28. And for the better ordering of offenders sentenced to work in irons as aforesaid, and of transported felons and offenders employed to work upon the roads, or other public works of the colony, whose stations

Instructions for Assistant Engineers.—Military officers employed upon the roads and public works in New South Wales as assistant engineers and superintendents of ironed gangs, have three distinct duties to perform: that which relates to the military command of the detachment under their orders: that which regards the safe custody and discipline of the convicts whom they have to keep at hard labour; and that which embraces the actual execution of the work, according to instructions received from the commanding royal engineer. Instructions are here given for the performance of the two first of these duties, under heads marked respectively A and B. The instructions of the commanding royal engineer relating to the execution of the work, will be conveyed by him to the assistant engineers, as occasion requires.

Instructions (A).—1. The officer will discharge his military duty in strict conformity to the rules of the service, and the standing orders of this command, and will accordingly make the reports, and send in the returns required of him by the major of brigade and the commanding officer of his regiment.

2. He will take such measures in the exercise of his military command, for the safe custody of the convicts over whom his guard is placed, as are contained in these instructions, or as he shall be required to do by the major of brigade or other staff officer, conveying the orders of the general officer in command, or as the practice of the service shall dictate. In the discharge of this most important duty, he will be held strictly responsible for any act or omission, by which the escape of a convict may be rendered practicable.

- 3. The officer will divide the men fit for duty in his detachment, as nearly as circumstances will permit, into three parties, of which one, under the command of a non-commissioned officer, is to proceed with the convicts to work, and is to furnish all the sentries over them whilst at work, and going to and returning from it. This will be a day duty only, ceasing on the return of the convicts from work in the evening. A second party also, under the command of a non-commissioned officer, is to take all the duties of the stockade for 24 hours, furnishing the day and night sentries that may be required. The third will be off duty, excepting cooks, men required to clean barracks, and other duties of the kind. This arrangement will give the men two nights in bed; but should it be required for the safe keeping of the convicts to augment the number of the sentries, the officer will put as many men on duty as he shall find necessary, reporting the case to the brigade major, at Sydney, in order that the detachment may be reinforced.
- 4. When the convicts are brought in for meals, the stockade guard will furnish the sentries over them, to allow the working guard time for meals and rest.
- 5. If the stockade guard shall be of greater strength during the day than is required for the number of sentries it has to furnish, the officer may, at his discretion, allow the disposable men to form an inlying piquet, remaining in barracks, ready to be called out at a moment's warning, for patroles or any other duty.
- 6. The foregoing instructions apply to detachments which are not called to perform any other duty than to guard ironed gangs. Where other duty is required, additional instructions will be furnished by the brigade major.
- 7. The stockade guard will be relieved in the morning on working days, when the convicts are about to proceed to work, when both old and new guards will be under arms.
- 8. The guards will mount with loaded muskets and fixed bayonets, and each man is to have 10 rounds of ball cartridge in his pouch. The convicts, at each time of going out to work, will be counted over by the serjeant of the stockade to the non-commissioned officer commanding the guard, before he quits the place, who will give a receipt for the number. They will be again counted on returning from work. If right, the receipt will be cancelled; if any be missing, steps will be immediately taken, as directed in paragraph 17 of these instructions.
- 9. The officer will see such sentries posted over the convicts when at work, and will give such orders to the non-commissioned officer respecting them, as shall render the escape of a convict impracticable, if due vigilance be observed. He will also take care that the convicts be sufficiently guarded, in proceeding to and returning from work; that they move on those occasions at a quick pace, and that none are allowed to loiter or remain behind, under any pretence whatsoever.

10. It will be the duty of the officer to regulate the distribution of the work, so as to avoid breaking up the gang into small detached parties, but where it may be unavoidable, such detached parties, if consisting of more than one convict (unless when two or more are fastened on a chain, as hereinafter mentioned), shall never be sent to work under the charge of one soldier only.

- 11. When convicts in irons are fastened to a chain, to be marched from one place to another, or if they can, under any circumstances, be worked when so fastened, one soldier will be considered a sufficient guard for a detached party of eight convicts; but in such case, the greatest care must be taken that their irons are perfect, and that they are securely fastened to the chain. If marching without being intended to work, the convicts are to be handcuffed when fastened to the chain.
- 12. When the convicts are within the stockade, the officers will direct sentries to be posted at the wooden houses, and to be so placed as to have every part of those buildings, at all times, in view of one or other of the sentries. The convicts will be ordered to keep silence, and the sentries will turn out the guard, and the non-commissioned officer report if any noise be made within the houses at any time of day or night. Upon such report, the officer or non-commissioned officer in charge, will take the most efficacious means to restore silence, and the officer will punish any convict found transgressing. It is essential to the safe custody of the prisoners that this order be strictly attended to.
- 13. In like manner, when the convicts are at meals, he will post sufficient sentries for securing them, giving orders that the strictest silence he observed at those times; and on Saturdays, when the convicts are allowed to wash, great caution is necessary to prevent escape.
- 14. The officer will himself visit, and will direct the serjeant of the detachment to visit the guard and sentrics both by day and night, and will order the non-commissioned officers commanding guards, to note and report for trial any convict who shall neglect his work, or be guilty of any disorderly or improper conduct.
  - 15. He will have a sentry constantly mounted over the arms, and will use every precaution to prevent the convicts from making a rush on any guard or sentry near them, by keeping both at such a distance, as to preserve the free but sure use of their fire-arms.

16. In case it shall be necessary to send convicts away under escort to a colonial hospital, or to prison under committal for any heavy offence, or on any other occasion, the officer will take care that their handcuffs are well secured and attached to a marching chain before the convicts move off.

17. If a convict should escape (which, with due vigilance is hardly possible), patroles are to be immediately sent out in all directions, information is to be given to any justice of the peace or settler, in the neighbourhood, that a hue and cry may be raised, and reports are to be made by the first opportunity to the major of brigade and commanding royal engineer. The officer will further closely investigate the manner of escape, and all the circumstances connected with it, either by himself or a court of inquiry, if such can be formed, reporting the proceedings to the major of brigade. The consequence of an escape under suspicious circumstances will be made known to the detachment, by causing an abstract from general orders of 7th May, 1832, No. 106, to be read to them once a week on parade.

18. The officer in command of a guard over an ironed gang, will consider himself during the period of his charge, as always on duty, and will on no account absent himself from his post, nor suffer any one under his command so to do; nor will he allow any stranger or unauthorized person to live at or loiter near his post under any pretence whatever.

19. The officer will report his detachment to the brigade major, at Sydney, on the 1st and 15th of every month, according to a form which will be furnished. All extraordinaries will be reported by the earliest opportunity.

20. The position of the wooden houses for convicts, and the officers' and soldiers' barracks, and the whole arrangement of the stockade being established, in conformity to the instructions of the general officer commanding, no alteration is to be made without applying for leave, through the commanding royal engineer. Any damage done to the buildings by officers or men, will be charged against them, according to the regulations of the service.

21. The officer will take special care that the non-commissioned officers under his orders are fully informed of every part of these instructions that relates to their duties.

22. The orders of the commanding royal engineer are to be strictly attended to by the assistant engineers, not only when they relate to the work, but to any other particular of an officers' duty. All applications for leave of absence are to be made by these officers, through the commanding royal engineer.

Instructions (B).—1. The officer appointed assistant engineer has, as superintendent of iron gangs, the legal custody of all convicts committed to his charge, and being duly authorized by a warrant from the governor under the provisions of the 3d Will. 4, No. 3, and 8 Will. 4, No. 1, he has the power of having convicts in ironed gangs or road parties brought before him to be immediately tried, and when convicted, to be punished by the infliction of not more than 50 lashes for drunkenness, disobedience of orders, neglect of work, absconding, abusive language to his overseer, or for other disorderly or dishonest conduct.

2. He will keep a record, according to a form to be furnished to him, of all summary trials had before him, in conformity to the foregoing paragraph.

3. If the officer holds a commission of the peace he will confine his jurisdiction to the ironed gangs or road parties he has in charge, unless upon urgent occasions, when the prompt interference of a magistrate is required for the public service, or unless when specially invited to give his assistance by a justice of the peace in the neighbourhood of his station, for some special public object.

4. When any crime of too great magnitude to be dealt with by the limited powers granted under the governor's warrant, be committed by a convict under the charge of an assistant engineer, he will have the offender taken before the nearest justice. But this course is to be avoided as much as possible, and by a strict exercise of the powers given to him, the officer will, by his own authority, be enabled to keep the gangs in proper order.

5. Convicts in irons will be divided into gangs of about 80 prisoners each, and this number will occupy four wooden houses, which, with the officers' and soldiers' barracks, guard-room, store, and convicts' mess shed, form what is called a stockade, these buildings having been formerly surrounded with a stake fence, but which has been discontinued, as it is found the convicts are more securely guarded by placing sentries at the angles of the wooden houses, and leaving a space all around open to their fire.

6. With regard to the food, clothing, and extent of labour of the convicts sentenced to work in irons, the officer will strictly observe the regulations of the governor and council, 3d Will. 4, No. 3.

- 7. Escapes being most frequently effected by convicts first getting off their irons, the officer is frequently to inspect and carefully to examine the irons on each prisoner; this must be done either by himself personally, or by a non-commissioned officer, every morning when the prisoners go out to work, before quitting the stockade, and again before they are locked into their huts at night. The officer either personally, or by a non-commissioned officer in his presence, will frequently search the prisoners, and will take from them anything made of iron or other metal, or any instrument which might be used in getting off their irons, any money he may find upon them, any article of food or clothing not appointed by regulation for ironed gangs, and anything whatever which he suspects they may have obtained dishonestly. He is also carefully to examine the strength and form of all irons either in use or sent to him to be used, and will reject all he shall find insufficient, reporting all such with the cause of their insufficiency to the commanding royal engineer.
- 8. If a convict has made an attempt to escape, or the officer perceives any disposition in a convict to attempt an escape, he will provide for his safe keeping by additional irons at night, or when at work, in such manner as may seem necessary.
- 9. The officer is to inspect the huts and stockade where the convicts are confined, once a day at least, and if he finds any damage which renders the confinement less secure, he will forthwith have it repaired; or wares, or merchandize which shall or may be taken by them in satisfaction, liquidation, or payment of any debt, and to sell and convey any lands, houses, and other real property whatsoever, or any shares, goods, wares, or merchandizes which they shall or may have acquired in manner afore aid: And we do hereby further will and ordain, that the total amount of they shall or may have acquired in manner afore-aid: And we do hereby further will and ordain, that the total amount of the bills of exchange or other securities which shall be discounted by the said corporation in any one of the said colonies or settlements, and which shall have been drawn, accepted, or indorsed by any one or more of the directors, local directors, or officers for the time being of the said corporation, shall not exceed in amount one-third of all the bills of exchange and securities which for the time being shall be discounted by the said corporation in the same colony: And we do hereby direct and appoint, and our will is, that it shall be lawful for the court of directors of the said corporation twice in every year, if the state of the affairs of the said corporation will, in their opinion, safely warrant the same, to declare such dividend to and amongst the proprietors of shares in the capital for the time being of the said corporation for the then preceding half-year as shall appear to the said court of directors to be proper; but that no such dividend shall in any case be declared or paid out of the capital for the time being of the said corporation; And we do further ordain and declare, that it shall be lawful for the said corporation, from time to time to extend or increase their capital for the time being, by the creation and sale or new shares, in the manner succified and set said corporation: And we do intriner ordain and deciare, that it shall be lawful for the said corporation, from time to time to extend or increase their capital for the time being, by the creation and sale of new shares, in the manner specified and set forth in the hereinbefore-recited deed of settlement of the 2d day of June now last past; provided always, that the total amount of all the new shares to be so from time to time created and sold or allotted, shall not altogether exceed the sum of 400,0001, and that no such extension or increase of the capital of the said corporation shall be made or take place without the previous sanction and approbation in writing of the Lords Commissioners for the time being of our Treasury, from time the previous sanction and appropagation in writing of the Lords Commissioners for the time energy of our I reasury, from time to time for that purpose first had and obtained; and that at least half the amount of the increased capital shall be actually paid up before any extension of the dealings of the said corporation, in respect of such new capital, shall be commenced; and until half of such new capital shall be so paid up, the dealings and affairs of the said corporation shall be carried on in all respects as if such extension of capital had not taken place: And we do hereby further will and direct, that the directors or local directors of the said corporation do and shall from time to time appoint, in each of the colonies or settlements paid up before any extension of the dealings of the said corporation, in respect of such new capital, shall be commenced; and until nair of such new capital shall be so paid up, the dealings and affairs of the said corporation shall be carried on in all respects as if such extension of capital had not taken place: And we do hereby further will and direct, that the directors aforesaid in which any bank, branch, or establishment shall for the time being have been established, and be carried on by the said corporation, one or more proper person or persons to be the officer or officers for making out, reparing, and erifying such accounts, statements, and abstracts, as are hereinadher required to be made out and prepared and verifying such accounts, statements, and abstracts, as are hereinadher required to be made out and prepared and verified: And we do hereby further will, direct, and appoint, that the officer or officers so to be appointed for the purpose, in each of the said colonies or settlements as aforesaid, do and shall at the close of every week prepare and make up a full and correct statement or account in writing, exhibiting and showing therein the amount and nature of the debts, engagements, and liabilities, and of the assets and property, or securities of the said corporation at the close of such week, within the particular colony or settlement for which such officer or officers shall have been so appointed as aforesaid, notes of the said corporation in circulation, on the said corporation in circulation, and bearing interest; bullances due to other banks; cash deposited with the said corporation, including all sums due from them, and liabilities of the said corporation in circulation, and bearing interest; the bills and notes of the said corporation in circulation, and bearing interest; the bills and notes of the said corporation in circulation, and bearing interest; the bills and notes of the said corporation in circulation, and bearing interest; the bills and so pold and silver in bars or bullion, a authenticated by the signature as well of the chairman for the time being of the court of directors of the said corporation, as also of their principal cashier or accountant in England, and when so authenticated, one of such copies shall be forthwith submitted by the court of directors to the secretary of state for our colonies, and the other copy to the commissioners for the affairs of our treasury; and that the court of directors shall immediately afterwards cause each such general half yearly statement to be published in the London Gazette: And we do hereby also will, order, and direct, that the court of directors of the said corporation do and shall, if and whenever they shall be required so to do, either by the secretary of state for our colonies, or by the commissioners for the affairs of our treasury, produce and submit to him or them, or to such persons or officers as he or they respectively may appoint for that purpose, for his or their inspection and examination, the several colonial weekly statements or accounts advresaid, from or upon which the general half yearly statement hereinbefore required to be prepared by the court of directors in England, or the several general half yearly statement hereinbefore required to be respectively prepared and submitted to the governors of the several colonies or settlements aforesaid respectively shall or may have been respectively prepared: And we do hereby further will and declare, that the several rules, regulations, clauses, and agreements contained in the said indenture or deed of settlement of the 2d day of June now last past, or to be made in pursuance thereof, are and shall be deemed and considered to be the existing bye-laws rules, regulations, clauses, and agreements contained in the said indenture or deed of settlement of the 2d day of June now last past, or to be made in pursuance thereof, are and shall be deemed and considered to be the existing bye-laws of the said corporation, save and except in so far as any of them are or may be altered or varied by, or are or may be inconsistent or incompatible with, or repugnant to, any of the provisions of this our charter, or any of the laws or statutes of our realm, but subject nevertheless to be amended, altered, or repealed, either wholly or in part, in like manner as the laws, regulations, and provisions contained in the said indenture or deed of settlement are thereby authorized and directed to be amended, altered, or repealed: But we do hereby expressly declare it to be our royal will and pleasure, that no rule or bye-law shall, on any account or pretence whatsoever, be made by the said corporation, either under or by virtue of the said indenture or deed of settlement, or of this our charter, in opposition to the general and a forfeiture of all previous claims for indulgence. Bullock drivers, and others specially employed, will receive the allowance of tea, sugar, and tobacco, but no extra clothing, unless shoes, when required by the nature of their employment, nor any gratuity. These convicts may, however, if well conducted, he assigned to private service after a year's work with the gang, if recommended by the assistant engineer. Convict mechanics, when specially employed with the gang, will receive the same treatment as if in a bridge party.

23. All bedding, cooking utensils, and every article which may be denominated barrack furniture, used for or by the convicts, will be in charge and custody of the officer, who will be held responsible that every reasonable and practicable precaution is taken to preserve them from loss or injury.

24. Each stockade will be supplied with a large steelyard, and a set of weights and scales, of moderate size, to enable the non-commissioned officer to receive and issue the rations correctly. Proof sieves will also be furnished to each stockade, for the purpose of determining the quality of the meal supplied by the contractors. The officers will look carefully to the quality of the provisions furnished by the contractor, adopting such measures as the orders of the command prescribe for rejecting any of an unwholesome or inferior description, and replacing them by articles of a proper quality.

25. No pigs are to be kept by any person belonging to the stockade at or near the station, nor is any poultry to be allowed near the convicts' huts or soldiers' barracks. The whole space between those buildings, and between the huts and the guard room, is to be kept at all times dry, level, and clean. Where good gravel is near at hand, this space should be kept covered and neat.

26. The afternoon of each Saturday, from three o'clock in the summer, and two in the winter, is to be appropriated by the convicts in washing their shirts and cleaning their persons, to which purpose the officer will take care that the soap allowed by government is strictly appropriated.

27. One knife and fork, one pannikin, and one mess kid, will be allowed to every six convicts, and one spoon to each; these are to be issued as required at meals, special care being taken that each article is given back before the convict quits the mess shed.

28. The officer will keep a journal in which he will enter daily the proceedings and conduct of the convicts under his charge, and any occurrence herein required to be recorded, or otherwise deserving of notice.

29. He will keep all such other books, and address to the commanding royal engineer all such periodical or special reports and returns regarding the convicts in his charge, as that officer shall desire; and the commanding royal engineer will cause those books to be kept which the principal superintendent of convicts shall state to be necessary, and will transmit to that functionary those reports and returns which are required for the business of that department. All such reports and returns are to be marked by the assistant engineers at the top by the word "Convict." He will pay particular attention to the regulations respecting the assignment and delivery of convicts whose sentences to irons have expired.

30. When the principal superintendent of convicts requires any special information respecting any convict at labour on the roads or public works under charge of the commanding royal engineer, he is instructed to address that officer, stating the gang in which such convict is employed. The commanding royal engineer will make the necessary communication to the assistant engineer in whose immediate custody the convict has been placed. This channel of communication is prescribed in order to prevent any confusion that might arise by a direct correspondence between assistant engineers and the principal superintendent of convicts. The commanding royal engineer will take care that every necessary information is duly furnished to the principal superintendent of convicts, in whose office a complete history of every convict in the colony is ex-

- 31. In addition to the foregoing instructions, relating chiefly to the safe custody of the convict, and the exaction of a due portion of labour from him, the attention of the officer in charge of an iron gang is particularly called to the adoption of all such measures as shall seem most likely to effect the criminal's refor-To contribute to this important object, the officer should watch over the conduct of each individual; the most ferocious are on no account to be permitted to tyrannize over those who are comparatively more obedient and well disposed, whilst the latter are to be noticed and encouraged by commendation, and, when practicable, by reward. All indecencies of manner and language are to be repressed as observed, and if repeated, to be punished. No noise or loud talking is to be permitted when at work, or in going to or returning from it. The convicts are required to be cleanly in their persons, as well as orderly in their conduct, whether at work or in their huts; no gambling or trafficking in provisions or clothing is on any account to be permitted, whilst it will be the duty of the officer to secure to the convicts the regular issue of both. Their complaints are to be listened to and investigated. Harsh and abusive language on the part of the overseers is to be interdicted, and "a kind anxiety is to be manifested to procure for the convicts as much comfort as is consistent with their condition under the regulations of government." They are, however, never to be allowed, with a view of improving their condition, or even as a reward for good conduct, to work under a private employer. Their labour is to be exclusively appropriated to the service of the crown. It is to be incessant during the hours appointed for work, but it is never to be assigned by task, however advantageous such an arrangement might seem to the assistant engineer.
- 32. The holy scriptures, books of prayer, and works of a moral and religious character, will be placed with the officer for distribution amongst the convicts, at such times as they have leisure to peruse them. These works will be chosen with the concurrence of the clergy of their respective communions, and will be distributed for perusal accordingly; the books are to be changed when required, and taken back into store when done with; the convicts being held responsible that they are not lost or defaced whilst in their possession.
- 33. If a chaplain or catechist attend the stockade, the officer will afford him every countenance and assistance in the religious and moral instruction of the convicts. If neither attend on Sundays, the officer will cause the prayers of their respective communions to be read to the prisoners, at least once on that day, and will permit such religious instruction to be given as the pastors of those communions shall direct, to be imparted by one of their own persuasion.

- 34. For those convicts who are ignorant of letters, the establishment of a Sunday-school, under the superintendence of the officer, is strongly recommended. The payment of 2s. 6d. a week to any capable non-commissioned officer or soldier employed on this duty, will be allowed, upon the report and recommendation of the officer in charge. Books, when required for such schools, may be applied for, and will be allowed.
- 35. For the further improvement of the convicts, and as an inducement to good conduct whilst in the gang, it will be useful to introduce as perfect a system of classification as the establishment of a stockade may admit of. This is to be attempted by dividing the gang into three classes; the first being considered the lowest, and in which all prisoners are to be placed on their first reaching the stockade.
- 36. If, upon the expiration of one-third of the period for which the convict is sentenced, the officer shall consider the conduct of the prisoner to have been so industrious and orderly as to merit attention, he will name him for the second class, and will allow him as much time for airing outside the huts on Sundays and days of broken labour, as circumstances will permit, and any other similar indulgence, which shall not break in upon the order and regularity necessary to be observed in the stockade.
- 37. Upon a convict having passed a further portion of the period of his sentence, also equal to one-third of the whole, in the second class, he may be placed by the officer in the third class, and from thence recommended to the governor, through the commanding royal engineer, for such remission of the remaining portion of his sentence as the officer shall consider him to deserve.
- 38. In order to distinguish the three classes, a piece of red cloth, cut into the shape of a heart, 6 inches long by 4 wide, will be sewed on the back of the jacket of each convict of the second class of merit, and a similar distinction in yellow cloth is to be used for each convict in the third class; the convicts of the first or lowest class being left without any.
- 39. If a convict, whilst in the first class, be tried and found guilty of any offence under the colonial law for convicts, he shall not be removed to the second, until a period equal to one-third of his original sentence shall have expired from the date of such last-mentioned trial and conviction. If, whilst in the second class, a convict shall be so tried and convicted, he shall be returned to the first class, there to await another period equal to one-third of his original sentence. If, whilst in the third class, a convict shall be so tried and convicted, he shall be returned to the first class, there to serve out the residue of his original sentence.
- 40. All communication between convicts of the different classes is, as far as circumstances will permit, to be carefully prevented; this separation may easily be accomplished when at work or meals, and is to be observed in the distribution of the prisoners in the wooden houses as much as possible.
- 41. The officer is to check any intimacy between convicts of bad character, and if it be necessary, in his opinion, to separate the parties, he will recommend to the commanding royal engineer the removal of such of them to another gang as may effect this object.
- Instructions (C).—1. The foregoing instructions, marked (A) and (B), have been prepared for the service of ironed gangs. They are, however, to be applied, as far as may be practicable, and is not otherwise provided by regulation, to those convict gangs who labour for the public out of irons. These are,—1. Convicts sent out from England under instructions from the Secretary of State to be kept to labour for certain periods on the public works, and are called in the colony second class men. 2. Road parties. 3. Bridge parties. The two last are composed of convicts assigned to the commanding royal engineer. The former to work on such roads as require constant repair, chiefly in the neighbourhood of Sydney; and the latter to construct and repair bridges.
- 2. The second class, convicts out of irons, are to wear parti-coloured clothing, and will be kept in a stockade or other convenient place under the charge of an assistant engineer, under treatment similar to that directed for ironed gangs. But the period of their public labour is to be thus regulated: if under sentence for seven years, they are to work two; if for 14 years, to work three; if for life, to work four. After which periods respectively, if their conduct has been good, they are to be recommended by the assistant engineer for assignment. Whilst on public labour, they are to be subject to the same punishment for misconduct as convicts working in irons.
- 3. The period for which these convicts are to labour, being thus of considerable duration, it will be convenient that the assistant engineer divide them into three classes, according to their conduct, upon the system detailed for the ironed gangs. To the well-conducted men in the third class, the reward of an earlier assignment to private service may be held out as an object of hope and encouragement.
- 4. When at work, the second class men are not to be placed under the guard of sentries, but military overseers will have charge of them and enforce their labour. These overseers are to carry their side arms and pistols in a waist-belt, and are required to keep a strict watch to prevent escape from the work, or going to or returning from it.
- 5. When returned to the stockade, this description of convict labourers will be kept either under military guard, as directed for ironed gangs, or will be locked up under military overseers, as detailed in the following paragraph, according as the order from head quarters may require.
- 6. The road and bridge parties will be kept to labour under military overseers, and will be locked up at night-fall in their huts or barrack, under charge of one of the overseers. They are to wear the ordinary slop clothing in which they come from Hyde Park barracks, and are not to be allowed to change it for any other kind. These parties will usually consist of from 20 to 40 convicts, and will be under the immediate charge of a non-commissioned officer and three military overseers, two of whom will be constantly out at work during the day with the gang, and one will be on duty every night to prevent escapes or disorder. They will carry the arms and use all the precautions directed in paragraph 4. These gangs will be visited by an assistant engineer, who will exercise the same control over them as over an ironed gang, punishing corporally, when required, the idle or refractory.

- 7. Convicts in the road parties, and those in the bridge parties who are rated as labourers, may be assigned to private service after six months' public work, if their conduct has been good. The mechanics in bridge parties are not to be assigned, but they are, if well conducted, to receive allowances of tea, sugar, and tobacco, according to a fixed scale, to wear blue cloth jackets, and to be returned for a ticket of leave as soon as it becomes due.
- 8. Cooks, messmen, and wardsmen for these parties, and for the second class convicts out of irons, will be chosen by the officer in charge from their own body, and those persons will receive the same allowances as the stockade servants of ironed gangs, but no extra clothing or gratuity. They will be assigned to private service when it comes to their turn, in the same manner as others of their class. If a scourger be attached to any of these parties, he will be paid at the same rate as a scourger to an ironed gang. Bullock drivers and others, and attached to mechanics, will be treated in these parties as directed for ironed gangs.

9. The several parties will be supplied with books, receive religious instruction, and attend prayers as required in ironed gangs, and the same attention is to be paid to their conduct by those who have charge of them.

10. Though not escorted or guarded whilst at work by a regular guard, these parties are, nevertheless, under military charge, and the greatest vigilance is to be used by the several non-commissioned officers and privates who are over them, to prevent escapes either whilst at work or in quarters. The assistant engineer who has to visit these parties, will not fail to report any non-commissioned officer or soldier who relaxes in the slightest degree from any particular of his duty over these parties, and he will take care that this instruction is made known to all concerned.

Pay and Allowances of Assistant-Engineers, and of Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers employed on Roads or Public Works—1. The officer appointed assistant-engineer, will receive the extra pay of 6s. per day whilst employed, and forage for one horse, upon the usual certificate of being kept and effective for the public service.

2. The officer will have a wooden house or hut constructed for his occupation at the stockade where he is stationed, but he is to provide his own furniture of every description.

3. On proceeding to the stockade, and in case of any subsequent movement, carriage will be provided for the officer's furniture, as well as his baggage, the latter being regulated by the orders of the command.

4. One non-commissioned officer will be employed as constable and turnkey at each stockade, with the extra pay of 1s. per day, and overseers appointed by the commanding royal engineer will be allowed 1s. a day to each non-commissioned officer, and 6d to a private. Steady, active, and intelligent men are to be selected for this duty, and no more employed than are absolutely necessary for carrying on the work with efficiency.

 The assistant-engineer will be allowed to employ a steady non commissioned officer or soldier as clerk, with a pay of 6d. per day.

Instructions (D.)—Instructions for Delivery and Assignment of Convicts on the expiration of their Sentence to Labour.—Assistant engineers are required to transmit to the principal superintendent of convicts through the commanding royal engineer, one month at the least previous to the expiration of their sentence to irons, the names and ships of all convicts under their charge, eligible to assignment upon such expiration. In like manner they will transmit a list of the 2d class convicts or labourers in road or bridge parties one month at the least previous to the period at which their labour on the public works will expire. These lists are to be made upon the 1st and 15th of every month, and despatched on the post day next ensuing, care being taken that at least one month's notice be thus given to the principal superintendent of convicts of the day at which any of these convicts become eligible for assignment.

2. In those cases where the warrant under which a convict in irons is detained, directs that he be returned to his master at the expiration of his sentence, one month's clear notice of the day of expiration is to be conveyed in a letter from the officer in charge and despatched to the master by the post. Upon the expiration the convict is to be delivered to his master on demand, or to his order on its being presented; but if not claimed within 10 clear days from the expiration of sentence, or before the first despatch of post for Sydney; after such 10 days, his name is to be submitted in a list for assignment, stating the name of the master by whom he has not been claimed.

3. Convicts, whose names have been submitted in any list for assignment, are not upon any account to be discharged until the return lists, and then only to the assignees named in such lists, or to their order. If the convicts so assigned shall not be claimed within 14 days after the receipt of the list, or before the first despatch of the post for Sydney after such 14 days, their names are to be submitted again in a fresh list, in which the failure of the assignees to claim is to be notified, and the convict kept in custody until the return of the list with a new assignment.

4. Though it shall be required to assign but one convict, his name is to be duly returned on a list, that his assignment may not be unnecessarily delayed.

5. Whenever it shall happen that the assistant-engineer desires to have as a stockade servant any convict becoming or become assignable by the expiration of his sentence or period of labour, he is not to note his desire on the list, but to make application by letter to the commanding royal engineer, who will forward it to the principal superintendent of the convicts if he thinks it expedient.

Memorandum. Head Quarters, Sydney, 20 October 1837.

1. The lieutenant-general commanding, having reason to believe that the permission sometimes granted to convicts employed on public works, to prepare plaited straw and do other light works for their own benefit during the hours of rest from labour, has been much abused, and that dishonest and disorderly practices have resulted, is pleased to direct that the commanding royal engineer give strict orders to the several assistant-engineers and others under his command, in charge of convict gangs, to forbid, from the receipt of this memorandum, the use of any description of work by gangs or convicts attached to them, except that which is required of them for the public service. The assistant-engineers are to be desired to promulgate this order to the gangs, and to call before them and punish any convict who shall, after such notice, be found guilty of a breach of it, reporting every such case in their weekly return to the commanding royal engineer, for the lieutenant-general's information.

- 2. If any vacant time be at the disposal of convicts employed on public works, the assistant engineer will endeavour to obtain their attendance at the school; he is authorized by regulation to establish, or will direct their attention to, and put into their hands, the books with which it is ordered that every gang be provided.
- 3. Commanding royal engineer will further please to instruct the assistant engineers to use their best endeavours, and to direct the non-commissioned officers and military overseers to prevent any convict in a gang or attached to it from being employed for the service of private individuals in any way whatever. Upon the discovery of any such offence, they are to report, for the Lieutenant-general's information, the name of the person for whom or by whom the convict has been employed, that means may be taken for withdrawing from such person any convict assigned to him.
- 4. If any non-commissioned officer on detachment over convict gangs, or any military overseer, shall be found abetting or conniving at the employment of any convict by a private person, every such non-commissioned officer and overseer will be brought before a court martial for disobedience of this order.
- 5. It being understood that non-commissioned officers and privates at several of the stockades have supplied convicts with tea, sugar, tobacco, &c. contrary to orders, the commanding royal engineer will instruct the assistant engineers to assemble their detachments, and caution them against holding any traffic whatever with convicts, giving them clearly to understand that, if detected, they will be brought before a court martial for disobedience of orders.

By command of his Excellency,

Lieut.-general Sir Richard Bourke, K. C. B. W. Hunter, Captain, Acting Major of Brigade.

To the Commanding Royal Engineer,

&c. &c. &c.

MEMORANDUM on the subject of Employment of Convicts on the Roads, Fortifications, &c., in New South Wales, by Major Barney, Commanding Royal Engineers, Nov. 2, 1837.

The imperfect state of the roads and bridges offer very important and extensive openings for the employment of convicts.

Of three great lines of road already traced to the extent of nearly 1,000 miles, not one-tenth of that distance can be said to be even formed; the bridges, with few exceptions, are of a temporary character, and several of large dimensions are urgently required. In wet seasons the roads are barely practicable. I am not aware of any important work upon which a large body of convicts could be more advantageously employed than in the completion of the roads and bridges.

By the September return, the following number of prisoners were employed in the colonial engineer's department, under my direction: Roads and bridges, 1,207; Breakwater, 184; Liverpool Dam, 79; total, 1,470. In reference to this number, I consider it totally inadequate to the required work; for instance, on the northern road there are two stockades, when complete, affording accommodation for 160 men in irons, the line embracing nearly 200 miles of traced road, and not 10 miles completed. This remark will nearly apply to the south and western roads. It is to be imagined that the public cannot for many years be expected to possess sufficient labour to enter generally into contracts for making and repairing roads or constructing bridges. Taking the importance of the subject into consideration, I cannot too strongly recommend the employment of a large body of prisoners on these works. I am of opinion that 3,000 are necessary to effective progress; with this number, the three principal roads would not be completed, to the extent now traced, in less than 10 years, within which period I do not anticipate much road-work will be done under contract by free labour.

It is necessary to observe that 3,000 prisoners could not be securely worked with the existing strength of military force in this country.

Independent of the roads, there are other colonial works, such as the breakwater at Newcastle, the basin at Illawarra, the projected quay at Sydney, which are of much importance, and under the deficiency of free labour and capital, can only be accomplished by prisoners. As the coast becomes occupied this description of work will multiply; the nature of the coasts render such necessary; probably affording employment for 500 convicts for 10 years.

As regards the probable labour required upon engineer works, for which convicts would be available: the harbour of Sydney and defence of the town offer the means of employing a considerable number. A series of batteries between Sydney Heads and the Cove are necessary to the defence of the channels; a work of defence on the site of Fort Philip is also an important object, and if approved, should be carried on with all possible despatch; 300 men may be employed on these works for four or five years.

Taking projected works into consideration, both government and colonial, I am satisfied that 4,000 convicts may be most profitably employed for a period of 10 years, and that no more beneficial employment for the public can possibly be devised.

The above memorandum applies solely to the works of the Ordnance, Treasury, and Colonial Engineer Department.

Regulations for the assignment of Male Convict Servants. Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 9 May 1835.—The Governor is pleased to direct that the following regulations be strictly observed in the assignment of prisoners of the Crown to private service, from the date at which they come into operation, from which time they will supersede all regulations now in force.

His excellency has endeavoured, by means of these rules, to introduce a fixed standard of qualification according to which convict labour is to be obtained, and to render the colonists the principal instruments in securing for themselves a just distribution of that labour, by the publicity which will be given to all the arrangements relating to assignment. It will be open to the settlers in their several districts to attend the special sessions when application is made for assigned servants, and to give to the justices such information as they possess, with respect to the quantity of land held by an applicant, his eligibility from character and habits to receive, and his means of maintaining, convict servants. Such information given with an honest intention, upon sure knowledge, will at all times be thankfully received by the magistrates, as enabling them to prepare their certificates with the greatest certainty of their being correct.

The Governor has only to add, that as much pains have been bestowed in framing these regulations to meet the circumstances of all descriptions of Colonists, and to operate for their general benefit, no departure from their plain meaning will, in any instance, be permitted.

Justices of the peace will perceive that, after the introduction of these regulations, assigned servants will no longer be returned to Government, or sent to road parties by their order. The 29th Regulation points out in what manner masters are to return their assigned servants whom they do not wish to retain in their service, and the duty of the justice in such cases. It is hardly necessary to observe that this regulation in no way limits the power of magistrates to punish assigned servants by imprisonment or otherwise, for offences of which they shall be convicted, upon the complaint of their masters. Nor, on the other hand, does it impede the admission of complaints of servants against masters, nor the representation of the magistrate to Government on the subject, when it is thought right to recommend the removal of the servant in consequence of the neglect or ill-treatment of the master. But the actual removal, unless under legal sentence, to goal, is not to take place but by order of the Governor, communicated through the principal superintendent of convicts.

No further applications for convict servants of any description will be received by the Board of Assignment from the present date, except in conformity to these regulations.

Applications for convict labourers and mechanics assignable in the country are to be made at the special sessions, to be holden in September next, as directed in Rule 4. Newly arrived emigrants, however, becoming qualified by the acquisition of land, may apply immediately to the petty sessions, or magistrate acting singly for the district in which their land is situated, in manner prescribed in Rule 13; but all such applications must be renewed in September next, and at the special petty sessions, to be holden in September in each year.

Applications for domestic servants, and for mechanics assignable to masters exercising the same trades, may be made at any time from this date, as directed in Rule 18, to the petty sessions, or magistrate acting singly for the district in which the applicant shall reside.

Applications for convict labourers now registered by the Board will be complied with, as far as practicable, until the period at which the list under these regulations shall be prepared, when the registries will be cancelled; but applications for mechanics mentioned in Rule 3, and assignable in the country, will, if renewed in September next, and annually at the special sessions, take precedence, as specified in article 12. All other applications now registered by the Board will be cancelled from the present date.

The particular attention of applicants is directed to that part of Article 4, which requires them to furnish a nominal return of the convicts in their service, with their ships and trade or calling, to the special sessions to be held in September. The Board of Assignment will not be authorized to entertain any application which shall not contain all such particulars, or shall be otherwise incomplete or informal according to the terms of these regulations. Any omission in this respect will subject the applicant to the delay of a twelve-month, until the special sessions of the ensuing year shall enable him fully to comply with the regulations.

By his Excellency's command,

Alexander M'Leay.

Regulations.—1. All convict servants, with the exception of those professing the particular trades hereinafter mentioned, will be assigned to masters in proportion to the land they occupy, under grant, or promise of grant from the Crown, or through purchase, or lease of such land, such lease being for a term of which not less than three years remain unexpired; provided that no person receive convicts in respect of land upon which he shall not reside, or maintain a free or ticket-of-leave overseer.

2. Convicts will be assigned to persons holding under any of the foregoing tenures, according to the following scale; viz.—160 acres, 1 man; 320 acres, 2 men; 480 acres, 3 men; 640 acres, 4 men.

And one man additional for every 40 acres, not exceeding 640 acres, under plough or hoe culture.

For every additional 160 acres of any quantity not exceeding 1,280, 1 man.

For every additional 640 acres, 2 men.

Provided that no one person shall in the whole have more than 70 assigned convicts in his service at any one time.

Persons holding under any of the foregoing tenures less than 160 acres will be allowed convict labourers but not mechanics, for land under plough or hoe culture, in the following proportions:—20 acres, 1 man; 40 acres, 2 men; 80 acres, 3 men; 120 acres, 4 men.

3. The foregoing scale has reference to labourers only; but the services of mechanics being of greater value, they will be estimated according to the following scale:—A blacksmith, as 3 labourers; bricklayer, as 3; carpenter, as 3; cooper, as 3; gardener, as 3; harness-maker, as 2; millwright, as 3; nailer, as 2; plasterer, as 2; stone-mason, as 3; stone-cutter, as 3; sawyer, as 3; shoemaker, as 2; tailor, as 2; tanner, as 2; tobacconist, as 2; wheelwright, as 3; woolsorter, as 2.

No mechanic of the above description will be assigned in the towns of Sydney, Parramatta, Windsor and Liverpool; nor will any of the class of labourers be assigned within the limits of the town of Sydney. It is to be understood that all mechanics received under the late regulations will be rated according to the scale here laid down.

4. Persons residing in the colony, or their agents, when the principals are non-resident, desirous of obtaining convict servants of the foregoing descriptions, shall apply in the form hercunto annexed, marked (A.) at the special sessions, to be held as hereinafter mentioned for the district in which they reside, for the whole number of convict servants they require, giving in a return of the whole quantity of land in respect of which they are entitled, and a nominal list of all the convicts in their service, with the names of their ships, and their respective trades or callings; and if possessed of land in other districts, requiring their overseers to appear at the sessions of their respective districts, and give in a return of such land, and a nominal list prepared as aforesaid of the assigned convicts serving thereon, in the form marked (B). Such special sessions shall be held annually, and shall consist of not less than two magistrates in every district in which petty sessions are established; and in places in which there are no petty sessions, but wherein a justice of the peace acts singly, of that justice, assisted by two landholders, to be named for that purpose by the governor.

5. Every such sessions shall be held annually, on the first Monday in the month of September, and on so many subsequent days as may be necessary for the purpose of receiving, investigating, and reporting upon all applications for convict servants which shall be made to them. The report of the sessions shall be annexed to the application, and forwarded in original to the board for the assignment of convict servants in Sydney, on or before the first day of October then next ensuing.

6. It shall be the duty of the sessions to inquire into the correctness of the facts stated in each application. requiring such evidence thereof as to them shall seem proper, and they shall in no case recommend the claim of any applicant unless perfectly satisfied of the truth of the statements upon which the application is founded.

- 7. All applications shall be presented to the sessions by the applicant, or by his agent, or by an overseer residing on the land in respect of which he applies, between the hours of ten o'clock in the morning and four in the afternoon on the days for holding such sessions, and all proceedings had, and every decision pronounced thereon, shall be had and pronounced in open court.
- 8. The applications of magistrates and others forming the special sessions shall be presented, investigated and reported upon by them in the same manner as other applications: provided only, that no applicant shall vote in his own case, and that the report on such claim shall be sufficient, notwithstanding that the number of members may be reduced by his withdrawal below that required in other cases.
- 9. It will be the duty of the board of assignment upon receipt of the applications from the sessions every year, to prepare an abstract in alphabetical order of the applications from each district, according to the form hereunto annexed, marked (C.) and to transmit the same to the magistrates of the districts from which the applications proceeded, for the purpose of being by them posted upon the court-house, in order to give due. publicity to the statements of the parties, and the decisions thereon.
- 10. The board will also prepare an alphabetical list of the applicants for the ensuing year, containing the aggregate quantity of land (from whatever district returned) occupied by the applicant, the number of servants actually assigned to him, and the number to which he is entitled, which will be published annually for general information.
- 11. The mode of assignment of convict labourers by the board shall be as follows: a list of unemployed labourers, numbered from the first on the list to the last, being furnished to the board by the principal superintendent of convicts, a set of these numbers shall be put into a box, and the first applicant on the list of applicants shall obtain the convict whose number is first drawn, and so on, until the applicants entitled to one or more labourers are supplied with one; the same proceeding shall be then adopted for the assignment of a second labourer to those applicants who are entitled to two or more, and so on until the whole number of applicants be fully supplied: provided, however, that whenever any such list of labourers shall be exhausted by assignment, the board shall recommence assignment from any new list furnished by the principal superintendent of convicts, with the individual standing upon the list of applicants next to the person last supplied; and shall recommence in every year upon the new annual alphabetical list at the name immediately following that at which they left off in the list of the preceding year.
- 12. Mechanics will be assigned according to the order in which the applicants stand by priority of application upon the present lists, provided they be qualified and apply at the special sesssions under these regu-The board of assignment will add annually, in alphabetical order, to the lists of applicants for each particular trade the names of those who apply at the special sessions, who will be supplied in the order in which they shall thus stand. It is, however, to be distinctly understood, that all applications for mechanics, as well as for other convict servants, must be renewed annually, or otherwise the names of the applicants will not be retained on the lists, as they will be considered to have no longer a desire to receive a mechanic of the description previously applied for; and any subsequent applications will only take priority in the order in which they shall be made. It must also be understood, that not more than one mechanic of the same trade or calling will be assigned to any individual, nor will an application for such person be entered on the list, so long as such mechanic shall remain in his service.
- 13. Any person acquiring property in land for the first time, and being otherwise qualified, shall be immediately supplied by the board from the next list of convicts for assignment, furnished by the principal superintendent of convicts, with the convict labourers (not exceeding six in number) to which such land shall entitle him, and with one mechanic of any trade assignable in the country, when such mechanic shall be at the disposal of the board, on his making application, according to the form marked (D.), to the petty sessions, or if there be no petty sessions, to the magistrate acting singly for the district in which his land is situated, who shall immediately forward the same to the board of assignment with the report thereon; his name shall then be placed on the alphabetical list to take his turn for the residue (if any) of the servants to which he may be entitled, as other applicants.
- 14. Any person disposing by sale, lease or surrender of the occupation of any land, in respect of which he has obtained convict servants, shall give notice to the petty sessions, or magistrate acting singly for the district in which such land is situated, of such change of occupation, giving in at the same time a nominal list of all the assigned servants then in his employ; and if he shall have become disqualified to retain that number by reason of the diminution of his land, but is still entitled to retain a part, he will distinguish by their names and descriptions those whom he is most desirous of retaining; the bench, after recording such notice, shall forward it to the board of assignment in Sydney, who will thereupon proceed to ascertain what number of assigned servants such person is qualified to hold, and will decide upon his application accordingly.

15. If the person to whom such land shall be disposed of as aforesaid shall be desirous of obtaining any servants rendered disposable by such alienation, he shall apply to the petty sessions, or if there be no petty sessions, to the magistrate acting singly for the district in which the land is situated, according to the form annexed, marked (D.), who shall take his application into consideration, and forward it, with a report thereon, to the board of assignment; and upon receipt thereof the board shall proceed to assign so many of the convicts so becoming disposable as the applicant shall be qualified to receive, and shall report such assignment to the principal superintendent of convicts. Until such assignment be completed, and intimated to the master to whom the servants were first assigned, he will be held responsible to the government for their maintenance and control.

16. The following descriptions of mechanics will be assigned to persons exercising the trades which those mechanics have required, residing in any part of the colony, and without reference to any qualification of land:

Bakers, boat-builders, bookbinders, braziers, brewers, candle-makers, cloth-workers, comb-makers, compositors, engravers, farriers, gunsmiths, hatters, malsters, painters, plumbers and glaziers, printers, pressmen, pumpmakers, shipwrights, soap-boilers, tinmen, weavers, whitesmiths, and such other mechanics, not being included in the list of those assignable in the country, as may be applied for by persons exercising their trades.

17. Householders, residing in any part of the colony, without reference to landed qualification, will also be entitled to receive domestic servants of the following description, viz. Cooks, coachmen, footmen, grooms.

The principal superintendent of convicts is charged to take particular care in returning convicts of this description to ascertain that they actually held such employment previously to their transportation. If there be any doubt whatever of the fact, the convicts are to be returned as common labourers.

18. Applications for mechanics assignable to masters of the same trade, and for domestic servants, are to be made according to the annexed Form, marked (E.), to the petty sessions, or if there be no petty sessions, to the magistrate acting singly for the district in which the applicant resides, who shall immediately forward the same to the Board of Assignment, with report thereon. The Board of Assignment will, from time to time, on receipt of such applications, add the names of the parties to the list of applicants for mechanics and domestic servants of the description applied for, and will assign them according to the order in which the applicant may stand by priority of application on such list, giving the same preference to those on the present lists who apply and are qualified under these regulations, as in the case of mechanics assignable in the country.

19. Mechanics not applied for under the foregoing rules will be assigned in the country as labourers, as well as any of the tradesmen or mechanics contained in those lists for whom there shall be no application.

20. The sessions, or magistrate, as the case may be, shall not recommend as assignee for convict servants of any description any person who is not free, of good character, capable of maintaining the servants applied for, and to whose care and management they may not in their or his opinion be safely entrusted. The strictest attention is particularly enjoined to this rule, as the moral improvement of the convict population so much depends on its careful observation.

21. The board shall assign the labourers, mechanics and domestic servants due to every applicant in the order in which he stands on the list, such applicant not being at liberty to defer his turn, without losing it altogether.

22. Any person losing the services of a convict servant by his obtaining a ticket of leave, or his becoming free, shall, on its being notified in the government gazette, be immediately supplied, on application to the board, with a convict servant in lieu; and if such convict receives a ticket of leave be a mechanic, he shall receive the number of labourers to which such mechanic is estimated as equivalent; provided that he be not already fully supplied by assignments made previously to the publication of these regulations.

23. The principal superintendent of convicts shall, from time to time, furnish in duplicate to the board of assignment a list of all convicts assignable, classified in the manner in which they are hereinbefore distinguished. The board will insert in such lists, opposite to the names of the convicts, the names of the parties to whom they are to be assigned, and after signing, shall forward them with as little delay as possible to the colonial secretary, to be laid before the governor for approval. When approved, the original will be returned to the board to be kept as a record in their office; and the duplicate will be transmitted to the principal superintendent of convicts, in order that he may give immediate notice to the several assignees, and distribute the convicts therein named accordingly.

24. Any person who shall neglect for the space of seven days to take away his assigned servant, after notice directed to him or his agent, at the place in Sydney set forth in his application, and transmitted through the general post-office, shall forfeit his turn, and the name of the servant assigned shall be returned by the principal superintendent of convicts in the next list sent to the board for assignment.

25. Convicts being assigned as mechanics may be lent by one master to another in the same district, for any period not exceeding three months, upon permission granted by the petty sessions, or if there be no petty sessions, by the magistrate acting singly for such district, on a written application by both parties, which shall be recorded by such sessions or magistrate, and immediately reported to the principal superintendent of convicts. As such loan is intended for the general benefit of the district, without, at the same time, depriving the original assignee of the services of the mechanic when required, any assignee who shall be discovered to have granted such mechanic on loan for a pecuniary or other valuable consideration will be immediately deprived of the services of that convict, and declared incapable of receiving any in future. Convict labourers will also be permitted to be lent by one master to another duly qualified under these regulations, with the written sanction of the nearest bench or magistrate acting singly, during the months of harvest only.

- 26. Any person who shall employ a convict belonging to a road party, or otherwise in the service of government, shall be immediately deprived of all his assigned servants, and considered ineligible as an assignee
- 27. No convict assigned under these regulations (those specially assignable in towns excepted) shall be permitted to remain within the limits of the town of Sydney, for more than one week at any one time, or for more than three weeks in any year, upon pain of such servants being withdrawn, and the assignee considered incapable of receiving convict servants in future
- 28. No application specially made for any convict by name, or in any other than the present printed forms, shall be received either by the special or petty sessions, or magistrate, or by the Board of Assignment.
- 29. Any person desirous of returning his servant to government shall give notice in the form hereunto annexed, marked (F.), to the petty sessions, or to the magistrate acting singly for the district in which such person resides, who shall inquire the cause of such intention on the part of the assignee, and report to the principal superintendent of convicts if in their or his opinion the convict so returned is a proper person to be re-assigned within the district, or whether it be expedient that he be removed to any other district for assignment, or whether he be totally unfit for private service, and for what cause. The principal superintendent of convicts, upon receiving such report, shall, if it be recommended that the convict be re-assigned, include his name in the next list for assignment, specifying the district in which he is to be assigned, and the board will assign such convict to the person next on the alphabetical list for an assigned servant within such district. The original assignee shall retain the convict in his service until he shall have notice from the principal superintendent of convicts in what manner he is to be disposed of. Any master failing so to keep and to maintain his convict servant, will be deprived of all those in his service, and deemed ineligible to receive any in future. A similar arrangement will take place when convicts become disposable for assignment from the public works or other government employ.
- 30. The magistrates of petty sessions, and magistrates acting singly, are requested to report to the assignment board when any alienation of land within their district comes to their knowledge, as well as any breach of these regulations in respect of which they may adjudicate.
- 31. If it shall at any time be made to appear to the governor that any application made to the sessions, or to a magistrate acting singly, contains a false statement, with a view to obtain convict servants, any servant so obtained, as well as all others assigned to the applicant's service, shall be withdrawn, and the applicant considered incapable of receiving convict servants in future.
- 32. In cases where parties have received convict servants under formal regulations, although not qualified to hold any under the present, they will be allowed to retain those servants until removed by casualty or regulation; those masters also who have received a greater number of assigned servants than they will be hereby entitled to may in like manner retain them; and when the number shall hereafter fall below that to which their land entitles them under these regulations, they will be supplied in their turn as other applicants.
- 33. If it shall at any time appear to the governor, from an inspection of the books of assignment, that a larger supply of convict labour can be appropriated to private service, a supplementary scale, or an amendment of the present will be promulgated.
- 34. Convict boys under 16 years of age will continue to be assigned under the regulations contained in the government notice, dated 18th March 1833, but will not be considered in satisfaction of the claims of applicants under these regulations.

(F.) Form of Application for the Return of Male Convicts.

To the Magistrate for the District of

I have to request that the convict named in the margin, now in my assigned service, may be returned to Government, because [here insert the reason for his return.]

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,

[Signature of Assignee, or his Overseer.]

The bench will here state whether they recommend the convict to be re-assigned in the same district, or whether it is expedient to remove him to another district for assignment, or if he be totally unfit for private service, and the cause; and will forward this application, after having registered it, to the principal superintendent of convicts.

N. B. The convict is to remain in the service of the applicant until he shall have notice from the principal superintendent of convicts how he is to be disposed of.

Extracts of a Despatch from Governor Sir Richard Bourke, K. C. B., to Lord Glenelg, dated Government House, Sydney, 29th December, 1836.

"In several despatches which I have had the honour to address to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, on the condition and treatment of convicts in New South Wales, and more particularly in those named in the margin, I have represented the imperfect organization and discreditable appearance and behaviour of the gangs out of irons which I found established throughout the colony in great numbers as working parties on the roads. From want of legal power, and of adequate means to enforce that which the law permits, I was never able to bring these parties under such efficient superintendence as should at once control their lawless and vagrant disposition, and obtain for the colonists a fair proportion of useful labour. On this account I stated my desire to abolish those parties whenever I could make other arrangements for obtaining work on the roads.

"That arrangement I commenced, as reported in my despatch of 3d November, 1832, No. 114, by the formation of iron gangs, superintended by military officers (an employment of which General Lord Hill was pleased to approve) in all matters connected with their custody and discipline. By the change in the colonial criminal law affecting convicts, which I introduced in 1832, I contemplated a considerable accession of workmen to these gangs, by checking the improvident transportation of labourers to penal settlements. This law, amongst other good which it has done, has effected that which I thus proposed; and whilst the penal station of Moreton Bay has been diminished by nearly three-fourths of its former numbers, the gangs working in irons within the colony, for the great benefit of the settlers, have been augmented in the same proportion. There are now about 1,000 convicts in irons, divided into 16 gangs, working under the control of military officers, under sentences to labour varying from one to three years. Their labour is as efficient as any forced labour can ever be, and without tyranny or cruelty their discipline, submission and safe custody are fully secured. Escapes are very rare, and corporal punishment not so frequent as from the previous bad habits of these criminals might be supposed necessary. Such measures for their moral reformation and mental improvement as circumstances permit are not neglected. The Scriptures and useful books are placed in their hands, and in some of the gangs schools have been established, and are superintended by the officers in charge. I have great pleasure in recording the very meritorious conduct, in this and every other respect, of many of the officers whom I have employed on this duty.

"Such being the state of the ironed gangs, both as to discipline and numbers, I have determined to reduce the road parties from the first proximo, leaving no gangs on the roads but those under military superintendence. Hitherto the work, whether of gangs, in or out of irons, has been nominally at least, directed by overseers named by the surveyor general, and inspected by the officers of that department. It has happened, however, that in many cases the voluntary attentions of the military superintendents of ironed gaigs have done more for the speedy improvement of the roads than the paid services of the civil overseers and surveyors; I have therefore thought it expedient at once to reduce, along with the road parties, the overseers and inspectors to whom I allude, and to transfer the charge of constructing and repairing the roads and bridges from the surveyor-general to the commanding royal engineer. The military officers will thus become assistant engineers, and continue their very useful employment under that title without additional pay or allowance. They will receive their instructions from and report to the commanding royal engineer for my information, and thus a perfect unity of operation will be obtained, the want of which under the former system was occasionally, though not frequently, experienced."

"The work required within the town of Sydney I propose to leave, as at present, under the immediate direction of the town surveyor, an active and very intelligent officer, who has given great and general satisfaction. I propose that he shall report directly to the Government, until the time arrives at which the people of Sydney can be induced to take the management of their municipal concerns into their own hands."

⁽a) From 1808, inclusive, the expenditure includes the cost of medicines, &c.; the charges for which prior to that year were defrayed out of the army extras.

- (b) By a communication from the Treasury, dated 10th June, 1813, it appears that issues of staff pay and contingencies were made in New South Wales in 1812; but no payment was made under the authority of the secretary of war until 1815. It is presumed, therefore, that the expenditure for staff services in New South Wales for the period prior to 1815, was defrayed under the special directions of the lords commissioners of the treasury.
- (c) A corps of veteran companies appears to have been formed in New South Wales in 1825; but as the expense thereof was not provided for in the estimates for ordinary services, nor any accounts rendered to the war office prior to 1828, the charges incurred for the years 1825, 1826 and 1827, cannot be stated.
- (d) Including the charge for one company of the staff corps, to defray the expenses of which, the sums of 2694l. 16s. 3d., and 2694l. 16s. 3d. were paid out of the revenues of New South Wales.

Y.-WOOL OF AUSTRAL-ASIA.

[As the wool trade of Anstral-Asia is a subject of national importance, the following official documents shewing its commencement deserve being placed on record.]

Statement of the improvement and progress of the breed of fine woolled sheep in New South Wales.—The samples of wool brought from New South Wales having excited the particular attention of the merchants and principal English manufacturers, Captain Macarthur considers it his duty respectfully to represent to his Majesty's ministers, that he has found, from an experience of many years, the climate of New South Wales peculiarly adapted to the increase of fine woolled sheep; and that, from the unlimited extent of luxuriant pastures with which that country abounds, millions of those valuable animals may be raised in a few years, with but little other expence than the hire of a few shepherds.

The specimens of wool that Captain Macarthur has with him have been inspected by the best judges of wool in this kingdom, and they are of opinion that it possesses a softness superior to many of the wools of Spain; and that it certainly is equal, in every valuable property, to the very best that is to be obtained from thence.

Captain Macarthur being persuaded that the propagation of those animals would be of the utmost consequence to this country, procured, in 1797, three rams and five ewes; and he has since had the satisfaction to see them rapidly increase, their fleeces augment in weight, and the wool very visibly improve in quality. When Captain Macarthur left Port Jackson in 1801, the heaviest fleece that had then been shorn weighed only 34jbs., but he has received reports of 1802, from which be learns that the fleeces of his sheep were increased to 5lbs. each; (in the grease the average weight of the fleeces of fine woolled sheep in New South Wales, when washed, is 24jbs.) and that the wool is finer and softer than the wool of the preceding year. The fleece of one of the sheep originally imported from the Cape of Good Hope has been valued here at 4s. 6d. per lb., and a fleece of the same kind bred in New South Wales, is estimated at 6s. per lb.

Being once in the possession of this valuable breed, and having ascertained that they improved in that climate, he became anxious to extend them as much as possible; he therefore crossed all the mixed bred ewes of which his flocks were composed with Spanish rams. The lambs produced from this cross were much improved: but when they were again crossed the change far exceeded his most sanguine expectations. In four crosses, he is of opinion, no distinction will be perceptible between the pure and the mixed breed. As a proof of the extraordinary and rapid improvement of his flocks, Captain Macarthur has exhibited the flects of a coarse woolled ewe, that has been valued at 9d. per lb., and the flocks, Captain Macarthur has exhibited the fleece of a coarse woolled ewe, that has been valued at gd per lb., and the fleece of her lamb, begotten by a Spanish ram, which is allowed to be worth 3s. per lb.

Captain Macarthur has now about 4000 sheep, amongst which there are no rams but of the Spanish breed. He calculates they will, with proper care, double themselves every two years and a half; and that in 20 years they will be so increased as to produce as much fine wool as is now imported from Spain and other countries, at an annual expense of 1,800,000l. sterling. To make the principle perfectly plain upon which Captain Macarthur founds this expectation, he begs to state that half his flock has been raised from 30 ewes, purchased in 1793, out of a ship from India, and from about eight or ten Spanish and Irish sheep, purchased since. The other half of his flock were obtained in 1801 by purchases from an officer who had raised them in the same time, and from about the same number of ewes that Captain Macarthur commenced with. This statement proves that the sheep have hitherto multiplied more rapidly than it is calculated they will do in future; but this is attributed to the first ewes being of a more prolific kind than the Spanish sheep are found to be; for since Captain Macarthur has directed his attention to that breed, he has observed the ewes do not so often produce double lambs. produce double lambs.

As a further confirmation of the principle of increase that Captain Macarthur has endeavoured to establish, and which he is positive time will prove to be correct, he would refer to the general returns transmitted from New South Wales. In 1796 (since when not 100 sheep have been imported), 1531 were returned as the public and private stock of the colony. In 1801, 6757 were returned: and although between those periods all the males have been killed, as soon as they became fit, yet there is a surplus over the calculation of 6.33.

Captain Macarthur is so convinced of the practicability of supplying this country with any quantity of fine wool it may require, that he is carnestly solicitous to prosecute this, as it appears to him, important object, and, on his return to New South Wales, to devote his whole attention to accelerate its complete attainment. All the risk attendant on the undertaking he will cheerfully bear; he will require no preunary aid, and all the encouragement he humbly solicits is, the protection of government, permission to occupy a sufficient tract of unoccupied lands to feed his flock, and the indulgence of selecting from amongst the convicts such men for shepherds as may, from their previous occupations, know something of the business consideration of all matters relating to trade and foreign plantations.

London, 26th July, 1803.

To the right honourable the lords of the commmittee of his Majesty's most honourable privy council appointed for the consideration of all matters relating to trade and foreign plantations.

The memorial of Captain John Macarthur most respectually states, that, as some doubts have been expressed of the practicability of increasing the production of fine wool in New South Wales, to the extent that has been described in the memorials which have been presented to the right honourable the lords commissioners of his Majesty's treasury, your lordships' memorialist feels it incumbent upon him respectfully to endeavour to remove those doubts by a repetition of the principal facts contained in the representation he has already had the honour to make, and to accompany it with such further explanations and with a reference to such evidence as he humbly hopes may be considered conclusive. In the year 1797, your memorialist procured from the Cape of Good Hope three rams and five ewes of the Spanish breed of sheep, and being persuaded that these animals might be of great consequence to the colony of New Sonth Wales, he paid very particular attention to preserve the breed pure. He had soon the satisfaction to see them increase, and the fleeces of their offspring improve in fineness and augment in weight.

Having ascertained those facts, and being desirons to extend the growth of fine wool as much as possible, he caused all the mixed bred ewes of which his flocks were composed, to be crossed with rams of the Spanish kind; the lambs produced from this cross were clothed with wool infinitely superior to thut of their mothers; but when the cross was repeated again, the improvement became greater than his most sanguine expectations had induced him to calculate upon, inasmuch that he is of opinion no distinction will be perceptible in four crosses betwixt the pure and the mixed breed.

When your lordships' memorialist left Port Jackson in 1801, his flocks consisted of more than 2000 sheep, the whole of which had been bred from about 50 ewes in little more than seven years; and by the returns that he has received of 1802 his flock were increased to 3000. He has not yet received any accounts of the year 1803, but he concludes there must then have been about 4000; beep ond which he has no expectation they have increased, as the whole of the lands contiguous to his farms have, since his departure from the colony, been appropriated for cultivation.

Your lordships' memorialist brought with him to England as samples, fleeces shorn from the sheep imported from the Cane of Good Hope, fleeces shorn from their progeny bred in New Sonth Wales, and fleeces shorn from sheep of the mixed breed, whose dams bore nothing but hair or coarse wool. When these samples were shown to the most eminent manufacturers and merchants concerned in the woollen trade, they all concurred in opinion that the worst specimens of the mixed breed would be valuable here, and that the specimens of the finest kind bred in New South Wales were much superior to the wool of the original sheep imported from the Cape of Good Hope, and that they were equal to the very best we ever receive from Spain; indeed some of the manufacturers declared the wool to be superior to Spanish wool in many respects, and that if they could procure a sufficient supply, it would enable them to surpassall other countries in the manufacture of the best woollen cloths. But of these opinions, perhaps, it would be superfluous to say more, as the numerous memorials presented to the lords of the treasury from the manufacturers and merchants, must contain more decisive evidence than any other testimony that can be offered upon the subject.

Your lordships' memorialist is entirely convinced, from the number of sheep that have already been bred in New South Wales, and from the improvement which he has witnessed in the quality of the wool, that millions of sheep may be that all the sheep which have been bred in New South Wales have been reared in the woods upon the natural grasses. These grasses are, in nil seasons, rich and abundant, and when they become too rank they are burnt off, and are almost immediately succeeded by a young and sweeter herbage, which the sheep greedily cat and keep bare. The tracts of land adapted for pasture are so boundless, that no assignable limitation can be set to the number of fine woolled sheep which may be raised in that country, with but little other expense than the hire and food of the shepherds. The native woods, instead of making the grass sour, are generally so open as not to deteriorate its quality; whilst they at the same time afford a salutary shelter from the scorching rays of the sun in summer, and from the chillinge old of the wind in winter. To this the extraordinary softness that the wool is found to possess may be attributed, for perhaps nothing can more contribute to preserve and improve the fineness of wool, than the keeping sheen in a mild and equal temperature, and screening them as much as may be possible against the natural inequalities of the seasons.

To prove these facts, your lordships' memorialist would respectfully entreat to refer to Captain Hunter, the predecessor of Governor King, and to Captain Waterhouse of the royal navy, who was many years in New South Wales. Indeed, your memorialist, solicitous to remove all suspicion of the correctness of his statements, wrote to the latter officer some time ago upon the subject, and he has now the honour to subjoin a copy of his letter, with a copy of Captain Waterhouse's reply; he has also annexed the names and addresses of several respectable officers and gentlemen

tain Waterhouse's reply tain Waterhouse's reply; he has also annexed the names and addresses of several respectable officers and gentlemen who have had opportunities to make their own observations upon the pastures in New South Wales, and who have seen who have had opportunities to make their own observations upon the pastures in New South Wales, and who have seen how well sheep thrive upon them.

With such a prospect of becoming useful to his country, as the foregoing facts afford, your lordships' memorialist has long entertained an ardent desire to return to New South Wales, and to devote his whole attention to the increase and improvement of his flocks. And having understood that his Majesty's ministers were more disposed to approve of the undertaking being carried on by a company than by an individual, he had the honour to submit a plan for the formation of the company to the right honourable the lords of the treasury. [This company was not formed; it is there-mation of the company to the right honourable the lords of the treasury. [This company was not formed; it is therefore unnecessary to give Mr. Macarthur's plan.]

Your lordships' memorialist respectfully hopes that the statement he has now given, and the evidence he has referred to in corroboration of it, will remove every doubt; and he persuades himself that under no possible circumstance an attempt to supply this country with fine wool, the poduction of its own colony, can appear to your lordships impolitic, or in any degree hazardous; for, as your memorialist requires no pecuniary aid, the hazard would be all his own: and even for a moment supposing him to be mistaken (which, however, he cannot in justice to himself admit to be possible, founded as his opinions have been upon so many years' successful experience), yet the infant settlements of New South Wales could not derive but great advantage and security from such an abundant supply of animal food as must indisputably be raised. indisputably be raised.

Your memorialist will no longer trespass upon your lordships' attention than to say, that if your lordships shall be pleased to sanction him in the undertaking, on behalf of a company, he will submit to your lordships' consideration the names of the many respectable persons who have offered their assistance, and declared their willingness to form a company.

But should your lordships more approve making the experiment on a small scale, upon the individual account of your memorialist, he will most cheerfully commence it with an allotment of 10,000 acres of land, and permission to select 30 convicts for shepherds.

Your lordships' memorialist would choose the land 10 miles from any of the settlements where there is cultivation; and he would engage, in return for the indulgence, to supply the public with all the sheep it might be proper to kill, at a stipulated price; by which means your lordships' memorialist humbly presumes the expenses of government in that colony would be very much diminished in a few years.

Great George street 4th May 1804

Great George street, 4th May, 1804. John Macarthur.

Proceedings before the privy council, July 1804. At the council chamber, Whitchall, the 6th of July 1804. Their lordships took into consideration a proposition from Captain Macarthur for encouraging the breed of fine woolled sheep in New South Wales, together with the several papers on the same subject.

Captain Macarthur attended and stated that he had resided in New South Wales 11 years, and held lands there, a very small part only of which lands were in cultivation, and that he pastured the rest with sheep and cattle.

The following questions were then put to Captain Macarthur:

What is the nature and quality of the land in New South Wales?—Rich and strong, so much so, that we are obliged to burn off the long grass and feed the sheep upon the young grass: there are different sorts of grass, some resembling the couch grass in this country; another sort is a short grass of a succulent nature, proper for feeding

Suppose those lands on which sheep are now fed were to be turned to the purposes of cultivation, are there other lands further on proper for the feed of sheep?—I think there are, and better calculated for the purpose, and not unbounded extent.

Were there other of the settlers who kept sheep besides yourself !-- A considerable number : but I suppose my flock

Were there of the settlers who kept sheep besides yourself?—A considerable number; but I suppose my flock amounted to one-third of the whole.

Were the sheep belonging to the other settlers of the same quality as yours?—No; I know no other person in the colony who has paid any attention to the improvement of the wool.

Of what kind are your sheep, and what is the kind of the sheep of the country?—The sheep I first began to breed from were of the Bengal race, weighing about 6lbs. per quarter; I improved these by rams ef a larger breed, obtained from a cross between the Cape we and some rams of the English breed bearing wool. (The fleeces of the Bengal and Cape sheep approach more nearly to hair than to wool.) I cannot ascertain the particular breed of the rams. I afterwards obtained a number of cwes of the Cape breed, and these I continued to cross with rams bearing wool; by this means I obtained, what I conceived to be a fine breed of these. In the year, 1707 I procured three rams and five ewes of the obtained a number of cwes of the Capebreed, and these I continued to cross with rams bearing wool; by this means I obtained, what I conceived to be, a fine breed of sheep. In the year 1797 I procured three rams and five ewes of the Spanish or Merino race; I bred as many of this pure breed as possible, and crossed all the other ewes bearing coarse wool, or being of the hairy sort, with rams of this Spanish breed. The sheep in the colony are mostly of the hairy and coarse woolled sort. I conceive that there exists a sort of prejudice in the colony in favour of the sheep bearing inferior wool, founded on an opinion that the carcasses of such sheep are the most profitable.

What do you conceive to be the best mode of encouragement to be held out to the settlers, with a view to promote the breed of fine woolled sheep?—To feed the inhabitants on mutton rather than on provisions sent from this country, and to give a small additional price on the carcasses of sheep of the pure Spanish breed, and grants of lands to those who are inclined to engage in the breeding of fine woolled sheep.

and to give a small additional price on the catasses of sheep of the pure Spanish of each, and grants of additional are inclined to engage in the breeding of fine woolled sheep.

Captain Macarthur stated that his sheep weighed about 16bs, per quarter, and that he thought each sheep required an acre of land to keep it. He also stated that no grants have hitherto been made to any individual of greater extent than 1200 acres; these grants are given in perpetuity. Captain Macarthur possesses about 4000 acres, part of which was purchased from a former proprietor; he is preparing shortly to return to New South Wales in any event, as a civil purchased from a former proprietor; he is preparing shortly to return to New South Wales in any event, as a civil settler in the colony.

Being asked as to the number of settlers in the colony, supposes them to amount to about 1000.

Are there any animals in New South Wales destructive to the sheep?—None, unless the native dog, which is an animal somewhat between a fox and a wo'f; there are not many of them, and they are so timid in their nature that they will not approach the sheep by day. Captain Macasthur was in the habit of housing his sheep every night by reason of the wetness of the climate at certain periods of the year; each of his flocks have a grad and a shed.

Do the natives mix much with the settlers?—They come among the settlers familiarly, but have no fixed abode, and

Do the natives mix much with the settlers?—They come among the settlers familiarly, but have no nixed abode, and live upon what they can find for themselves.

Captain Macarthur being asked, whether in case it should be found objectionable to recommend the making a specific grant of land to him, any other measures could be taken for effectually encouraging the breed of fine woolled sheep?—Replied, he is so convinced of the advantage which would result to the country, that he should most cheerfully proceed in the business upon receiving a conditional grant of land, until government shall be satisfied of the importance

If the object should not be found to answer the expectations of government, such grant to be resumable; but, in that event, Captain Macarthur expressed a hope that he should be indemnified for the expenses he must unavoidably incur in fencing, &c., which he calculated would not exceed the sum of 1000l.

Governor Hunter attending, was called in, and examined; as follows:

You have been governor of New South Wales?—I have.
How long is it since you returned?—About three years.
Is there a considerable quantity of grass ground in New South Wales, in common and unemployed?—There is a very considerable quantity of pasture land, both clear of wood and covered with grass fit for cattle and for sheep. The quality of the grass appears to be excellent, as the hay made of it is preferred by strange cattle to that of their native soil.

Is not grass of a coarse or fine pile?—Some coarse, but a great deal of fine pile; it grows very luxuriantly, and is sometimes three feet high.

Is not the climate favourable to carried turn and for the based of coattle.) The latitude is a formal for the climate favourable to carried turn and for the based of coattle.)

Is not the climate favourable to agriculture and for the breed of cattle?—The latitude is 34°, and it is a very fine climate.

Is it not subject to great rains?—There are no periodical rains; the climate is variable, and the pasture is good the

Did you pay attention to the nature of the sheep during your residence there, and particularly to the wool?—The first stock was from Bengal and from the Cape of Good Hope, with a few English sheep; their wool was hairy, but the fleeces from the cross breed soon improved and became very good: cloth was made of it, which was very fit for the clothing of the

Were there any Spanish sheep?—Two officers whom I sent to the Cape of Good Hope had an opportunity of making there a purchase of some Spanish sheep, which had belonged to Colonel Gordon, a Dutch officer well known; and since their introduction into New South Wales, the wool improved very much.

The convicts have been fed by government hitherto on sait provisions and the grain of the country; but a supply of provisions from this or any foreign country will not long be necessary, as the colony will produce enough for its own support. The price of wheat was 10s. per bushel, as established by governor Philip, and this price procured a good supply.

Do you know Captain Macarthur, who has been in that country?—I do. He has the largest stock of sheep in that country, and has been very industrious in improving his flock and the breed of cattle; and with care and attention, I am of opinion that a great quantity of fine wool may be produced. I have no doubt that any offer he may make will be worth attending to.

Do you apprehend that there would be any great objection to the making grants of lands to persons disposed to attend to and increase their flocks of sheep and cattle?—There is so much land that I cannot conceive there can be any objection to such grants. I made some grants larger than usual upon applications of that nature, and for that purpose.

Are the rains so violent as to injure the sheep?—I have known it rain violently for a week. We always housed our sheep. Captain Macarthur made an experiment of keeping his sheep out, but lost a good many by it.

The 14th July, 1804

The Lords of the committee having resumed the consideration of the several papers relative to the breed of fine woolled sheep, &c. in New South Wales, and of the examination thereon of Captain Macarthur, John Hunter, Esq., formerly governor of New South Wales, and John Prinsep, Esq., a merchant of the city of London, from whom a proposition was some time since received, and has undergone some consideration, relative to opening a regular trade with Port Jackson, their lordships were pleased to order that a copy of the memorial presented by Captain Macarthur, and of a proposal submitted by him to the lords commissioners of his Majesty's treasury for establishing a company to encourage the increase of fine woolled sheep in New South Wales, be transmitted to Edward Cooke, Esq., for the information of Lord Camden, with a letter stating that their lordships are of opinion, from the evidence in the papers relating to Captain Macarthur's petition, from the opinion of the manufacturers of cloth, stated in their memorials, and from the examination of the gentlemen before mentioned, that it is probable wool of very fine quality, suited to the manufacturer of fine cloth, may be produced in New South Wales, and brought to this country at a price which the manufacturers can afford to give for that material.

That their lordships also conceive, that without more knowledge than they now possess of the nature and state of the colony, and without full communication with the governor of the settlement, inconvenience might arise from recommending an unconditional grant of lands to Mr. Macarthur, or to a joint company, or to any individual, as such grant might retard or prevent the other inhabitants of New South Wales from turning their attention to the growth and improvement of fine wool, or perhaps, in other repects, counteract the improvement of the colony.

That the lords of the committee, however, are of opinion that encouragement ought to be held out to the inhabitants of New South Wales to keep a breed of sheep with fine woo petition of Mr. Macarthur, and on the plan of a joint company; and that he should be further directed to state also in what manner he conceives the growth of fine wool can best be encouraged, together with the hopes he may entertain that a supply of that article can be afforded from New South Wales, and to what extent such supply is likely to be obtained, and within what space of time.

That the lords of the committee think it right to observe that a conditional grant of lauds of a reasonable extent may be, perhaps, with safety granted to Mr. Macarthur for the pasturage of sheep only, or to other persons, provided a power be reserved in such grant to resume the same at any future period, on giving other land further distant from the cultivated land of the colony (with reasonable indemnification for expenses incurred in fencing, &c.,) and that such conditional grant would not cramp the cultivation of the colony, or be attended with bad effects in any manner at present apparent to the lords of the committee.

Intis of the committee.

That in addition to these encouragements, it occurs to their Lordships that the governor should be directed to provide mutton for the food of the convicts rather than to feed them on salted provisions; and that it might equally tend to encourage the breed of sheep with fine wool, if it were recommended to the governor to purchase only that description of sheep for that purpose, or at least to give a preference to sheep of that description over any other kind, and to give an advanced price for the sheep with fine wool. That many other ways may, however, occur to the governor, from his local knowledge, of promoting an object so important to this country; and that he should be directed to state the same to Lord Camden.

That from the information obtained from the fleeces brought from the settlement in question, and from the description given of the climate of the colony, the lords of the committee are led to imagine and entertain hopes that wool of a fine quality may be produced in this colony; and that as wool of such fine quality is much wanted and desired by the manufacturers of cloth in England, it being mostly drawn at this time from a country influenced, if not dependent on France, their lordships entertain no doubt that it is well deserving the attention of his Majesty's government to encourage the produce of fine wool in the colony of New South Wales.

Z .- STATE PAPERS.

Extract of a Letter from Governor Philips, Botany Bay, to the Right Hon. Lord Sydney, dated Sidney Cove, 12th February, 1790.

[The following extracts from State Papers will convey a knowledge of the early condition of the now flourishing settlement in Australia.]

I had the honour of informing your lordship, that a settlement was intended to be made at a place I named Rose-hill. At the head of this harbour there is a creek, which at half flood has water for large boats to go three miles up: and one I had the honour of informing your lordship, that a settlement was intended to be made at a place I named Rose-hill, at the head of this harbour there is a creek, which at half flood has water for large boats to go three miles up: and one mile higher the water is fresh and the soil good,—a very industrious man, whom I brought from England, is employed there at present, and has under his direction a hundred convicts who work in clearing and cultivating the ground. A barn, granary, and other necessary buildings are creeted, and 27 acres in corn promise a good crop. The soil is good, and the country for 20 miles to the westward, which is as far as I have examined, lies well for cultivation; but even there the labour of clearing the ground is very great, and I have seen none that can be cultivated without cutting down the timber, except some few particular spots, which from their situation, lying at a distance from either of the harbours) can be of no advantage to us at present; and I presume, the meadows mentioned in Captain Cook's voyage were seen from the high grounds above Botany Bay, and from whence they appear well to the eye, but when examined, are found to be marshes, the draining of which would be a work of time, and not to be attempted by the first settlers.

The captain's guard, which until lately did duty at Rose-hill, is now reduced to a licutenant and twelve privates, and intended merely as a guard to the store which contains the provisions, and which is in the redoubt; for I am now seusible there is nothing to be apprehended from the natives, and the little attention which had been desired of the officers, more than what was immediately garrison duty, when at Rose-hill, is now no longer required.

At Sydney Cove all the officers are in good huts, and the men in barracks, and although many unforeseen difficuties have been met with, I believe there is not an individual, from the governor to the private soldier, whose situation is not more eligible at this time than he had any reason to expect it could

The stores have been lately over-run with rats, and they are equally numerous in the gardens, where they do considerable damage: and as the loss in the stores could only be known by removing all the provisions, that work was ordered to be done, and many casks of flower and rice were found to be damaged, or totally destroyed. The loss in these two articles by done, and many casks of flower and rice were found to be damaged, or totally destroyed. The loss in these two articles by the rats, since landing, has been more than twelve thousand weight.

Vegetables and provisions having been frequently stolen in the night from the convicts and others, twelve convicts were chosen as a night watch, and they have actually answored the end proposed, no robbery having been committed for several months, and the convicts in general have behaved better than I ever expected. Only two convicts have suffered death in the hast year. Four were executed the first year.

As near two years have now passed since we first landed in this country, some judgment may be formed of the climate, and I believe a finer or more healthy one is not to be found in any part of the world. Of 1030 people who were landed, many of whom were worn out by old age, the scurry and various disorders; only 27 have died in 21 months, and by the surgeon's returns it appears, that 26 of those died from disorders of long standing, and which, it is more than probable, would have carried them off much sooner in England. Fifty-nine children have been born in the above time.

In December, the corn at Rose hill was got in: the corn was exceedingly good; about 200 bushels of wheat, and about 60 of barley, with a small quantity of flax, Indian corn, and oats; all of which is preserved for seed. Here I beg leave to observe to your lordship, that if settlers are sent out, and the convicts divided amongst them, this settlement will very shortly maintain it elf, but without which, this country cannot be cultivated to any advantage. At present, I have only one person (who has about a hundred convicts under his direction) who is employed in cultivating the ground for the public benefit, and he has returned the quantity of corn above mentioned into the public store; the effects have not raised sufficient to support the little stream of the convicts under his direction) who is employed in cultivating the ground for the public benefit, that the produce of the labour of the convicts employed in cultivation has been short of what might have been expected; and which I take the liberty of printing out to your lordship, in this place, to show as fully as possible, the state of this colony, and the necessity of convicts being employed by them who have an interest in their labour. The giving convicts to the officers has been hitherto necessary, but it is attended with many inconveniences, for which the advantages arising to the officers do not make amends; it will therefore be discontinued after this detacmment is relieved unless particularly directed. The numbers employed in caldivation will, of course, be increased, as the necessary buildings are finished.

In November, the Supply sailed for Norfolk island with some convicts, and returned after being absent six weeks; all the people in that island were well, and their crops, after all they had suffered from rats, birds, and a worm, which had done them considerable damage, so good, that they had grain sufficient for vix month's bread for every one upon the island, reserving sufficient for their next year's crops.

Early in January, 1799, the Supply again sailed for Norfolk island with more convicts, and in her passage left a small party on Lord Howe island to hunt for turtle: but in fifteen days three only were taken. No great advantages will at present accrue from thence. The island has fresh water, but no aneloring ground.

Extract of a Letter from Governor Philips to the Right Hon. Lord Sydney, dated Botany Bay, 13th February, 1790.

In order to get a knowledge of the country round the settlement, frequent excursions have been made since the ships sailed in November, 1788, soon after which I went to Botany Bay, and the five days spent in that harbour confirmed me in the opinion I had first formed of it; that it afforded no eligible situation for fixing the settlement, and was a bad harbour, not affording good security for ships against the easterly winds, which frequently blow very hard in the winter, and which has been further proved by Captain Hunter and the first Lieutenant of the Sirius, who went there to survey the Bay.

After having been several times with the boats to Broken Bay, in order to examine the different branches in that harbour, a river was found, but the want of provisions obliged us to return without being able to trace it to its source, which has since been done; and in the 16 days we were then out, all those branches which had any depth of water were traced as far a river was found, but the want of provisions obliged us to return without being able to trace it to its source, which has since been done; and in the 16 days we were then out, all those branches which had any depth of water were traced as far as the boats could proceed.

The breadth of this river, named the Hawkesbury, is from 300 to 800 feet, and it appears from the soundings we had, to be navigable for the largest merebant ships to the foot of Richmond-hill; but as the water near the head of the river sometimes rises after very heavy rains 23 feet above its common level, it would not be safe for ships to go so far up; but 15 or 20 miles below Richmond-hill they would lie in Iresh water, and perfectly safe. I speak of Richmond-hill, as being the head of the river, it there growing very shallow and dividing into two branches.

The high rocky country which forms Broken Bay, is lost as you proceed up the Hawkesbury, and the banks of the river are there covered with timber, the soil a rich light mould, and, judging from the little we saw of the country, I should suppose it good land to a very considerable extent; the other branches of fresh water are shoals, but probably run many miles further into the country than we could trace them in our boats. On these rivers we saw great numbers of wild ducks and some black swans; and on the banks of the Hawkesbury, several decoys were set by the natives to catch qualis.

Richmond-hill locar the foot of which a fall of water prevented our proceeding further with the boats) is the southern extremity of a range of hills, which running to the northward, most probably join the mountains which lie nearly parallel to the coast, from 50 to 60 miles inland. The soil of Richmond-hill is good, and it lies well for cultivation. Our prospect from the hill was very extensive from the southward and eastward, and the country appearing from the height at which we were, a level covered with timber. There is a flat of six or seven miles to the country wherever the soil is good. The great adv miles in five days; when they turned back they supposed themselves to be 12 miles from the foot of the mountains. As the land for several miles to the southward, and 20 miles to the westward of Rose-hill, that is, to the banks of the Nepean, is as fine land for tillage as most in England (some few particular spots excepted, the soil of which is poor, and bears a very small proportion to the good land). I propose that tract of land for those settlers who may be sent out, and though they will be placed at some distance from each other for the convenience of water, from one to three or four miles, they will have nothing to apprehend from the natives, who avoid those parts we most frequent, and always retire at the sight of two or three people who are armed.

As the labour of clearing the ground of timber will be great, I think each settler should not have less than twenty men on his own farm, which I suppose to be from 500 to 1000 acres. It will be necessary to give that number of convicts to those settlers who come out, and to support them for two years from the public stores; in that time, if they are at all industrious, they will be in a situation to support themselves, and I do not think they would be able to do it in less time. At the expiration of the two years, they may return half the convicts they have been allowed, and want no further assistance from Government. Government.

Government.

It may be necessary to grant land to officers and soldiers, who, becoming settlers, will of course be entitled to every indulgence; but few of the officers now here have reaped any good advantage from being allowed convicts, and it is attended with unavoidable inconvenience from the convicts being left so much to themselves, and from their mixing with the soldiers. It may be found more to the advantage of the Crown, and the officers likewise, if officers on duty in this attended with unavoidable inconvenience from the soldiers likewise, if officers on duty in this attended were allowed a certain quantity of grain to support their live stock until they have a market to go to; and I make no doubt but that in the third year from the time settlers arrive, there will be a market, well supplied with grain, poultry, hogs, and goats, of all which there has been a great increase, but killed from wanting corn to support them; and the natives so frequently settling fire to the country, which they do to catch the opossum, flying squirrel, and other animals, has prevented swine from being turned out, as was intended.

If this plan of distributing among the settlers those convicts who are not immediately necessary for carrying on the public works is approved of, and which I suppose will, as appearing to me most likely to render this settlement independent for the necessaries of life in the shortest time possible, there are many regulations which will of course take place.

A A .- CHARTER OF JUSTICE-NEW SOUTH WALES, 13th of October, 1823.

GEORGE the Fourth, by the grace of God, of the united Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting: Whereas by an Act passed in the fourth year of our reign, intituled "An Act to provide until the 1st day of July, 1827, and until the end of the next Session of Parliament, for the better Administration of Justice in New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land, and for the more effectual government thereof, and for other purposes relating thereto," it was enacted that it should be lawful for us, our heirs, or successors, by charters or letters-patent under the great seal of our united Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, to erect and establish courts of judicature in New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land respectively, which should be styled "The Supreme Court of New South Wales," and "The Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land; and that each of such courts respectively should be holden by one judge or chief justice, and should have such ministerial or other officers as should be necessary for the administration of justice in the said courts respectively, and for the execution of the judgments, decrees, orders, and process thereof; and it was enacted that the said judges should from time to time be appointed by us, our heirs, and successors, and that the said ministerial and other officers of the said courts respectively should from time to time be appointed to and removed from their respective offices in such manner as we, our heirs, and successors should by such charters or letters-patent as aforesaid direct; and that the said judges should be respectively entitled to receive such reasonable salaries as we, our heirs, and successors should approve and direct, which salaries should be in lieu of all fees or other emoluments whatsoever: Now know ye, that we, upon full consideration of the premises, and of our especial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, have, in pursuance of the said Act of Parliament, thought sors grant, direct, ordain, and appoint that there shall be within that part of our colony of New South Wales situate in the island of New Holland, a court which shall be called a supreme court of New South Wales; and we do hereby create, direct, and constitute the said supreme court of New South Wales to be a court of record; and we do further will, ordain, and appoint that the said supreme court of New South Wales shall consist of and be holden by and before one judge, who shall be and be called the chief justice of the supreme court of New South Wales, which chief justice shall be a barrister in England or Ireland of not less than five years standing, to be named and appointed from time to time by us, our heirs, and successors, by letters patent under our and their great seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland; and such chief justice shall hold his office during the pleasure of us, our heirs, and successors, and not otherwise: And we do hereby give and grant to our said chief justice rank and precedence above and before all our subjects whomsoever within the colony of New South Wales aforesaid, and the islands, territories, and places dependent thereupon, excepting the governor or acting governor for the time being of the said colony, and excepting all such persons as by law or usage take place in England before our chief justice of our court of king's bench: And we do further grant, ordain, and appoint that the said supreme court of New South Wales shall have and use, as occasion may require, a seal bearing a device and impression of our royal arms within an exergue or label surrounding the same, with this impression, "The Seal of the Supreme Court of New South Wales;" and we do hereby grant, ordain, and appoint that the said seal shall be delivered to and kept in the custody of the said chief justice: And we do further grant, ordain, and declare that the said chief justice, so long as he shall hold his office, shall be entitled to have and receive a salary of £2000 sterling by the year; and our governor or acting governor for the time being of the said colony is hereby directed and required to cause such salary to be paid to the said chief justice by four quarterly payments, at the four most usual days of payment in the year, in bills of exchange to be drawn by such governor or acting governor as aforesaid, on the lords commissioners of our treasury in England, payable to or to the order of such chief justice, and which bills shall, by our said governor or acting governor, be accordingly delivered to the said chief justice: And we do further grant, ordain, and declare that the said salary shall commence and take place in respect to any person who shall be resident in Great Britain or Ireland at the time of his appointment, upon and from the day on which any such person shall thereupon embark or depart from Great Britain or Ireland for New South Wales, to take upon him the execution of the said office; and that the salary of any such chief justice who shall at the time of his appointment be resident in New South Wales aforesaid, shall commence and take place from and after his taking upon him the execution of such his office: and that such salary shall be in lieu of all fees of office, perquisites, emoluments, and advantages whatsoever, and that no fee of office, perquisite, emolument, or advantage whatsoever, other than and except the said salary, shall be accepted. received, or taken by such chief justice in any manner or on any account or pretence whatsoever: provided nevertheless, that it shall be lawful for the said chief justice to occupy and inhabit any official house or residence within the said colony of New South Wales which hath been or may hereafter be provided for his residence and occupation, without paying to us, our heirs, and successors any rent for the same, and without being obliged to repair, uphold, or maintain any such house or official residence at his own costs and charges; and we do further grant, appoint, and declare that no chief justice of the said supreme court of New South Wales shall be capable of accepting, taking, or performing any other office or place of profit or emolument, on pain that the acceptance of any such other office or place as aforesaid, shall be and be deemed in law de facto an avoidance of his office of chief justice, and the salary thereof shall cease and be deemed to have ceased accordingly from the time of such acceptance of any such other office or place: and we do hereby constitute and appoint our trusty and wellbeloved Francis Frobes, esquire, to be the first chief justice of the said supreme court of New South Wales, the said Francis Forbes being a barrister in England of five years' standing and upwards: and we do hereby ordain, appoint, and declare that there shall be and belong to the said court the following officers, that is to say, a registrar, a prothonotary, a master and keeper of records, and such and so many officers as to the chief justice of the said court for the time being shall from time to time appear to be necessary for the administration of justice, and the due execution of all the powers and authorities which are granted and committed to the said court by these our letters-patent: provided nevertheless, that no new office shall be created in the said court, unless the governor or acting governor for the time being of our said colony shall first signify his approbation thereof to our said chief justice for the time being, in writing, under the hand of such governor or acting governor as aforesaid: and we do further ordain and direct that all persons who shall and may be appointed to the several offices of master, registrar, prothonotary or keeper of records of the said supreme court of New South Wales, or to any offices in the said court, whereof the duties shall correspond to those performed by the master, registrar, prothonotary, or keeper of records of any or either of our courts of record at Westminster, shall be so appointed by us, our heirs, and successors, by warrant under our or their royal sign manual; and that all persons who shall and may be appointed to any other office within the said supreme court of New South Wales, shall be so appointed by the chief justice for the time being of the said court. And we do further direct and appoint that the several officers of the said court so to be appointed as aforesaid by us, our heirs, and successors, shall hold their respective offices during our and their pleasure; and that the several officers of the said court so to be appointed as aforesaid by the chief justice thereof, be subject to be removed by the said court from their offices therein upon reasonable cause: and we do hereby authorize and empower the said supreme court of New South Wales to approve, admit, and enrol such and so many persons having been admitted barristers at law or advocates, in Great Britain or Ireland, or having been admitted writers, attornies, or solicitors in one of our courts at Westminster, Dublin, or Edinburgh, or having been admitted as proctors in any ecclesiastical court in England, to act as well in the character of barristers and advocates, as of proctors, attornics, and solicitors in the said court; and which persons, so approved, admitted, and enrolled as aforesaid, shall be and are hereby authorized to appear and plead and act for the suitors of the said court, subject always to be removed by the said court from their station therein, upon reasonable cause; and we do declare that no person or persons whatsoever shall be allowed to appear and plead, or act in the said supreme court of New South Wales, for and on behalf of such suitors, or any of them: provided always, and we do ordain and declare that in case there shall not be a sufficient number of such barristers-at-law, advocates, writers, attornies, solicitors, and proctors within the said colony, competent and willing to appear and act for the suitors of the said court, then and in that case the said supreme court of New South Wales shall and is hereby authorized to admit so many other fit and proper persons to appear and act as barristers, advocates, proctors, attornies, and solicitors, as may be necessary, according to such general rules and qualifications as the said court shall for that purpose make and establish: provided that the said court shall not admit any person to act in any or either of the characters aforesaid, who hath been by due course of law convicted of any crime, which, according to any law now in force in England would disqualify him from appearing and acting in any of our courts of record at Westminster. And we do hereby ordain and declare that the governor or acting governor for the time being at the said colony of New South Wales shall yearly, on the first Monday in the month of January in each year, by warrant under his hand and seal, nominate and appoint some fit and proper person to act as and be the sheriff for our said colony of New South Wales and its dependencies, other than and except the island of Van Diemen's Land, for the year ensuing, which sheriff when appointed shall, as soon as conveniently may be, and before he shall enter upon his said office, take an oath faithfully to execute his office, and the oath of allegiance, before the governor or acting governor, who are hereby authorized to administer the same; and such sheriff shall continue in such his office during the space of one whole year, to be computed from the said first Monday in the month of January, and until another shall be appointed and sworn into the said office; and in case such sheriff shall die in his office, or depart from our said colony of New South Wales, then another person shall, as soon as conveniently may be after the death or departure of such sheriff, be in like manner appointed and sworn in as aforesaid, and shall continue in his office for the remainder of the year, and until another sheriff shall be duly appointed and sworn into the said office: and we do further order, direct, and appoint that the said sheriff and his successors shall by themselves, or their sufficient deputies to be by them appointed and duly authorized under their respective hands and seals, and for whom he and they shall be responsible during his or their continuance in such office, execute, and the said sheriff and his said deputies are hereby authorized to execute all the writs, summonses, rules, orders, warrants, commands, and process of the said supreme court of New South Wales, and make return of the same, together with the manner of the execution thereof, to the supreme court of New South Wales, and to receive and detain in prison all such persons as shall be committed to the custody of such sheriff by the said supreme court of New South Wales, or by the chief justice of the said court: and we do further authorize our governor or acting governor for the time being of the said colony of New South Wales, to re-appoint the same person to fill the office of sheriff from year to year, if it shall appear to our said governor or acting governor expedient so to do; so nevertheless as that such appointment shall be annually renewed and be not ever made for more than one year: provided nevertheless, and we do hereby require our said governor or acting governor of our said colony, in the selection of any person or persons to fill the said office of sheriff of New South Wales. to conform himself to such directions as may from time to time be given in that behalf by us, our heirs and successors, through one of our or their principal secretaries of state: and we do further direct, ordain, and appoint, that whenever the said Supreme Court of New South Wales shall direct or award any process against the said sheriff, or award any process in any cause, matter, or thing wherein the said sheriff, on account of his being related to the parties or any of them, or by reason of any good cause of challenge which would be allowed against any sheriff in England, cannot or ought not by law to execute the same, in every such case the said Supreme Court of New South Wales shall name and appoint some other fit person to execute and return the same, and the said process shall be directed to the person so to be named for that purpose, and the cause of such special proceedings shall be suggested and entered on the records of the said court: provided always and we do hereby ordain and declare, that the said supreme court of New South Wales shall fix certain limits beyond which the said sheriff shall not be compelled or compellable to go in person, or by his officers or deputies, for the execution of any process of the said court; and when the process of the said court shall be to be executed in any place or places beyond the limits so to be fixed, we grant, ordain, and direct that the said supreme court of New South Wales shall, upon motion, direct by what person or persons, and in what manner such process shall be executed, and the terms and conditions which the party at whose instance the same shall be issued shall enter into, in order to prevent any improper use or abuse of the process of the said court, and the said sheriff shall and he is hereby required to grant his special warrant or deputation to such person or persons as the said court shall direct for the execution of such process; and in that case we direct and declare that the said sheriff, his executor, and administrators, shall not be responsible or liable for any act to be done in or in any way respecting the execution of such process, under and by virtue of such special warrant, and that any person or persons being aggrieved under or by pretence of such special warrant, shall and may seek their remedy under any security which may have been directed to be taken upon the occasion, and which the said court is hereby authorized to direct to be taken. And whereas in the said act of parliament it is enacted, that the said courts shall have cognizance of all pleas, civil, criminal or mixed, and the jurisdiction of the said courts in all such cases is thereby settled and ascertained; and it is thereby enacted, that the said courts shall be courts of ecclesiatical jurisdiction, and shall have full power and authority to administer and execute within New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land and the dependencies thereof, such ecclesiastical jurisdiction and authority as shall be committed to the said supreme courts by our charters and letters-patent: now we do hereby for us, our heirs and successors, grant, ordain, establish and appoint, that the said supreme court of New South Wales shall be a court of ecclesiastical jurisdiction, with full power to grant probates, under the seal of the said court, of the last wills and testaments of all or any of the inhabitants of that part of the said colony and its dependencies situate in the island of New Holland, and of all other persons who shall die and leave personal effects within that part of the said colony, and to commit letters of administration under the seal of the said court of the goods, chattels, credits, and all other effects whatsoever of the persons aforesaid who shall die intestate, or who shall not have named an executor resident within that part of the said colony and its dependencies; or where the executor being duly cited shall not appear and sue forth such probate, annexing the will to the said letters of administration, when such person shall have left a will without naming any executor or any person for executor, who shall then be alive and resident within that part of the said colony and its dependencies, and who being duly cited thereunto will appear and sue forth a probate thereof, and to sequester the goods and chattels, credits and other effects whatsoever of such persons so dying, in cases allowed by law, as the same is and may be now used in the diocese of London; and to demand, require, take, hear, examine, and allow, and, if occasion require, to disallow and reject, the accounts of them in such manner and form as is now used or may be used in the said diocese of London, and to do all other things whatsoever needful and necessary in that behalf: provided always, and we do hereby authorize and require the said court in such cases as aforesaid, where letters of administration shall be committed with the will annexed, for want of an executor applying in due time to sue forth the probate, to reserve in such letters of administration full power and authority to revoke the same, and to grant probate of the said will to such executor whenever he shall duly appear and sue forth the same. And we . do hereby further authorize and require the said supreme court of New South Wales to grant and commit such letters of administration to any one or more of the lawful next of kin of such person so dying as aforesaid, and being then resident within the jurisdiction of the said court, and being of the age of twenty one years, and in case no such person shall then be residing within the jurisdiction of the said court, or being duly cited shall not appear and pray the same, to the registrar of the said court, or to such person or persons, whether creditor or creditors or not of the deceased person, as the court shall see fit: provided always, that probates of wills and letters of administration to be granted by the said court, shall be limited to such money, goods, chattels and effects as the deceased person shall be entitled to within that part of the said colony situate within the island of New Holland: and we do hereby further enjoin and require that every person to whom such letters of administration shall be committed, shall before the granting thereof give sufficient security by bond, to be entered into to us, our heirs and successors, for the payment of a competent sum of money, with one, two or more able sureties, respect being had to the sum therein to be contained, and in the ability of the sureties, to the value of the estate, credits and effects of the deceased, which bond shall be deposited in the said court among the records thereof and there safely kept, and a copy thereof shall also be recorded among the proceedings of the said court; and the condition of the said bond shall be to the following effect:-" That if the above bounded administrator of the goods, chattels and effects of the deceased do make or cause to be made a true and perfect inventory of all and singular the goods, credits and effects of the said deceased, which have or shall come to the hands, possession or knowledge of him the said administrator, or to the hands or possession of any other person or persons for him; and the same so made do exhibit or cause to be exhibited into the said supreme court of New South Wales, at or before a day therein to be specified, and the same goods, chattels, credits and effects, and all other the goods, chattels, credits and effects of the deceased at the time of his death, or which at any time afterwards shall come to the hands or possession of such administrator, or to the hands or possession of any other person or persons for him, shall well and truly administer according to law, and further shall make or cause to be made a true and just account of his said administration at or before a time therein to be specified, and afterwards from time to time as he, she or they shall be lawfully required, and all the rest and residue of the said goods, chattels, credits and effects shall be found from time to time remaining upon the said administration accounts, the same being first examined and allowed of by the said supreme court of New South Wales, shall and do pay and dispose of in a due course of administration, or in such manner as the said court shall direct, then this obligation to be void and of none effect, or else to be and remain in full force and virtue;" and in case it shall be necessary to put the said bond in suit, for the sake of obtaining the effect thereof for the benefit of such person or persons as shall appear to the said court to be interested therein, such person or persons from time to time to give satisfactory security for paying all such costs as shall arise from the said suit or any part thereof, such person or persons shall by order of the said court be allowed to sue the same in the name of the attorney-general for the time being of the said colony, and the said bond shall not be sued in any other manner; and we do hereby authorize and empower the said court to order that the said bond shall be put in suit in the name of the said attorney general. And we do further will, order and require, that the said court shall affix certain periods when all persons to whom probates of wills and letters of administration shall be granted by the said court, shall from time to time, until the effects of the deceased person shall be fully administered, pass their accounts relating thereto before the said court; and in case the effects of the deceased shall not be fully administered within the time for that purpose to be fixed by the said court, then, or at any earlier time, if the said court shall see fit so to direct, the person or persons to whom such probate or administration shall be granted, shall pay, deposit and dispose of the balance of money belonging to the estate of the deceased then in his, her or their hands, and all money which shall afterwards come into his, her or their hands, and also all precious stones, jewels, bonds, bills, and securities belonging to the estate of the deceased, in such manner and unto such person as the said court shall direct for safe custody; and we require that the said court shall from time to time make such order as shall be just for the due administration of such assets and for the payment or remittance thereof or any part thereof, as occasion shall require, to or for the use of any person or persons, whether resident or not resident in the said colony and its dependencies, who may be entitled thereto or any part thereof as creditors, legatees or next of kin, or by any other right or title whatsoever. And we further order and direct, that it shall be lawful for the said court to allow to any executor or administrator of the effects of any deceased person (except as herein mentioned) such commission or per centage out of their assets as shall be just and reasonable for their pains and trouble therein: Provided always, that 110

from time to time received as the purchase money of such lands, or as rent of the common of pasturage of unsold portions thereof, in conducting the emigration of poor persons from Great Britain or Ireland to the said province or provinces; provided always, that no part of the said public lands shall be sold except in public for ready money, and either by auction or otherwise as may seem best to the said commissioners, but in no case and at no time for a lower price than the tion or otherwise as may seem best to the said commissioners, but in no case and at no time for a lower price than the sum of twelve shillings sterling per English acre: provided also, that the sum per acre which the said commissioners may declare during any period to be the upset or selling price at which such lands shall be sold shall be an uniform price; (that is to say.) the same price per acre whatever the quantity or situation of the land put up for sale: provided also, that the whole of the funds from time to time received as the purchase money of the said lands, or as the rent of the common of pasturage of unsold portions thereof, shall constitute an "Emigration Fund," and shall, without any deduction whatsoever, except in the case hereinafter provided for, be employed in conveying poor emigrants from Great Britain or Ireland to the said province or provinces: provided also, that the poor persons who shall by means of the said "Emigration Fund" be conveyed to the said province or provinces, shall, as far as possible, be adult persons of the two sexes in equal proportions, and not exceeding the age of thirty years.

7. And be it forther enacted, that no poor person having a husband or wife (as the case may be), or a child or children, shall, by means of the said "Emigration Fund," obtain a passage to the said province or provinces, unless the husband or wife (as the case may be), or the child or children of such poor person, shall also be conveyed to the said province or provinces.

husband or wife (as the case may ue), or the chird of chirdren of such post periods and successors, by warrant, under the sign manual to be countersigned by his Maje-ty's principal secretary of state for the colonies, to appoint a commissioner of public lands to be resident in the said colony, and to act under the orders of the said board of commissioner of public lands to be resident in the said colony, and to act under the orders of the said board of commissioner of public lands to be resident in the said colony, and to act under the orders of the said board of commissioner of public lands to be resident in the said colony, and to act under the orders of the said board of commissioner of public lands to be resident in the said colony.

- 9. And be it further enacted, that the said commissioners shall and they are hereby empowered to appoint such person or persons as they may think fit treasurer, assistant surveyors, and other officers, for carrying this act into execution respecting the disposal of the said public lands and the purchase money thereor, and to remove such treasurer or assistant surveyor or other officers at their discretion, and on every or any vacancy in the said office of treasurer, assistant-surveyor, or other officer, by removal or by death or otherwise, to appoint, if they see fit, some other person to
- the said office.

  10. And be it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioners to delegate to the said colonial commissioners, assistant-surveyor, or other officer, or to any of them, such of the powers and authorities with respect to the disposal of the public lands of the said province or provinces as the said commissioners shall think fit; and the powers and authorities so delegated, and the delegation thereof, shall be notified in such manner, and such powers and authorities shall be exercised at such places, for such periods, and under such circumstances, and subject to such regulations, as the said commissioners shall direct; and the said commissioners may at any time revoke, recall, alter, or vary all or any of the powers and authorities which shall be so delegated as aforesaid.

  11. And be it further enacted, that all the monies under the controll of the said board of commissioners shall be received and paid by the treasurers who may be appointed by the said board, and who shall give security for the faithful discharge of their duties to such amount and in such manner as to the said commissioners may seem fit.

  12. And be it further enacted, that all accounts of the said treasurer shall be submitted to the loads of his Malestry's

12. And be it further enacted, that all accounts of the said treasurer shall be submitted to the lords of his Majesty's treasury, and be audited in the same manner as other public accounts.

13. And be it further enacted, that the said commissioners may and they are hereby empowered from time to time to appoint a secretary, treasurer, and all such clerks, messengers, and officers as they shall think fit, and from time to time, at the discretion of the said commissioners, to remove such secretary, treasurer, clerks, messengers, and officers, or any of them, and to appoint others in their stead.

14. And be it further enacted, that every commissioner and colonial commissioner to be appointed from time to time shall, before he shall enter upon the execution of his office, take the following oath before one of the judges of his Majesty's court of common pleas, or one of the barons of the court of exchequer or (in the case of such colonial commissioners) before the judge of one of his Majesty's courts in the said province or provinces; (that is to say,)

15. A.B. do swear, that I shall faithfully, impartially, and honestly, according to the best of my skill and judgment, execute and fulfil all the powers and duties of a commissioner [or colonial commissioner, as the case may be,] under an act passed in the fifth year of the reign of King William the Fourth, initiated [here set forth the title of this act.]

15. Provided always and be it further enacted, that the salaries to be paid to all such persons as may be appointed to any office under this act, shall be fixed by the Lords of His Majesty's Treasury, and by them shall be revised from time to time as they may deem expedient.

- 15. Provided always and be it further enacted, that the salaries to be paid to all such persons as may be appointed to any office under this act, shall be fixed by the Lords of His Majesty's Treasmy, and by them shall be revised from time to time as they may deem expedient.

  16. And be it further enacted, that the said commissioners shall, at least once in every year, and at such other times and in such form as His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies shall direct, submit to the said Secretary of State a full and particular report of their proceedings; and every such report shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within six weeks after the receipt of the said be said Secretary of State, if Parliament be then sitting, or if Parliament be not sitting, then within six weeks after the next meeting thereof.

  17. And be it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioners, previously and until the sale of public lands in the said province shall have produced a fund sufficient to defray the cost of conveying to the said province of provinces, from time to time to time, such a number of poor emigrants as may by the said commissioners be thought desirable, from time to time to borrow and take up on bond or otherwise, payable by instalments or otherwise, at interest not exceeding 104, per cent, per annum, any sum or sums of money not exceeding 30,000f. for the sole purpose of defraying the costs of the passage of poor emigrants from Great Britain or Ireland to the said province or provinces, by granting and issuing, o any person or persons willing to advance such monies, bonds or obligatory writings under the hands and scals of the said commissioners or of any two of them, which bonds or other obligatory writings under the hands and scals of the said commissioners or of any two of them, which bonds or other obligatory writings under the lands and scals of the said commissioners or of any two of them, which bonds or other obligatory writings shall be borrowed on the cred
- such principal sum or sums.

  18. And be it further enacted, that for defraying the necessary costs, charges and expenses of founding the said intended colony, and of providing for the government thereof, and for the expenses of the said commissioners (excepting always the purpose whereanto the said emigration fund is made solely applicable by this act,) and for defraying all costs, charges and expenses incurred in carrying this act into execution, and applying for anothering its act, it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioners from time to time to borrow and take up on bond or otherwise, payable by instalments or otherwise, at interest not exceeding 10t, per cent, per annum, any sum or sums of money required for the purposes last aforesaid, not exceeding in the whole the sum of 200,000t. by granting or is using to any person or persons willing to advance such monies, bonds or obligatory writings under the bands and seals of the said commissioners or any two of them, which bonds monies or obligatory writings shall be termed "South Australia Colonial Revenue Securities;" and all such sum or sums of money by the said commissioners so borrowed and taken up as last aforesaid, shall be and are hereby declared to be a charge upon the ordinary revenue or produce of all rates, duties and takes to be levied and collected as hereinhefore directed within the said province or provinces, and shall be deemed and taken to be a public debt owing by the said province to the holders of the bond or bonds or other writings obligatory by the said commissioners granted for the purposes last aforesaid. aforesaid.
- 19. And be it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioners at any time to borrow or take up any sum or sums of money for any of the purposes of this act at a lower rate of interest than any security or securities previously given by them under and by virtue of this act which may then be in force shall bear, and therewith to pay off and discharge any existing security or securities bearing a higher rate of interest as aforesaid.

  20. And be it further enacted, that in case it should so happen that the said commissioners shall be unable to raise by

seal of the said court, of the last wills and testaments of all or any of the inhabitants of that part of the said colony and its dependencies situate in the island of New Holland, and of all other persons who shall die and leave personal effects within that part of the said colony, and to commit letters of administration under the seal of the said court of the goods, chattels, credits, and all other effects whatsoever of the persons aforesaid who shall die intestate, or who shall not have named an executor resident within that part of the said colony and its dependencies; or where the executor being duly cited shall not appear and sue forth such probate, annexing the will to the said letters of administration, when such person shall have left a will without naming any executor or any person for executor, who shall then be alive and resident within that part of the said colony and its dependencies, and who being duly cited thereunto will appear and sue forth a probate thereof, and to sequester the goods and chattels, credits and other effects whatsoever of such persons so dying, in cases allowed by law, as the same is and may be now used in the diocese of London; and to demand, require, take, hear, examine, and allow, and, if occasion require, to disallow and reject, the accounts of them in such manner and form as is now used or may be used in the said diocese of London, and to do all other things whatsoever needful and necessary in that behalf: provided always, and we do hereby authorize and require the said court in such cases as aforesaid, where letters of administration shall be committed with the will annexed, for want of an executor applying in due time to sue forth the probate, to reserve in such letters of administration full power and authority to revoke the same, and to grant probate of the said will to such executor whenever he shall duly appear and sue forth the same. And we . do hereby further authorize and require the said supreme court of New South Wales to grant and commit such letters of administration to any one or more of the lawful next of kin of such person so dying as aforesaid, and being then resident within the jurisdiction of the said court, and being of the age of twenty one years, and in case no such person shall then be residing within the jurisdiction of the said court, or being duly cited shall not appear and pray the same, to the registrar of the said court, or to such person or persons, whether creditor or creditors or not of the deceased person, as the court shall see fit: provided always, that probates of wills and letters of administration to be granted by the said court, shall be limited to such money, goods, chattels and effects as the deceased person shall be entitled to within that part of the said colony situate within the island of New Holland: and we do hereby further enjoin and require that every person to whom such letters of administration shall be committed, shall before the granting thereof give sufficient security by bond, to be entered into to us, our heirs and successors, for the payment of a competent sum of money, with one, two or more able sureties, respect being had to the sum therein to be contained, and in the ability of the sureties, to the value of the estate, credits and effects of the deceased, which bond shall be deposited in the said court among the records thereof and there safely kept, and a copy thereof shall also be recorded among the proceedings of the said court; and the condition of the said bond shall be to the following effect:-" That if the above bounded administrator of the goods, chattels and effects of the deceased do make or cause to be made a true and perfect inventory of all and singular the goods, credits and effects of the said deceased, which have or shall come to the hands, possession or knowledge of him the said administrator, or to the hands or possession of any other person or persons for him; and the same so made do exhibit or cause to be exhibited into the said supreme court of New South Wales, at or before a day therein to be specified, and the same goods, chattels, credits and effects, and all other the goods, chattels, credits and effects of the deceased at the time of his death, or which at any time afterwards shall come to the hands or possession of such administrator, or to the hands or possession of any other person or persons for him, shall well and truly administer according to law, and further shall make or cause to be made a true and just account of his said administration at or before a time therein to be specified, and afterwards from time to time as he, she or they shall be lawfully required, and all the rest and residue of the said goods, chattels, credits and effects shall be found from time to time remaining upon the said administration accounts, the same being first examined and allowed of by the said supreme court of New South Wales, shall and do pay and dispose of in a due course of administration, or in such manner as the said court shall direct, then this obligation to be void and of none effect, or else to be and remain in full force and virtue;" and in case it shall be necessary to put the said bond in suit, for the sake of obtaining the effect thereof for the benefit of such person or persons as shall appear to the said court to be interested therein, such person or persons from time to time to give satisfactory security for paying all such costs as shall arise from the said suit or any part thereof, such person or persons shall by order of the said court be allowed to sue the same in the name of the attorney-general for the time being of the said colony, and the said bond shall not be sued in any other manner; and we do hereby authorize and empower the said court to order that the said bond shall be put in suit in the name of the said attorney general. And we do further will, order and require, that the said court shall affix certain periods when all persons to whom probates of wills and letters of administration shall be granted by the said court, shall from time to time, until the effects of the deceased person shall be fully administered, pass their accounts relating thereto before the said court; and in case the effects of the deceased shall not be fully administered within the time for that purpose to be fixed by the said court, then, or at any earlier time, if the said court shall see fit so to direct, the person or persons to whom such probate or administration shall be granted, shall pay, deposit and dispose of the balance of money belonging to the estate of the deceased then in his, her or their hands, and all money which shall afterwards come into his, her or their hands, and also all precious stones, jewels, bonds, bills, and securities belonging to the estate of the deceased, in such manner and unto such person as the said court shall direct for safe custody; and we require that the said court shall from time to time make such order as shall be just for the due administration of such assets and for the payment or remittance thereof or any part thereof, as occasion shall require, to or for the use of any person or persons, whether resident or not resident in the said colony and its dependencies, who may be entitled thereto or any part thereof as creditors, legatees or next of kin, or by any other right or title whatsoever. And we further order and direct, that it shall be lawful for the said court to allow to any executor or administrator of the effects of any deceased person (except as herein mentioned) such commission or per centage out of their assets as shall be just and reasonable for their pains and trouble therein: Provided always, that no allowance whatever shall be made for the pains and trouble of any executor or administrator who shall neglect to pass his accounts at such time or to dispose of any money, goods, chattels or securities with which he shall be chargeable, in such manner as in pursuance of any general or special rule or order of the said court shall be requisite; and moreover every such executor or administrator so neglecting to pass his accounts, or to dispose of any such money, goods, chattels or securities with which he shall be chargeable, shall be charged with interest at the rate then current within the said colony and its dependencies for such sum and sums of money as from time to time shall have been in his hands, whether he shall or shall not make interest thereof. And we do hereby authorize the said supreme court of New South Wales to appoint guardians and keepers of infants and their estates according to the order and course observed in that part of our United Kingdom called England, and also guardians and keepers of the persons and estates of natural fools, and of such as are or shall be deprived of their understanding or reason by the act of God, so as to be unable to govern themselves and their estates, which we hereby authorize and empower the said court to inquire, hear and determine, by inspection of the person, or such other ways and means by which the truth may be best discovered and known. And whereas it is by the said act enacted, "that it shall and may be lawful for us by our said charters or letters-patent respectively to allow any person or persons feeling aggrieved by any judgment, decree, order or sentence of the court of appeals of the colony of New South Wales, to appeal therefrom to us in our privy council, in such manner, within such time, and under and subject to such rules, regulations and limitations as we by any such charters or letterspatent respectively should appoint and prescribe: Now we do hereby direct, establish and ordain, that any person or persons may appeal to us, our heirs and successors, in our or their privy council in such manner, within such time, and under and subject to such rules, regulations and limitations as are hereinafter mentioned, (that is to say,) in case any such judgment, decree, order, or sentence shall be given or pronounced for or in respect of any sum or matter at issue above the amount or value of 2,000l. sterling, or in case such judgment, decree, order, or sentence shall involve directly or indirectly any claim, demand or question to or respecting property or any civil right, amounting to or of the value of 2,000t, sterling, or in case the said court of appeals should by any such judgment, decree, order or sentence reverse, alter or vary any judgment, decree, order or sentence of the said supreme court of New South Wales, the person or persons feeling aggrieved by any such judgment, decree, order or sentence of the said court of appeals, may, within fourteen days next after the same shall have been pronounced, made or given, apply to the said court of appeals by petition for leave to appeal therefrom to us, our heirs and successors, in our or their privy council; and in case such leave to appeal shall be prayed by the party or parties who is or are directed to pay any sum of money, or perform any duty, the said court of appeals shall and is bereby empowered either to direct that the judgment, decree, order or sentence appealed from shall be carried into execution, or that the execution thereof shall be suspended pending the said appeal, as to the said court may appear to be most consistent with real and substantial justice; and in case the said court of appeal shall direct such judgment, decree, order or sentence to be carried into execution, the person or persons in whose favour the same shall be given, shall, before the execution thereof, enter into good and sufficient security, to be approved by the said court of appeals, for the due performance of such judgment or order as we, our heirs and successors, shall think fit to make thereupon; or in case the said court of appeals shall direct the execution of any such judgment, decree, order or sentence to be suspended pending the appeal, the person or persons against whom the same shall have been given, shall in like manner and before any order for the suspension of any such execution is made, enter into good and sufficient security to the said court of appeals for the due performance of such judgment or order as we, our heirs or successors, shall think fit to make thereupon; and in all cases we will and require that security shall also be given by the party or parties appellant to the satisfaction of the said court of appeals, for the prosecution of the appeal and for the payment of all such costs as may be awarded by us, our heirs and successors, to the party or parties respondent; and if such last-mentioned security shall be entered into within three months from the date of such petition for leave to appeal, then, and not otherwise, the said court of appeals shall allow the appeal, and the party or parties appellant shall be at liberty to prefer and prosecute his, her or their appeal to us, our beirs and successors, in our or their Privy Council in such manner and under such rules as are observed in appeals made to us from our plantations or colonies: and we do hereby reserve to ourself, our heirs and successors, in our or their Privy Council, full power and authority, upon the humble petition, at any time, of any person or persons aggrieved by any judgment or determination of the said court of appeals, to refuse or admit his, her or their appeal therefrom, upon such terms and upon such limitations, restrictions and regulations as we or they shall think fit, and to reverse, correct or vary such judgment or determination as to us or them shall seem meet: and it is our further will and pleasure, that in all cases of appeal allowed by the said court of appeals, or by us, our heirs or successors, the said court of appeals shall certify and transnit to us, our heirs or successors, in our or their Privy Council, a true and exact copy of all evidence, promedings, judgments, decrees and orders had or made in such causes appealed from, so far as the same have elation to the matter of appeal, such copies to be certified under the seal of the said court. And we do furher direct and ordain, that the said supreme court of New South Wales shall in all cases of appeal to us, wur heirs or successors, conform to and execute, or cause to be executed, such judgments and orders as we hall think fit to make in the premises, in such manner as any original judgment, decree, or decretal order, or other order or rule by the said supreme court of New South Wales, should or might have been executed: and we do hereby strictly charge and command all governors, commanders, magistrates, ministers, civil and nilitary, and all our liege subjects within and belonging to the said colony, that in the execution of the seveal powers, jurisdictions and authorities hereby granted, made, given or created, they be aiding and assisting, and obedient in all things, as they will answer the contrary at their peril: Provided always, that nothing in hese presents contained, or any act which shall be done under the authority thereof, shall extend or be construed to extend to prevent us, our heirs and successors, to repeal these presents or any part thereof, To make such further or other provision by letters-patent for the administration of justice, civil and criminal, within the said colony and the places now or at any time hereafter to be annexed thereto, as to us, our heirs and successors, shall seem fit, in as full and ample a manner as if these presents had not been made, these presents or anything herein contained to the contrary thereof in anywise notwithstanding. 4th. The introduction, at a future period, of wine, olive oil, hemp, flax, silk, opium, &c. as articles of export to Great Britain.

Great Britain.

On the Stat December, 1836, the total number of sheep belonging to the company were French Merino, 4,940; Saxon Merino, 2865; Anglo Merino, 1552; improved colonial, 27,254:—total of sheep, 36,615: on the 31st December, 1836, there were, sheep, 65,589. Of horses, in 1834, thorough bred and Cleveland, and the produce of those breeds, 197; enionial ditto, 199; Welsh and Timour ponies, and their produce, 58:—total, 384.: in 1836, 453. Of cattle, in 1834, Durham, 23; improved colonial, 867; colonial, 1,305: working oxen, 227:—total 2,803: in 1836, 3,169. The number of acres of land in cultivation and parity cleared in 1839, was 2,000. The people employed were—of free, 60; tickets of leave men, 62; convicts, 343; exclusive of women and children.

In the year 1825, a negociation was concluded with his Majesty's government, by which the mines of coal in New South Wales which had been previously worked by the local government, were transferred to the company, with a grant of 3,000 acres of the coal field.

or x, we acres of the coal near.

These mines are situated at Newcastle, about 60 miles to the north of Sydney, at the south entrance of a secure harbour, called Port Hunter, containing a sufficient depth of water for vessels of about 250 tons, and into which the Coal River empties itself. The entrance of these mines is on a considerable elevation above the level of the sea, and the seams of coal are visible on the surface of the cliff, which forms the south headland of the harbour. The country immediately to the south of Port Hunter is an extensive field of coal, of which the strata have been traced for nine miles, when they bend downwards, and sink below the level of the sea. Between the coal beds, are strata of sandstone and of clay slate, embedded in which there is found abundance of argillaceous iron ore.

The mines are within a short distance of the sea, an inclined plane and level railway leading from the pits' mouth

The finnes are within a short distance of the sea, an inclined plane and level railway leading from the plas mount to the what; the coal is, therefore shipped with facility.

The works have been completed in a very superior style, and the operations are proceeding in a most satisfactory manner. The sale of coal has been steadily increasing each year since the establishment of the company's works, and the quality continues to improve. The rapid increase of the town of Sydney, the comparative failure of wood for fuel in its neighbourhood, together with the increasing introduction of steam vessels and steam engines, combine to offer the most flattering prospect of adding annually to the company's profits in this important department of their undersaking.

In the year 1836 the sales of coals were as follows:—To his Majesty's Government, 1,703 tons, at 8s., 680l.; to the public, 8,103 tons, at 9s., 3,646l.; to ditto, 2,841 tons, at 10s., 1,420l.; total tons, 12,646; total sum, 5,747l.

Abstract of the Australian Agricultural Company's Charter

The Australian Agricultural Company's charter, bearing date the 1st of October, 1824, is founded on the Act 5 Geo.

4, cap. 86. The charter, after setting forth the objects contemplated in the act, provides:

1. That all grants of land to the company shall be passed under the great seal of the colony, in pursuance of a warrant under the sign manual.

- 2. That a quit-rent of one and a half per cent, shall be charged on the land, its value being estimated at la. 6d. 3. That no quit-rent shall be charged on the land during the term of five years, such term to be computed from the - date of the grant.
- 4. That the Company shall have the power to redeem their quit-rent, or any part thereof, on the payment of a sum equal to 20 times the value of the quit-rent to be redeemed. 5. That the company shall employ on their lands such a number of convicts as shall at least be equal to the number of free labourers employed, provided the governor shall be able and willing to supply a sufficient number of convicts for that purpose.

- 6. That the company shall employ one free superintendent to every 50 convicts.
  7. That none of the company's land shall be in any way allenated during five years from the date of the grant, under pain of forfeiture of such land.
- 8. That the company shall have the power of alienating any portion of their land, not exceeding 50,000 acres, after having proved to the local government an expenditure in the improvement of their grant to the amount of 10,000*l*., and so on in like proportion, and on the same condition, to the extent of one half of their grant; and they shall also have the power of leasing for any period not exceeding 21 years, without any covenant of renewal, portions of their land, not exceeding one molety of the whole.
- 9. 10. 11. That the quit-rent chargeable on the company's land shall be paid at intervals of five years; the first payment to be made after the expiration of 10 years from the date of the grant. Provision is also made for the redemption of the quit-rent, by the employment and maintenance of 600 convicts during the greater part of the second period of five years from the date of the grant, of 1,000 convicts during the third period, and of 1,400 convicts during the fourth period.
- 13. That the whole amount of quit-rent shall be redeemed if within 20 years from the date of the grant, it shall appear that the company have relieved the treasury from a charge equal to 100,000l., to be calculated at the rate of 20l. for each convict supported during a year.

C .- VAN DIEMEN'S LAND-CHARTER OF JUSTICE. 4th March, 1831.

Extract from Patents of the First Year of the Reign of King William the Fourth.

WILLIAM the Fourth, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith, To all to whom these presents shall come, greeting: Whereas by an act passed in the fourth year of the reign of our royal brother and predecessor, his late Majesty King George the Fourth, intituled "An Act to provide until the first day of July, 1827, and until the end of the next session of parliament, for the better administration of justice in New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land, and for the more effectual government thereof, and for other purposes relating thereto," it was amongst other things enacted, that it should be lawful for his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, by charters or letters-patent under the great seal of the United Kingdomof Great Britain and Ireland, to erect and establish courts of judicature in New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land respectively, which should be styled "the Supreme Court of New South Wales," and "the Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land:" and whereas by letters-patent under the great seal of the United Kingdom aforesaid, bearing date at Westminster on the 13th day of October in the year aforesaid, his said late Majesty, in pursuance and by virtue of the said act of parliament, did grant, direct, ordain and appoint, that there should be within that part of the colony of New South Wales called Van Diemen's Land a court, which should be called "the Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land:" and whereas by a certain other act of parliament passed in the ninth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, intituled "an act to provide for the administration of justice in New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land, and for the more effectual government thereof, and for other purposes relating thereto," it was enacted, that it should be lawful for his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, by charters or letters-patent under the great seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, to creet and establish courts of judicature in New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land respectively, which should be styled "the Supreme Court of New South Wales," and "the Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land," and that each of such courts respectively should be holden by one or more judge or judges, not exceeding three, and should have such ministerial or other officers as should be necessary for the administration of justice in the said courts respectively, and for the execution of the judgments, decrees, orders and process thereof; and that the said judges should from time to time be appointed by his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors; and that the said ministerial and other officers of the said courts respectively should from time to time be appointed to and removed from their respective offices in such manner as his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, should by such charters or letters-patent as aforesaid direct: and it was thereby further enacted, that until his said late Majesty should cause such charters or letters-patent to be issued as aforesaid, the Supreme Courts of New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land respectively, instituted by his said late Majesty's letters-patent under the great seal, bearing date respectively the 13th day of October, in the fourth year of his said late Majesty's reign, should retain and exercise the several jurisdictions and dowers in such courts vested by his said late Majesty's said last-mentioned letters-patent, so far as the same might not be altered by that act, as fully and effectually as if such courts respectively had been instituted in virtue and in pursuance of the said act: and it was thereby enacted, that the said letters-patent and all orders, acts, matters and things made and done in pursuance of the powers and authorities vested in his said late Majesty in and by the said act passed in the fourth year of the reign of his said late Majesty should be of the same force and effect as if the same had respectively been issued, made, done and performed by virtue and in pursuance of the said act of the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign: now know ye, that we upon full consideration of the premises, and of our especial grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, have, in pursuance of the said act of parliament of the ninth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, thought fit to grant, direct, ordain and appoint, and by these presents do accordingly for us, our heirs and successors, grant, direct, ordain an appoint, that there shall be within our colony of Van Diemen's Land a court, which shall be called "the Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land;" and we do hereby create, direct and constitute the said Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land to be a court of record; and we do further will, ordain and appoint, that the said Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land shall consist of and be holden by and before two judges, of whom one shall be and be called the chief justice of the Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land, and the other shall be and be called the puisne judge of the Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land; and such judges shall respectively be the better enabling the said company to carry on the said trade," it was, amongst other things, enacted, that the several persons therein named and described should be and they were thereby created one distinct and separate body politic and corporate, by the name or style of "The Sierra Leone Company;" and it was also enacted, that it should be lawful for his said late Majesty, his heirs, and successors, to make unto the said company a grant by letters-patent, under the great seal of Great Britain, of so much and such part of all that tract or district of land situate and being at Sierra Leone, on the coast of Africa, and commonly called or known by the name or description of "The Peninsula of Sierra Leone," as then already might have or should thereafter by any grant, purchase, or cession from any of the kings, princes, or chiefs having right therein, become vested in his said late Majesty, his heirs, or successors, with power and liberty to and for the said company to purchase of and from all kings, princes, and chiefs, or other powers having right to make sale thereof, so much land as should include the whole tract or district so commonly called or known by the name of the Peninsula of Sierra Leone as aforesaid, bounded as thereinafter mentioned; to hold the same to the said company and their assigns, upon such terms, conditions, and reservations as his said late Majesty, his heirs, and successors should judge expedient; and it was thereby further enacted, that the said Act should take place and have continuance from the 1st day of July 1791, for the term of thirty-one years, and from thence to the end of the next session of Parliament: And whereas the said company, in pursuance of the said Act and immediately after passing the same, did raise a large capital of stock, and did enter upon the business and undertakings for which they were incorporated, and did also purchase from the natives of Sierra Leone aforesaid a part or district of the said peninsula, and form a very considerable establishment for their officers, servants, and settlers, and built a town called Freetown, and laid out plantations there, and also formed some other settlements or factories on the neighbouring coasts for the purpose of carrying on trade with this country in the natural productions of Africa: And whereas the said company humbly besought his said late Majesty, by petition, to make unto them such grant of the said penin-sula as in the said Act of Parliament is specified; and further to grant unto them certain powers, privileges, and franchises for the government of the said peninsula, and for the effectual administration of justice in civil causes, and for the trial and punishment of crimes or misdemeanors committed there, or in the said company's other factories and settlements, suggesting that the granting of such powers unto the said company would not only conduce to the welfare of the said peninsula, but would also tend (as there was great reason to believe) to advance the national interests on the continent of Africa: And whereas his said late Majesty having considered the premises, did by virtue and in pursuance of the said recited act, and of his own special grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, give and grant, by letters-patent under the great seal of Great Britain, bearing date at Westminster the 5th day of July in the fortieth year of his reign, for himself, his heirs and successors, to the said company, their successors, and assigns, under the reservations, limitations, and declarations thereinafter expressed, all and every such part and parts of all that tract and district of land, situate and being at Sierra Leone, on the coast of Africa, and commonly called or known by the name or description of "The Peninsula of Sierra Leone," as already had by any grant, purchase, or cession from any of the kings, princes, or chiefs having right therein become vested in his said late Majesty, his heirs, and successors, together with all the soils, grounds, havens, ports, gulfs, and bays, mines, minerals, precious stones, quarries, woods, rivers, waters, fishings, as well royal as other fishings, pearls, commodities, jurisdictions, royalties, franchises, privileges, and pre-eminences within the same, and the precincts thereof and thereunto in any sort belonging or appertaining, and which his said late Majesty, by his letters-patent, might or could grant, and in as ample a manner as his said late Majesty or any of his royal progenitors had hitherto granted to any company or body politic or corporate, or any other person or persons whomso-ever, and in as large and ample a manner as if the same were there particularly mentioned and expressed; and did further give and grant unto the said company, their successors, and assigns, full power, liberty, and privilege to purchase of and from all kings, princes, and chiefs, or other powers having right to make sale thereof, so much land in addition thereto as should include the whole tract or district commonly called or known by the name of "The Peninsula of Sierra Leone" as aforesaid, as the same was bounded on the north by the river Sierra Leone, on the south by the river Caramanca, on the east by the river Bruce, and on the west by the sea; to have, hold, and enjoy the same peninsula, and the whole use, property, and possession thereof, unto the said company, their successors, and assigns, to be holden of his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, as of his manor of East Greenwich, in the county of Kent, in free and common soccage and not in capite, yielding and paying therefore to his said late Majesty, his heirs, and successors, the rent or sum of ten shillings of lawful money of Great Britain, on the 1st day of September yearly, all which lands, countries, and premises thereby granted or mentioned, or intended so to be, his said late majesty did by the said letters-patent make, erect, and create one independent and separate colony, by the name of "The Colony of Sierra Leone;" and did further for himself, his heirs, and successors, grant unto the said company and their successors, and did by the said letters-patent or charter of justice ordain, will, and establish that the court of directors of the said company, assembled for that purpose, should and might make, enact, and declare laws, statutes, and ordinances fit and necessary for and concerning the government of the said colony, and that the same should be in full force and virtue within the said colony of Sierra Leone, so as the same should not be repugnant to the laws of this realm, and to impose reasonable fines, penalties, or forfeiture for any breach or breaches thereof; and did further will and ordain that the court of directors of the said company for the time being, being assembled for that purpose, should from time to time have full power and authority to nominate, make, constitute, and appoint a governor and three councillors for the government of the said colony, and the factories or settlements dependent thereon, and such governor and council, or any of them so appointed, at their pleasure to remove or recall, and another or others in his or their place or places to appoint; and that such governor and council so to be appointed, should and might make, enact, and declare laws, statutes, and ordinances fit and necessary for and concerning the government of the said colony, and not repugnant to the laws and statutes of this realm, and that the same should be in full force and virtue within the said colony of Sierra Leone until the said Court of Directors should think fit to disallow or disapprove of the same; and did further give and grant unto the said company and their successors, and did by the said charter ordain, direct and establish that there should be within the said town of Freetown one body politic and corporate, by the name or style of "The Mayor and Aldermen of Freetown," and that such body politic and corporate should consist of a mayor and three aldermen, and that the said body politic and corporate, by the name and style aforesaid, should have perpetual succession, and should and might be able and capable in law to sue and be sued in any courts and causes whatsoever, and should and might have a common seal for the business and affairs of the said corporation, which common seal they and their successors might break and change at their pleasure: And did further, by the said charter, direct that the persons constituted respectively the first and modern mayor, and the first and modern aldermen of the said town of Freetown, in and under the same, should, at a time to be appointed for that purpose by the governor, or in case of his absence, by the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, within fourteen days after notice of the said charter, take an oath duly to execute their respective offices, together with the oath of allegiance, which oath the said governor, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, was thereby empowered to administer, and that from the time of taking the said oaths of office and allegiance the said mayor should continue in the said office until another person should be duly elected and sworn into the said office as thereinafter was directed; and did by the said charter direct that the said persons therein nominated as aforesaid to be aldermen of Freetown, should continue in their respective offices of aldermen from the time of taking such oaths as aforesaid, for and during the term of their natural lives, unless their said places should be avoided, or themselves removed, in such manner as thereinafter was mentioned: And did further will and direct, that it should and might be lawful to and for the governor and council of the said colony for the time being, or the major part of them, whereof the said governor, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one, yearly and every year, on the first Monday in the month of September, to assemble themselves, and proceed to the election of one person out of the aldermen of the said town of Freetown to be mayor of the said town for one year, from the 29th day of September in every year, and until another should be duly elected and sworn into the said office: And did further ordain and appoint, that the person so chosen into the office of mayor should on or before the 29th day of September next after he should be chosen into his said office as aforesaid, take the usual oath of office and the oath of allegiance before the said governor for the time being, or in his absence, before the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, who were thereby authorized and required to administer the same, and should continue in such office for the space of one whole year from the said 29th day of September, and until another should be duly elected and sworn into the said office in manner before mentioned; and that in case any mayor should happen to die in his said office, the governor and council of the said colony for the time being, or the major part of them, (whereof the said governor, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one) should and might, as soon after as they conveniently could, assemble and elect one other person out of the said aldermen of the said town of Freetown for the time being to be mayor of the said town of Freetown for the remainder of the year, and until another should be duly elected and sworn into the said office; and that the person so chosen and appointed as aforesaid should immediately thereupon take the same oaths of office and allegiance as were before directed to be taken by the mayors of the said corporation: And did further ordain, that the mayor of the said town of Freetown thereinbefore nominated, and every other person who should thereafter be mayor of the said town, should, after the determination of his office of mayor, continue to be one of the aldermen of the said town until his said place shall be avoided and himself removed in manner thereinafter mentioned; provided that the mayor for the time being should be capable of being re-elected from time to time when and as the electors should think fit: And did further will and direct, that so often as any of the aldermen of the said town should die or be removed, or their places be avoided in manner thereinafter mentioned, the governor and council of the said colony for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the said governor, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one), should and might assemble and elect some other fit person out of the inhabitants of the said town of Freetown into the said place of alderman, who should, within fourteen days after his election, take the oath of office and the oath of allegiance before the governor of the said colony for the time being, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, and should continue in such office during his life, unless his said place should be avoided, or himself removed, in such manner as thereinafter was mentioned; and that if any person so chosen an alderman should neglect or refuse to accept such office, not having a reasonable excuse for so doing, and should not within fourteen days next after such his election take the oath of office and the oath of allegiance, then and in such case every such person should forfeit and pay such reasonable fine as should for that purpose be fixed and agreed on by the court of the mayor and aldermen thereinafter constituted, with the approbation and consent of the said governor and council of the said colony for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the said governor, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one), to be by them signified to the said court in writing: And did further by the said charter ordain and provide, that if the said mayor, or any of the said aldermen, should remove or return to Europe, or should otherwise be absent from the said town of Freetown by the space of three calendar months, unless for such reasonable cause as the said governor and council for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the said governor, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one), should allow, or should become the said company's governor, or one of their council of the said colony, in every such case the place or office of every such mayor or alderman should be void; and it should and might be lawful to choose another mayor or alderman in the place and stead of such person, in the same manner as was before provided in case such mayor or alderman had been naturally dead: And did further thereby direct and appoint, that it should and might be lawful to and for the said governor and council of the said colony for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the said governor, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one), to remove any of the said aldermen, upon reasonable cause, provided that a complaint in writing were first exhibited against him, and that he had a reasonable time given him for his defence, and were summoned for that purpose, in case he should be resident within the limits and precincts of the said town of Freetown; but that in case any person should think himself aggrieved by any such sentence or adjudication of removal, such person might, within one calendar month after notice of such removal, appeal to the said court of directors, upon giving security to pay the costs of such appeal in case such sentence or adjudication should be affirmed, although such appeal should not suspend the execution of such sentence: And did further by the said charter ordain, direct, and appoint, that the mayor and aldermen for the time being of the town of Freetown aforesaid should be, and they were thereby constituted, a court of record, by the name of "The Mayor's Court of Freetown;" and that they, or any two or more of them (whereof the mayor, or the senior alderman for the time being residing there to be one), might, and they were thereby authorized to try, hear, and determine all civil suits, actions, and pleas between party and party that should or might arise or happen, or that had already arisen or happened, within the said colony of Sierra Leone, or any of the factories subject or subordinate thereunto, except such suits or actions as should be between natives of Africa only not become settlers within the said colony or factories, in which case his said late Majesty willed that the same should be determined among themselves, unless both parties should by consent submit the same to the determination of the said mayor's court, and also except where the cause of action or suit should not exceed the value of 40s.: Provided, that if the said mayor, or any of the said aldermen, should be in any ways interested in the event of any such action or suit, no such mayor or aldermen so interested as aforesaid should sit or act as judge in such suit or action, but that the same should be heard and determined by such of them, the said mayor and aldermen, as should be no ways interested therein; and that in all cases where the number of voices should be equal in the determination of any action or suit, the mayor, or in his absence, the senior alderman present, should have two voices: And did further by the said charter direct, that the person constituted first sheriff of the said colony in and under the same, should, at a time to be appointed for that purpose by the governor, or in his absence, by the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone aforesaid, within fourteen days after notice of the said charter, take an oath duly to execute his office, together with the oath of allegiance, which oaths the said governor, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone aforesaid, was thereby empowered to administer; and that from the time of taking the said oaths of office and allegiance the said sheriff should continue in the said office until another should be duly elected and sworn into the said office, as thereinafter was directed; and that the governor and council of the said colony for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the said governor, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leoue, to be one), should yearly, on the first Monday in the month of September, assemble themselves, and proceed to the election of a new sheriff for the year ensuing, to be computed from the 29th day of September next after such election, which sheriff, when elected, so soon as conveniently might be, and before he should enter upon his said office, should take the usual oath of office and the oath of allegiance before the said governor for the time being, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, who were thereby authorized to administer the same, and should continue in such office during the space of one whole year, from the said 29th day of September, and until another should be duly elected and sworn into the said office, unless his said place should be avoided in such manner as thereinafter was mentioned; and that in case any such sheriff should die in his office, or should remove from the said town of Freetown, or be absent from the same by the space of three calendar months, unless for such reasonable cause as the said governor and council for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the governor, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one) should allow, then the said governor and council, or the major part of them (whereof the governor, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one), should and might, as soon as conveniently might be after the death, removal, or absence of such sheriff, assemble and choose another person to be sheriff in his room, who should be sworn as aforesaid, and continue in his office for the remainder of the year, and until another should be duly elected and sworn into the said office; and that the said sheriff thereby appointed, and every other sheriff so to be elected and sworn as aforesaid, should, during his and their continuance in such office respectively, have full power and authority to summon juries, execute and make return of all process of the said court, and of any other court erected by the said charter within the districts aforesaid; and in case of the absence of any such sheriff for such reasonable cause, to be allowed as aforesaid, the deputy or under sheriff, to be appointed by such sheriff, should return all process, and do all acts in the name of and by virtue of the authority of such sheriff: And did further by the said charter direct, ordain, and appoint, that upon complaint, to be made in writing to the said court, by or on behalf of any person or persons against any other person or persons whomsoever, then residing or being, or who, at the time when such cause of action had or should have accrued, did or should reside or be within the said town or elsewhere in the said colony of Sierra Leone, or any of the factories subordinate thereto, of any of the causes of suit aforesaid already accrued, or which should or might thereafter accrue, unless the same should be between the natives only of Africa, not become settlers within the said colony of Sierra Leone or the said factories, or unless such cause of suit should not exceed the value of 40s., the said court should and might issue a summons in writing, under the hands and scals of two of the judges of the said court, (whereof the mayor for the time being, or in his absence, the senior alderman residing within the said town of Freetown, to be one,) to be directed to the said sheriff, requiring the party or parties, defendant or defendants, to appear before them at a certain time and place therein to be appointed, to answer the said complaint, and in default of appearance upon return of the said summons at such time and and place, the said court should and might issue forth a warrant, under the hands and seals of any two of the judges of the said court, (whereof the mayor for the time being, or the senior alderman then residing within the said town of Freetown, to be one, unless the said mayor or senior alderman should be a party in such action or suit, and in that case under the hands and scals of any other two of the judges of the said court) directed to the said sheriff for the time being, to take the body or bodies of such defendant or defendants, and bring him or them before the said court, at a certain time and place therein to be appointed, to answer to the said complaint; and in case of appearance or arrest of the body or bodies of such defendant or defendants, to let such defendant or defendants out to bail upon giving sufficient security (which his said late Majesty did thereby empower the said court to take) to abide and perform the final order and judgment of the said court, or such final order and judgment as should or might be given upon any appeal to be brought in the said cause, or to surrender himself to the said court to be charged in execution till the said judgement should be satisfied; and in default of finding bail, or giving such security as aforesaid, to detain such defendant or defendants in custody, until he, she, or they should have found such bail, or have given such security as aforesaid, or should have judgment or sentence given for him, her, or them for such complaint; and after such bail-bond or security given as aforesaid, or in case such defendant or defendants should be detained in custody for want of bail or security, his said late Majesty did thereby for himself, his heirs and successors, ordain, direct, and authorize the said court to proceed to the examination of the matter and cause of complaint, either upon the oath or oaths or solemn affirmation of any witness or witnesses, to be taken in the most solemn manner; that is to say, the oath or oaths of such witness or witnesses who should profess the Christian religion to be taken upon the Holy Evangelists, unless such witness or witnesses should be of the persuasion of the people called Quakers, in which case a solemn affirmation should be sufficient; and upon the oath or solemn affirmation of any of the natives, in such manner as they should esteem to be most binding on their consciences to oblige them to speak the truth, for which purpose the said court was empowered and required by the said letters-patent to administer such oath or affirmation to such witness or witnesses as should be produced on behalf of either party (plaintiff or defendant), or by the confession or admission of such defendant or defendants in his, her, or their answer, upon the like oath or affirmation, according to his, her, or their religion, sect, or caste respectively, which oath or affirmation the said court was also by the said letters-patent empowered to administer; and that thereupon it should be lawful for the said court to give judgment and sentence according to law and equity, and to award and issue a warrant or warrants of execution under the hands and seals of two of the judges of the said court (whereof the mayor of the said town of Freetown for the time being, or the senior alderman then residing within the said town, to be one, unless they or either of them should be interested therein, and in that case, under the hands and seals of any two of the aldermen not interested therein), to be directed to the sheriff for the time being, for levying the debt, duty, or damages adjudged or decreed to the party or parties, complainant or complainants, together with their costs of suit, upon the goods and chattels of such defendant or defendants, or to cause sale to be made of his, her, or their goods and chattels, rendering to the party the overplus, if any were; and for want of sufficient distress, his said late Majesty did thereby give full power and authority to the said court to imprison the defendant or defendants until satisfaction was made by him, her, or them to the plaintiff or plaintiffs of the debt, duty, or damages decreed or adjudged, together with the costs of suit; and in case judgment were given for the defendant or defendants, full power and authority were thereby likewise given to the said court to award costs to such defendant or defendants, and to issue the like process and execution for the same as in cases where costs were awarded to any plaintiff or plaintiffs; and that if any action or suit should be brought or commenced against the mayor of the said corporation for the time being during his being or continuing in his office, it should and might be lawful for the said mayor's court to proceed in and determine such suit, in the same manner as in any other action or suit depending before them, but such mayor should not sit as judge or appear on the bench during the hearing of the said cause or making any order therein; and that if any action or suit should be brought against the said sheriff during his being and continuing in his office, it should and might be lawful to and for the said governor and council for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the governor or the senior of the council residing at Sierra Leone to be one), to nominate and appoint a proper person to execute the process and orders of the said court against such sheriff for the time being; and to the intent that due provision might be made that there might be no failure of justice, if the defendant or defendants, who was or were resident within the said town of Freetown or elsewhere within the said colony, or any of the factories or settlements subordinate thereto, at the time when any cause of action did accrue should withdraw himself, herself, or themselves out of or should not be found within the jurisdiction of the said court, his said late Majesty did by the said charter give, grant, will, direct, and appoint that in case the sheriff should make return to such summons or warrant of arrest that the party or parties, defendant or defendants therein mentioned, or any of them, was or were not to be found within the jurisdiction of the said court, it should and might be lawful to and for the said court, upon an affidavit of proof verifying the demand of the plaintiff or plaintiffs in such suit to the satisfaction of the said court, to grant a sequestration to seize the estate and effects of such party or parties, defendant or defendants, to such value as the said court should think reasonable and should direct in such process of sequestration, and the same to detain in the hands of a proper person, to be appointed by the said court, till such party or parties should appear to the said complaint and give security as aforesaid; and in case the party or parties, defendant or defendants, should not appear and give security as aforesaid within the space of six months, unless it should be shewn to the said court on behalf of such defendant or defendants, that he, she or they was or were residing in Great Britain or Ireland, then that it should and might be lawful for the said court to proceed to hear and determine the said cause, and to give judgment therein as aforesaid: and in case judgment should be given for the plaintiff or plaintiffs in such suit, to direct the effects so seized to be sold, and out of the produce thereof to make satisfaction to the plaintiff or plaintiffs for the debt, duty or damages, and costs recovered, returning the overplus (if any should be) unto such defendant or defendants; and in case such produce should not be sufficient to make satisfaction to the plaintiff or plaintiffs, that then it should and might be lawful to and for the said court to award execution for the residue of the debt, duty or damages and costs, recovered in manner aforesaid: provided nevertheless, that in all cases where the action to be tried would, if the parties had been resident in this realm, have been tried by a jury in some court of law, every such action should be tried in the said mayor's court before a jury, according to the practice of the said courts of law in this realm, or as near thereto as the circumstances

would admit of; and his said late Majesty did thereby empower the said court to administer to such jury the usual oath taken in like cases in this realm: And for the considerations therein recited, his said late Majesty further, by the said charter, willed and ordained that all such money, securities and effects of the suitors of the said court as should be ordered in to court, or to be paid, delivered or deposited for safe custody. should be paid or delivered unto or deposited with the governor and council of the said colony, to be by them kept in deposit, subject to such orders and directions as the said mayor's court should from time to time think fit to make concerning the same for the benefit of the suitors; and did also give and grant unto the said court of directors of the said company, or the major part of them, full power and authority from time to time to name and appoint an officer, under the name of accountant-general of the mayor's court of Freetown, and the same at their pleasure to remove and another to appoint, who should act, perform and do all matters and things necessary to carry into execution the orders of the said mayor's court relating to the payment or delivery of the suitor's money, effects and securities unto the governor and council of the said colony, and taking the same out again, and keeping the accounts with the said governor and council and registrar, or other proper officer of the mayor's court, and other matters relative thereto, under such rules, methods and directions as should from time to time be made and given by the court of directors of the said company, which rules, methods and directions his said late Majesty thereby willed and directed should be according to such as were observed by the accountant-general of the High Court of Chancery of Great Britain, or as near thereto as might be, and as the situation and circumstances of affairs would admit; and did further thereby authorize the said mayor's court to administer oaths and affirmations, and to frame such rules of practice, and nominate and appoint such clerks and officers, and to do all such other things as should be found necessary for the administration of justice, and the due execution of all or any of the powers given to them by the said charter, so as they from time to time should give an account thereof unto the said company, and so as the same should be subject to the approbation, controul and alteration of the said court of directors of the said company, whom his said late Majesty did likewise will and ordain to have full power and authority to make such rules and orders for the better administration of justice as they should from time to time think fit and necessary; but such rules and orders so to be made by the said mayor's court, so far as the same should be repugnant to any rules or orders afterwards made by the said court of directors of the said company as aforesaid, should nevertheless be in force until the same should be revoked or altered by the said court of directors, and notice thereof given unto the said mayor's court: And did further thereby require and command that a table of fees to be allowed to such clerks and officers should be settled by the said mayor's court, and approved and signed by the governor and council of the said colony for the time being, and should be written out fair, and constantly fixed up in some visible and open part of the room or place where the said court should be held, and that it should be lawful for the said mayor's court, with the approbation of the said governor and council for the time being, or the major part of them, and also to and for the court of directors of the said company, to vary and alter such table of fees in such manner as they should think fit: And it was further by the said charter ordained and established, that if any person or persons should think him, her or themselves aggrieved by any judgment, sentence or decree of the said mayor's court, such person or persons should or might, within fourteen days after such judgment, sentence or decree of the said court should be entered of record, appeal to the governor and council of the said colony for the time being, whom (or any two or more, whereof the governor, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one) his said late Majesty did thereby for himself, his heirs and successors, constitute, nominate and appoint to be a court of record for that purpose to receive such appeals, and to hear and determine the same, and to do all other acts, matters and things necessarily incident thereto; provided, that if the said governor and council should be anyways interested in the event of any such action or suit, no person so interested should sit or act as a judge upon such appeal, but the same should be heard and determined by such of them, the said governor and council, as should be no ways interested therein, or any two or more of them; and that in all cases wherein the number of voices should be equal in the determination or judgment upon such appeal, the governor for the time being, or in his absence, the senior of the council who should be present, and not interested, should have two voices, which determination should be final if the debt, damages or things directed to be paid, done or delivered, or matters in dispute should not exceed the value of 400l.; but in case the same should exceed the value of 400l., any person or persons who should think him, her or themselves aggrieved by such judgment, sentence or decree made on such appeal, should and might, within fourteen days after the same should be entered of record, appeal to his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, in Council, (as is usual in cases of appeal from any of the colonies in the West Indies) upon giving security to pay interest (not exceeding the rate of interest which should prevail at the time of pronouncing such judgment, sentence or decree) for the thing adjudged or decreed to be paid, done or delivered, and the costs of such appeal, in case the said judgment, sentence or decree should be affirmed : And did further will and direct that the judgments, sentences and orders of his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, and of the said governor and council, made upon such appeals respectively, should and might be put in execution by the said mayor's court, in such manner as an original judgment of the said court should or might have been, and they the said court were thereby required and commanded to execute the same accordingly; and in case the said mayor's court should refuse or neglect to cause such judgments, sentences or orders to be executed within fourteen days after application made to them for that purpose, then that it should be lawful for, and the said governor and council were thereby required and commanded to execute or cause the same to be executed by such ways and means as the said mayor's court might have used or employed in executing the same: And did further direct and appoint that there should be within the said town of Freetown a court, which should be called "The Court of Requests for the town of Freetown, and the factories and settlements thereof;" and for that purpose willed and required the said governor and council, as soon as conveniently might be after the arrival of the said charter, to nominate and appoint some of the principal inhabitants of the town of Freetown aforesaid, not more than twenty-four nor fewer than eight, to be commissioners to hear and determine suits in a summary way, under such rules, orders and regulations as should from time to time be given or sent to them under the hands of the court of directors of the said company, which commissioners, any three or more of them, should have full power and authority to hear and determine all such actions or suits as should be brought before them, where the debt, duty or matter in dispute should not exceed or be more than the value of 40s.; which commissioners so to be appointed should sit one day in every week from the hour of nine to eleven in the forenoon, or longer if the business should require, to hear and determine all such causes as should be brought before them not exceeding the value aforesaid: And did further by the said charter will, ordain and establish that the Governor and council of the said colony for the time being should be justices of the peace, and have power to act as justices of the peace in and for the said town of Freetown and throughout the said colony of Sierra Leone, and all the factories and settlements subordinate thereto, in the same or the like mauner, and with the same or the like powers, as justices of the peace constituted by any commission or letters patent under the great seal of Great Britain, for any county, city or town corporate in that part of Great Britain called England, did or might exercise such office: And did further will and provide that the said governor and council for the time being, or any two or more of them, (whereof the governor for the time being, or in his absence the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one,) should and might hold quarter sessions of the peace four times in the year within the district aforesaid, and should at all times thereafter be a court of record in the nature of a court of over and terminer and gaol delivery, and should from time to time and at all times thereafter be commissioners of over and terminer and gaol delivery for the trying and punishing of all offenders and offences (high treason only excepted) had, committed or done, or to be had, committed or done within the said town of Freetown or elsewhere within the said colony of Sierra Leone, and any of the said factories or settlements subordinate thereto; and that it should and might be lawful to and for the said justices of the peace and commissioners of over and terminer and gaol delivery respectively to proceed by indictment or by such other ways, and in the same or the like manner, as was used in that part of Great Britain called England, as near as the condition and the circumstances of the place and inhabitants would admit of; and for that purpose to issue their warrant or precept to the sheriff of the said district for the time being, commanding him to summon a convenient number of the principal inhabitants within the said district to serve and attend as a grand and petty jury at the said court respectively; and that the said justices of the peace and commissioners of over and terminer and gaol delivery respectively, should and might administer to them the usual oath taken in England by grand and petty juries, and also administer to the witnesses who should be produced for or against the party to be tried, a proper oath or affirmation, in such manner as they should esteem most binding on their consciences to oblige them to speak the truth, and that the said justices and commissioners should and might respectively proceed to the arraignment, trial, conviction and punishment of persons accused of any crimes or offences, (high treason only excepted,) in the same or the like manner and form, as near as the condition and circumstances of the place and inhabitants would admit of, as any justices of the peace or commissioners of over and terminer and gaol delivery in that part of Great Britain called England usually and legally do; and that the said court might assemble and adjourn at and unto such times and places as they should judge convenient: And did thereby direct that the said governor should before the council there, or the major part of them, take an oath faithfully to execute the said offices of governor, justice of the peace, and commissioners of over and terminer and gaol delivery, together with the oath of allegiance, which oaths they were thereby empowered to administer; and after the taking such oaths, did thereby authorize the said governor to administer an oath to the council faithfully to execute the said offices of council, justices of the peace, and commissioners of over and terminer and gaol delivery, together with the oath of allegiance: and did by the said charter further ordain, establish and appoint, that when any person should die within the said town of Freetown or elsewhere within the said colony of Sierra Leone, or any of the factories or settlements subordinate thereto, and should by his will appoint any person or persons within the said town or colony, or the factories or settlements aforesaid, to be his executor or executors, then and in such case the said mayor's court, upon proof made of the due execution of the said will, should and the same was thereby authorized and required to grant probate of the said will under the seal of the said court, (which seal the said court was authorized by the same to use for that and other purposes,) whereby the person or persons so named executor or executors should have full power and ample authority to act as such, as touching the debts and estates of his, her or their testator; and where any person should die within the town or factories, or limits thereof, intestate, or not having appointed some person or persons to be executor or executors residing within the said town, colony, factories, or settlements that in either of these cases the said mayor's court should, and the same was thereby empowered and required to grant letters of administration or letter of administration with an authentic copy of the will annexed, (determinable upon any executor named in such will appearing in court and praying probate thereof,) as touching the debts and estate of the person dying intestate or not naming such executor as aforesaid that should be or arise within the limits aforesaid, to such person or persons then residing within the jurisdiction of the said court as should be next of kin to the person so dying or his residuary legatee, and in case there should be no such person within the said jurisdiction then to the principal creditor of the person so dying, and for want of any creditor appearing, then to such other person or persons as should be thought proper by the said court, every such person or persons to whom auch administration should be granted first giving security by bond (respect being had to the value of the estate) to the mayor of the said town, with condition in the form usually given in courts ecclesiastical within that part of Great Britain called England, or as near thereto as the nature and circumstances of the case would admit; and that such person or persons to whom administration should be so granted should and might act in all respects as administrator or administrators touching the dehts, effects and estates of such person or persons to whom he, she or they should take out administration as aforesaid, which should be or arise within the said limits: And whereas in pursuance and by virtue and authority of the said letters-patent, such governor and council, mayor's court, and such other courts and officers as are therein mentioned, were fully constituted, elected and appointed within the said colony of Sierra Leone, and entered upon and thenceforward exercised the various jurisdictions and authorities, offices and functions respectively granted to and vested in them in and by the said charter, and divers laws and statutes and ordinances fit and necessary for and concerning the government of the said colony, and not repugnant to the laws and statutes of this realm, were from time to time made, enacted and declared as well by the said governor and council as by the said court of directors of the said company, and divers rules and orders for the better administration of justice were also from time to time made by the said mayor's court in further pursuance of the said charter: And whereas by an act of parliament passed in the forty-seventh year of the reign of his said late Majesty, intituled, "An Act for transferring to his Majesty certain possessions and rights vested in the Sierra Leone company, and for shortening the duration of the said company, and for preventing any dealing or trafficking in the buying or selling of slaves within the colony of Sierra Leone, reciting the said act of parliament therein first recited, and in part reciting or mentioning the said letterspatent hereinbefore recited; and further reciting that the said company, convinced of the expediency of relinquishing the government and management of the said colony, had expressed a desire to make and had humbly entreated his said late Majesty to accept a surrender to his said late Majesty of all the tract or district of land granted to them by the said letters-patent or charter of justice, or of which the said company were possessed, or which they did then enjoy by purchase or otherwise in addition to the said lands so granted as aforesaid to the said company, and that they were further desirous that their existence as a body politic and corporate should cease and determine within such period of time, shorter than that limited and declared in and by the said first herein recited statute, as was deemed by the said company sufficient for them in which to settle their affairs: And whereas, for confirming and giving effect to such intended surrender and for limiting the duration of the said company, it was in and by the said now recited act enacted that the said letters patent or charter of justice and grant therein mentioned and hereinbefore recited, and every matter, clause and thing therein contained, should and the same were thereby declared to be henceforth nul and void, and that the said company should be and they were thereby divested of and from all that tract and district of land commonly called and known by the name or description of the Peninsula of Sierra Leone, and of and from all forts, castles, buildings or estate which had been after purchased or otherwise acquired by the said company in addition thereto, or which then were possessed or claimed by the said company in or about the said peninsula, and that the said tract or district of land, and all forts, castles, buildings or estate so purchased or otherwise acquired, possessed, enjoyed or claimed by the said company, should thenceforth be, and the same and every of them were and was thereby declared and enacted to be fully and absolutely vested in his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever: And whereas it was in the said act now in recital further enacted, that at the expiration of seven years from and after the passing of the said act the said Sierra Leone company should cease to be a body politic and corporate to all intents, constructions and purposes whatsoever, anything in the said herein first recited act to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding; provided always and it was thereby further enacted, that it should not be lawful for any person or persons whatsoever inhabiting or being, or who should at any time thereafter inhabit or be within the said peninsula or colony of Sierra Leone, either directly or indirectly, to deal or traffic in, buy or sell, or to be aiding or assisting in the dealing or trafficking, in the buying or selling of slaves, either within the said peninsula or elsewhere : And whereas, in pursuance of the said act of parliament last recited, the said company did on or about the 27th day of July, in the forty-eighth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, actually and fully surrender to the governor for the time being of the said colony, by his said late Majesty in that behalf appointed and authorized, the possession of the said colony or peninsula, tract or district of land, and all forts, castles, buildings and estate, which by the true intent and meaning of the said last recited act of parliament ought to have been so surrendered, and the same were thenceforth in the possession and under the government of his said late Majesty: And whereas, it being necessary to provide for the immediate government and administration of justice within the said colony, his said late Majesty did soon after the passing of the said act transmit instructions to the said governor thereof for the time being, directing him to continue in all respects the administration of justice, and the interior government of the said colony, according to the provisions and directions, powers and authorities contained in the said in part recited letters-patent or charter of justice, as if the same were still in force; and the said governor and council, mayor's court and other courts so constituted and appointed as aforesaid, and the councillors, judges and officers thereof respectively, and other judges and officers subsequently elected and appointed pursuant to the directions of the said charter, did accordingly continue to exercise their former jurisdictions, functions and authorities, and divers proceedings as well judicial as ministerial were had by and before them, and judgments given and decrees or orders made in the said courts, and wills proved and administrations granted in the said mayor's court pursuant to the provisions of the said charter; all which acts and proceedings, subsequent to the annulling of the said letters patent or charter of justice, it was deemed expedient to ratify and confirm: And whereas it was his said late Majesty's royal will and pleasure, that for the better administration of justice within the said colony, a chief justice thereof should from time to time be appointed during pleasure, who should have such jurisdictions and authorities as are hereinafter mentioned, and who should also be judge of a court of vice-admiralty by his said late Majesty then lately constituted for the said colony, with such jurisdictions as then belonged to courts of vice-admiralty in the West India islands in general, and should be judge also of a court of prize, with such limited jurisdiction therein as his said late Majesty thought fit to grant by his prize commission in that behalf; but that in all other respects the laws and constitution of the said colony, and all the judicial and municipal authorities therein, should during his royal will and pleasure continue such as they were constituted and appointed to be by the said receited letters-patent or charter of justice, or under the authority thereof, as far as the said surrender made to his said late Majesty by the said company, and other the changes of circumstances would allow: And whereas his said late Majesty, in order to provide for the then future government of the said colony or peninsula of Sierra Leone, and all territories thereon depending in Africa, and for the administration of justice therein, did by letters-patent, under the great seal of Great Britain, bearing date at Westminster, the 9th day of August, in the forty ninth year of his reign, direct that the person appointed or to be appointed captain-general or governor-in-chief of the said colony, after the publication of the said letters-patent, should in the first place take the oaths appointed to be taken by an act passed in the first year of the reign of King George the First, intituled, "An Act for the further security of his Majesty's person and government, and the succession of the crown in the heirs of the late Princess Sophia being Protestants, and for extinguishing the hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales, and his open and secret abettors," as altered and explained by an act passed in the sixth year of his reign, intituled, "An Act for altering the oath of abjuration and the assurance, and for amending so much of an act of the seventh year of her late Majesty Queen Anne, intituled, 'an act for the improvement of the union of the two kingdoms,' as after the time therein limited requires the delivery of certain lists and copies therein mentioned to persons indicted of high treason or misprision of treason;" and should also make and subscribe the declaration mentioned in an act of parliament made in the twenty-fifth year of the reign of King Charles the second, intituled, "an act for preventing dangers which may happen from Popish recusants;" and should likewise take the oath usually taken by the governors in his Majesty's plantations, for the due execution of the office and trust of captaingeneral and governor-in-chief in and over the said colony or peninsula of Sierra Leone and the territories depending thereon, and for the due and impartial administration of justice; and further should take the oath required to be taken by governors of plantations to do their utmost that the several laws relating to trade and the plantations be duly observed; which said oaths and declarations the council of the said colony, or any two members thereof, were thereby empowered and required to tender and administer unto him, and in his absence to the lieutenant-governor, if any in the place, or if none, to such person to whom the administration of the government was committed, in manner as thereinafter provided; which being performed, that the said governor should administer to the chief justice therein nominated and appointed during pleasure, and the other members of the council of the said colony, as also to the lieutenant-governor, if any in the place, the oaths mentioned in the first recited act of parliament, altered as above, as also should cause them to make and subscribe the aforesaid declaration, and administer to them the several oaths for the due execution of their places and trusts; and did further give and grant unto the said governor full power and authority from time to time and at any time thereafter, by himself or by any other to be authorized by him in that behalf, to administer the oath mentioned in the said first recited act, altered as above, to all and every such person or persons as he should think fit, who should at any time pass into the said colony of Sierra Leone, or any of the factories and settlements within his government, or should be resident or abiding there; and that the said governor should have full power and authority to suspend any member of the council of the said colony from sitting, voting or assisting therein, if he should find just cause for so doing; and if there should be any lieutenant governor, him likewise to suspend from the execution of his command, and to appoint another in his stead until his said Majesty's pleasure should be known: and did further by the said letters patent ordain, will and direct, that the governor, or in his absence the lieutenant-governor commander inchief for the time being of the said colony, together with the council of the said colony, or the major part thereof, should have full power and authority to make, enact and ordain laws, statutes and ordinances for the peace, welfare and good government of the said colony, so as such laws, statutes and ordinances were not repugnant to the laws and statutes of this realm, but as near as might be agreeable thereto: provided that all such laws, statutes and ordinances, of what nature or duration soever, were within six months or sooner after the making thereof transmitted by the governor, licutenant-governor, or other commander in chief of the said colony for the time being, unto his said late Majesty for his approbation or disallowance of the same, as also duplicates thereof by the next conveyance; and in case all or any of the said laws, statutes or ordinancies, being not before comfirmed by his said late Majesty, should at any time he disapproved and disallowed by his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, and it should be so signified under his or their sign manual and signet, or by order of his or their privy council, unto the governor, lieutenant-governor or other commander in chief of the said colony for the time being, then that such and so many of the said laws, statutes and ordinances as should be so disapproved and disallowed, should from thenceforth cease, determine and become utterly void and of none effect, anything therein or in the said letters-patent contained to the contrary thereof notwithstanding; provided always, that nothing contained in the said letters patent should authorize or empower the said governor and council to impose any taxes or duties within the said colony, except such as might thereafter be found necessary for making roads, erecting and repairing public buildings, or other purposes of local convenience and economy, and for the interior welfare of the said colony: provided also, that no law, statute or ordinance, whereby any punishment might be inflicted greater than a fine or imprisonment for three months, should be of any force or effect until the same should receive his said late Majesty's approbation: and did by the said letters patent further will and establish, that all laws, statutes and ordinances which then or immediately prior to the annulling the said letters patent or charter of justice therein and hereinbefore in great part recited were in force within the said colony, whether ordained and made by the said charter, or in execution of any authority thereby granted, or otherwise howsoever, should be and continue of the same force and effect in the said colony as if the said charter had not been annulled and made void, except so far as the same related to the territorial or other rights and interests of the said Sierra Leone company, and to the government, administration, jurisdiction and authority of the said company in and over the said colony, under the said charter, until such laws, statutes and ordinances should be expressly repealed or varied by some law, statute or ordinance, to be made by the governor, lieutenant-governor or commander-in-chief for the time being of the said colony, and the council of the same, pursuant to the powers vested in them by the letters patent now in recital; and that all judgment, decrees, sentences, order, probates of wills, grants of letters of administration, and other judicial or ministerial acts and proceedings, made, passed or had subsequent to the annulling of the said charter, and before the publication of the letters patent now in recital in the said colony, should be and be deemed and taken to be of the same force and validity as if the said charter had not been annulled or repealed, but still continued in force; and did further ordain, will and direct, that the governor, or in his absence the lieutenant-governor or other commander-in-chief of the said colony for the time being, and the council of the same, should have, use, exercise and enjoy all and singular the offices, jurisdictions, powers and authorities within the said colony, which in

and by the said charter therein and herein recited were given and granted to the governor and council which the court of directors of the said Sierra Leone company were thereby empowered to constitute and appoint, save and except as was oth, wise directed or provided in and by the said letters patent now in recital. did further thereby give, grant and appoint, that there should be within the said town of Freetown a body politic and corporate, by the name and style of the mayor and aldermen of Freetown; and that such body politic and corporate should consist of a mayor and three aldermen, and should have perpetual succession, and should and might be able and capable in law to sue and be sued in any courts and causes whatsoever, and should have a common seal for the business and affairs of the said corporation, which common seal they and their successors might break and change at their pleasure; and that the persons bearing the offices of mayor and aldermen of Frectown at the time of the publication of the letters patent now in recital, by virtue of an election or appointment made under and by authority of the said annulled charter, though since the same was annulled, should be and continue respectively mayor and aldermen of Freetown, upon the conditions and under the limitations contained in the said charter; and that all the regulations and provisions contained in the said charter in respect to the annual election of the mayor and the determination of his office, and that of the aldermen, and the filling up of their places when vacant by death, absence or removal, should be observed and carried into execution in respect of the said mayor and aldermen constituted by the letters patent now in recital, as fully as if the same had been therein repeated. And did further will and ordain that the person bearing the office of sheriff at the publication of the letters patent now in recital, by virtue of any election or appointment made under and by authority of the said annulled charter, should notwithstanding retain such office until the time appointed in the said charter for the annual determination of such office, to act until the 29th day of September then next ensuing, and should then be succeeded by a new sheriff, to be elected and appointed by the governor and council of the said colony, at the time and in manner and form as directed by the said charter; and that the governor and council of the said colony should have the same powers of electing and appointing the sheriff as were in and by the said annulled charter given to the governor and council appointed by the said Sierra Leone company and its directors; and did further direct that the said sheriff so appointed or to be appointed as aforesaid should execute and perform all such or the like offices and duties, and have, possess and exercise all such or the like powers and authorities, as the sheriff appointed under the said annulled charter, while the same remained in force. And did further by the said letters patent will and appoint that the chief justice of the said colony during his continuance in the said office, and his successors the chief justices of the said colony, should be recorders of Freetown, and with the mayor and aldermen of Freetown for the time being, should be and they were thereby constituted a court of record, by the name of "the court of the recorder of Freetown," and that the said court should have, use and exercise the like jurisdictions, powers and authorities in all respects within the said colony of Sierra Leone, in like cases, and between the like persons and parties, as might have been had, used and exercised by the said mayor's court of Freetown, under and by virtue of the said therein and hereinbefore recited charter of justice, while the same remained in full force and virtue, except only where it was utherwise therein expressly declared or provided; and that the said court of the recorder of Freetown should also proceed in the same manner and form, and subject to the same rules as to trial by jury and otherwise, and to the same remedy or right of appeal, as were in the said therein and hereinbefore recited charter directed and provided in respect of the said mayor's court of Freetown, except as aforesaid; and that all rules of practice made by the said mayor's court of Freetown, and then or at the time of the annulling of the said charter remaining in force, should be observed and followed in and by the said court of the recorder of Freetown, until by the authority of that court the same should be varied or repealed: provided always, and it was thereby further ordained and directed, that the chief justice and recorder should preside in the said court, which should be held before him and the mayor and aldermen of Freetown for the time being, or three of them at least, that is to say, either the mayor and two of the said aldermen, or the three aldermen, except when such chief justice and recorder was a party to or interested in any suit, action or proceeding depending in the said court, in which case it was provided that such suit, action or proceeding should be adjudged, tried and determined by the mayor and aldermen alone, the mayor presiding; and if two or more of the said judges should be parties to or interested in any such suit, action or proceeding, then that the remaining judges of the said court should and might adjudge, try or determine the same, the senior alderman presiding when the chief justice and recorder, and mayor, should be for the reason aforesaid incompetent to sit. Provided further, that in case of the death, absence or long incapacity by sickness of the chief justice and recorder, the governor, lieutenant-governor or other commander-in-chief of the said colony for the time being, should and might appoint the most competent and proper person within the colony to act as chief justice and recorder during such absence or incapacity, or in the case of death, until a successor should be appointed by his said late Majesty, and should enter on the duties of the said office, which acting chief justice and recorder should be competent to preside in the said court, and to exercise all the jurisdictions, offices, functions and authorities of the said chief justice and recorder, until superseded by his return, or his becoming again capable, or by such new appointment as aforesaid. Provided also, that in case of any difference in opinion between the judges of the said court, touching the giving of any judgment or sentence, or the decision of any question depending before them, the majority should determine; and further, that when opinions should be equally divided, the chief justice and recorder, or the judge presiding in his stead, should have a double or casting voice. And did further direct and appoint, that from and after the publication of the said letters patent in the said colony at the period thereinafter appointed, the authority and functions of the said mayor's court of Frectown should cease and determine, to be thenceforth assumed and exercised by the said court of the recorder of Freetown; and that all actions, suits and proceedings then depending in the said mayor's court of Freetown should be respectively transferred in their then present condition to, and subsist and depend respectively, and be prosecuted, tried and determined respectively in the said court of the recorder of Freetown, just as if the same had been commenced respectively in the said last-mentioned court; and that all records, muniments and proceedings whatsoever of or belonging to the said mayor's court of Freetown, should be delivered over to and deposited with the records of the said court of the recorder of Freetown; and that from and after the same period, the said court of the recorder of Freetown should have and exercise such and the same jurisdictions, powers and authorities to grant probates of wills and letters of administration as were theretofore had and exercised by the said mayor's courts of Freetown, pursuant to the said annulled charter. And did further will and appoint, that the governor, lieutenantgovernor or other commander-in-chief, and council, for the time being of the said colony, should nominate and appoint a proper person to be accountant-general of the said court of the recorder of Freetown, who should execute and perform the same offices, trusts, matters and things as the accountant-general of the said mayor's court of Freetown was directed and empowered to execute and perform by the said annulled charter therein and hereinbefore recited, (save and except as to the direction and controul of the court of directors of the Sierra Leone company), subject to the orders of the said court of the recorder of Freetown, and to such directions in respect to the investment or security of the money belonging to suitors of the said court, and the securing and accounting for the same, as might be given from time to time by the said governor, lieutenant-governor or other commander-in-chief, and council, of the said colony for the time being, or by his said late Majesty in his privy council. And did further thereby will and establish, that the governor, lieutenantgovernor or other commander-in-chief, and council, of the said colony for the time being, should be, and they were thereby constituted a court of record to receive, hear and determine appeals from the said court of the recorder of Freetown, in the like cases, and subject to the like limitations, and rules and directions, as to their proceeding therein, and subject also to the like right of appeal from their judgment, sentence or decree to his said late Majesty in his privy council, when the debt, damages or thing or matter in dispute should exceed the value of 400l., and upon the like condition as to security to be thereupon given by the appellant, as were in and by the said annulled charter directed and provided in respect of appeals to the governor and council appointed by the said Sierra Leone company or its directors, and from them to his said late Majesty in his privy council respectively. And did further thereby ordain, will and establish, that there should be within the said town of Freetown a court, which should be called "the court of requests for the colony of Sierra Leone," and which should have and exercise such and the same jurisdiction, power and authority in all actions and suits brought before them, where the debt, duty or matter in dispute should not exceed the value of 40s., in the same way, and subject to the same rules and regulations, as were in and by the said recited letters patent or charter of justice mentioned, contained and provided in respect of the court of requests thereby constituted. And did further ordain and appoint that the governor, lieutenant-governor or commander-in-chief, and the members of the council of the said colony for the time being, should be, and the same were thereby constituted and apointed to be justices of the peace in and for the said town of Freetown, throughout the said colony of Sierra Leone and all the territories dependent thereon, with all such and the same jurisdictions, powers and authorities as lawfully could or might be exercised by justices of the peace duly constituted by his said late Majesty in that part of the United Kingdom called England, within the county, city or town corporate for which they were so constituted, so far as the laws of this realm were applicable to and in force in the said colony. And did further ordein, will and establish, that the chief justice and other members of council of the said colony for the time being (without the governor, lieutenant-governor or commander-in-chief) should and might hold quarter-sessions of the peace four times in the year within the said colony, and should from time to time and at all times thereafter be commissioners of Oyer and Terminer and gaol delivery, for the trying of all crimes and misdemeanours had, committed or done, or to be had, committed or done within the said town of Freetown or elsewhere within the said colony of Sierra Leone, or any territory dependent thereon; and that it should and might be lawful to and for the said justices of the peace and commissioners of Oyer and Terminer and gaol delivery respectively to proceed by indictment, or by such other ways and means, and in the same or like manner, as were used in that part of the United Kingdom called England, as near as the condition and circumstances of the said colony and the inhabitants thereof would admit of; and for those purposes to issue their warrants or precepts to the sheriff of the said colony for the time being, commanding him to summon a convenient number of the principal inhabitants within the said colony to serve and attend as grand and petty jurors at the said courts respectively; and that the said justices of the peace and commissioners of Oyer and Terminer and gaol delivery respectively should and might administer to such jurors the oaths usually taken in England by grand and petty jurors respectively, and also should and might administer a proper oath or affirmation to the witnessess who should be produced for or against the party accused; and that the said justices and commissioners should and might respectively proceed to the arraignment, trial, conviction and punishment of persons accused of any crimes or offences, in the same or the like manner and form, as near as the condition and circumstances of the place and inhabitants would admit of, as any justices of the peace or commissioners of Over and Terminer and gaol delivery usually and lawfully do within that part of the United Kingdom called England; and that the said courts might assemble and adjourn at and to such times and places as they might adjudge convenient. And did further direct and appoint, that as well the said justices of the peace and commissioners of Oyer and Terminer and gaol delivery, as the said chief justice and recorder, and other judges of the said court of the recorder of Freetown, should prior to their entering upon the execution of their said respective offices take on oath before the governor, lieutenant-governor, or commander-in-chief, and council, for the time being, faithfully to execute their said respective offices, together with the oath of allegiance, which oaths the said governor, lieutenant-governor, or commander-in-chief, and council, for the time being were thereby empowered to administer. And did further by the said letterspatent give and grant unto the governor of the said colony for the time being full power and authority from time to time to constitute and appoint all such officers and ministers as might be necessary in the said colony for the better administration of justice and putting the laws in execution, and for whose appointment his said late Majesty had not otherwise therein provided, and to administer or cause to be administered to them the usual oath or oaths for the due execution of their respective offices. And did thereby further give and grant unto the said governor full power and authority, when he should see cause, or should judge any offender or offenders, in criminal matters, or for any fines or forfeitures due unto his said late Majesty, fit objects of his mercy, to pardon all such offenders and to remit all such offences, fines and forfeitures, (treason and wilful murder only excepted,) and that in such cases he should have power upon extraordinary occasions to grant reprieves to the offenders, until and to the intent that his said late Majesty's pleasure might be known therein. And did further authorize and empower the said governor to collate any person or persons to any churches, chapels or ecclesiastical benefices within the said colony, as often as any of them should happen to be void. And did further give and grant unto the said governor, by himself, or by his captains and commanders by him to be authorized, full power and authority to levy, arm, muster, command and employ all persons whatsoever residing within the said colony and the territories dependant thereon, and as occasion should demand to march them from one place to another, or to embark them, for the resisting and withstanding of all enemies, pirates and rebels, both at sea and land, and such enemies, pirates and rebels, if there should be occasion, to pursue and prosecute in or out of the limits of the said colony; and if it should so please God, them to vanquish, apprehend, and take, and being taken, either according to law to put to death, or to keep and preserve alive, at his discretion; and to execute martial law in time of invasion, war, or other times when by law it might be executed, and to do and execute all and every other thing and things which to the captain-general and governor-in-chief of the said colony did or of right should belong; And did further give and grant unto the said governor full power and authority, by and with the advice and consent of the said council, to erect, raise and build in the said colony of Sierra Leone, and the territories depending thereon, such and so many forts and platforms, castles, cities, boroughs, towns, and fortifications, as he by the advice aforesaid should judge necessary, and the same or any part of them to fortify and furnish with ordnance, ammunition, and all sorts of arms fit and necessary for the security and defence of the said colony, and by the advice aforesaid, the same again, or any of them, to demolish or dismantle, as might be most convenient: And forasmuch as divers mutinies and disorders might happen by persons shipped and employed at sea during the time of war, and to the end that such as should be shipped and employed at sea during the time of war might be better governed and ordered, his said late Majesty did by the said letters-patent give and grant unto the said governor of the said colony full power and authority to constitute and appoint captains, lieutenants, masters of ships, and other commanders and officers, and to grant to such captains, lieutenants, masters of ships, and other commanders and officers, commissions to execute the law martial during the time of war, according to the directions of an act passed in the twenty-second year of the reign of his said late Majesty King George the Second, intituled, " An Act for amending, explaining, and reducing into one Act of Parliament the laws relating to the government of His Majesty's ships, vessels, and forces by sea," as the same is altered by an act passed in the nineteenth year of the reign of his said late Majesty King George the Third, Our royal father, intituled "An Act to explain and amend an Act made in the twenty-second year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Second, intituled An Act for amending, explaining, and reducing into one Act of Parliament the laws relating to the government of His Majesty's ships, vessels, and forces by sea;" and to use such proceedings, authorities, punishments, corrections upon any offender or offenders who should be mutinous, seditious, disorderly, or any way unruly, either at sea or during the time of their abode and residence in any of the ports, harbours or bays of the said colony, as the case should be found to require, according to martial law, and the said directions during the time of war as aforesaid: provided that nothing therein contained should be construed to the enabling of him or of any by his authority, to hold plea or to have any jurisdiction of any offence, cause, matter or thing committed or done upon the high sea, or within any of the havens, rivers, or creeks of the said colony and territories under his government, by any captain, lieutenant, commander, master, officer, seaman, soldier, or other person whatsoever, who should be in his said late Majesty's actual service and pay, in or on board of any ship of war or other vessel acting by immediate commission or warrant from the commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, or from the lord high admiral for the time being, under the seal of the admiralty; but that such captain, commander, lieutenant, master, officer, seaman, soldier, or other person so offending should be left to be proceeded against and tried as their offences should require, either by commission under the great seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, pursuant to the statute of the twenty-eighth of Henry the Eighth, or by commission from the said commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral for the time being, according to the afore-mentioned act, intituled "An Act for amending, explaining, and reducing into one Act of Parliament the laws relating to the government of his Majesty's ships, vessels, and forces by sea," as altered and amended by the said act passed in the nineteenth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, and not otherwise; provided nevertheless, that all offences and misdemeanors committed on shore by any captain, commander, lieutenant, master, officer, seaman, soldier, or other person whatsoever, belonging to any ship of war or other vessel acting by immediate commission or warrant from the said commissioners or lord high admiral for the time being as aforesaid, might be tried and punished according to the laws of the place where any such offences or misdemeanors should be so committed on shore, notwithstanding such offenders were in his said late Majesty's actual service, and borne in his pay on board any such ship of war or other vessels acting by immediate commission or warrant from the said commissioners or lord high admiral for the time being as aforesaid, so that such offender shall receive no protection for the avoiding of justice for such offences so committed on shore, from any pretence of his being employed in his said late Majesty's service at sea: And did further will and appoint that all public monies which should be raised by any law, statute, or ordinance to be thereafter made within the said colony, should be issued out by warrant from the said governor, by and with the advice and consent of the council of the said colony, and disposed of for the purpose directed and appointed by such law, statute, or ordinance, and not otherwise: And did further give and grant unto the said governor full power and authority, by and with the advice and consent of the said council, to settle and agree with the inhabitants of the said colony for such lands, tenements, and hereditaments as then were or thereafter should be in his said late Majesty's power to dispose of, and them to grant to any person or persons, upon such terms, and under such moderate quit-rents, services and acknowledgments to be thereupon reserved unto his said late Majesty, as he the said governor, by and with the advice aforcsaid, should think fit; which said grants were directed to pass and be sealed by the seal of the said colony, and being entered upon record by such officer or officers as were or should be appointed thereunto, were declared to be good and effectual in law against his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors: Provided always, and it was thereby ordained, that no grant, lease, or demise at any time theretofore made by or under the authority of the said Sierra Leone Company, prior to the said surrender to his said late Majesty of their territorial rights and interest in the said colony and its dependencies, pursuant to the Act of Parliament aforesaid, whether the same were by deed or writing, or by parole only, should be in any manner impeached or avoided, but that the same should be and be taken to be as valid and effectual, to all intents and purposes, against his said late Majesty, his heirs, and successors, as if the said surrender pursuant to the said Act of Parliament therein and hereinbefore recited had not been made; and that all such grants, leases, and demises of lands or tenements within the said colony should be confirmed by the said governor under the seal of the said colony, if the grantees, lessees, or parties beneficially interested therein should apply for and request such confirmations: And did further give and grant unto the said governor full power and authority to order and appoint fairs, marts, and markets; and also such and so many ports, har-bours, bays, havens, and other places for the convenience and security of shipping, and for the better loading and unloading of goods and merchandize, in such and so many places as by him, by and with the advice of the said council, should be thought fit and necessary: and did further require and command all officers and ministers, civil and military, and all other inhabitants of the said colony and the territories dependent thereon, to be obedient, aiding and assisting unto the said governor, in the execution of the several powers and authorities in the said letters patent contained; and in case of his death or absence out of the said colony and the territories dependent thereon, to be obedient, aiding, and assisting unto such person as should be appointed by his said late Majesty's lieutenant governor or commander-in-chief of the said colony for the time being, to whom his said late Majesty did by the same give and grant all and singular the powers and authorities therein granted to the governor of the said colony, to be by him executed and enjoyed during pleasure, or until the arrival of the governor within the said colony; and if, upon the death or absence of the governor from the said colony and territories dependent thereon, there was no person in the place commissioned by his said Majesty to be lieutenant governor or commanderin-chief of the said colony, then that the member of council next in seniority to the chief justice for the time being (to which chief justice his said late Majesty did by the said letters-patent grant rank and precedency above and before all subjects whomsoever in the said colony, the governor, lieutenantgovernor, or other commander-in-chief of the said colony for the time being only excepted; and that the said chief justice should be a member of council by virtue of his office, and preside therein in the absence of the governor or lieutenant-governor; provided always, that he should in no case succeed to the chief com-mand of the said colony), who should be resident within the said colony, should take upon him the administration of the government of the said colony, and execute the several powers and authorities contained in the said letters patent until the return of the said governor, if absent from the said colony, or until, in case of the death of the said governor, his said late Majesty's further pleasure were known therein. And whereas, by an Act of Parliament made and passed in the first and second year of our reign, intituled, "An Act for abolishing the African Company, and transferring to and vesting in his Majesty all the Forts, Possessions, and Property now belonging to or held by them," it was, among other things, enacted, that from and after the 3rd day of July, 1821, the said corporation of the company of merchants trading to Africa should wholly cease and determine and be abolished, and the said company of merchants trading to Africa should no longer be or be deemed to be a body politic or corporate; and that all grants made to the said company by or under or in pursuance of certain therein recited acts of parliament, or any or either of them, or in pursuance of any thing therein contained, should, and the same were thereby declared to be thenceforth null and void; and that the said company should be, and the said company were thereby divested of and from all forts, castles, buildings, possessions, or estate or rights which were given to the said company by or under or in pursuance of the said therein-recited acts, or any or either of them, or which had been since purchased or otherwise acquired by the said company in addition thereto, or which then were possessed or claimed or held by the said company on the said coast; and that the said forts, castles, buildings, possessions, estate, and rights so acquired, possessed, enjoyed or claimed, or then held by the said company, should thenceforth be, and the same and every of them were, and were thereby declared and enacted to be fully and absolutely vested in us, our heirs and successors for ever: And whereas it was further enacted in and by the said act of parliament, that from and after the passing of that act, it should and might be lawful for us to order and direct that all or any of the forts and possessions therein and hereinbefore mentioned, and also any territories, islands, or possessions on the west coast of Africa, between the twentieth degree of north latitude and the twentieth degree of south latitude, which then did or at any time thereafter should or might belong to us, should be annexed to or made dependencies on the colony of Sierra Leone; and that from the date of their being so annexed or made dependencies on the said colony, they should be subject to all such laws, statutes, and ordinances as should be in force in the said colony, or should at any time hereafter be made, enacted, or ordained by the governor and council of the said colony, and should not be disallowed by us, in the same manner as if the said forts, possessions, territories, or islands had originally formed part of the said colony of Sierra Leone: Now know ye, that we, having considered the premises, and being willing and desirous to provide for the future good government, as well of the said forts and possessions so heretofore acquired, purchased, enjoyed, claimed, or held by the said African company, as of all and every other the territories, islands, or possessions on the west coast of Africa, between the twentieth degree of north latitude and the twentieth degree of south latitude, which now do or at any time hereafter shall or may belong to us, our heirs, and successors, do by these presents, by virtue and in pursuance of the said recited act, and of our special grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, order, direct, and appoint, that all and every of the said forts and possessions so heretofore acquired, purchased, enjoyed, claimed, or held by the said African company, and also all territories, islands and possessions which now do or at any time hereafter shall or may belong to us, our heirs and successors, on the west coast of Africa, between the twentieth degree of north latitude and the twentieth degree of south latitude, shall be annexed to and made dependencies on, and the same are hereby annexed to and made dependencies on the said colony of Sierra Leone; and that from the publication of these presents in the said colony of Sierra Leone, as hereinafter directed, the same shall be and they are hereby made subject to all such laws, statutes, and ordinances as shall be in force in our said colony, or as shall at any time hereafter be made, enacted, or ordained by the governor and council of the said colony, and shall not be disallowed by us, our heirs, and successors, in the same manner as if the said forts, possessions, territories, or islands had originally formed part of the said colony of Sierra Leone: And we do further by these presents, for us, our heirs, and successors, will, establish, and ordain, that from and after the publication of these presents, there shall be nine or more councillors advising and assisting to our governor of our said colony of Sierra Leone for the time being: And we do by these presents nominate, make, ordain, and constitute our trusty and well-beloved Edward Fitzgerald, our chief justice, or our chief justice of our said colony for the time being; our trusty and well-beloved Daniel Molloy Hamilton, our advocate, or our advocate of our said colony for the time being; our trusty and well-beloved Dudley Feriday, our secretary, or our secretary of our said colony for the time being; our trusty and well-beloved Thomas Stuart Buckle, our surveyor of lands, or our surveyor of lands of our said colony for the time being; our trusty and well-beloved Kenneth Macaulay, esquire, our trusty and well-beloved Alexander Grant, esquire, our trusty and well-beloved Joseph Reffell, esquire, our trusty and well-beloved Thaddeus O'Meara, esquire, our trusty and well-beloved Andrew Nicoll, doctor of medicine, our trusty and well-beloved John Hope Smith, esquire, and our trusty and well-beloved William Dawson, esquire, thenceforth councillors of our said colony, to continue in their said office of councillors during their natural lives, unless suspended from their said office of councillors during their natural lives, unless suspended from their said office, or absent from the said colony for the space of one year without leave given them under our royal signature, or until other councillors shall be chosen and appointed by us, under our signet and sign manual, in their stead : And we do further hereby give and grant to our said governor full power and authority to suspend any of the members of our said council from sitting, voting, or assisting therein, if he shall find just cause for so doing; and if it shall at any time happen, that by the death, departure out of our said colony, or suspension of our said councillors, or otherwise, there shall be a vacancy in our said council (any five whereof we do hereby appoint to be a quorum), our will and pleasure is that our said governor do signify the same unto us by the first opportunity, that we may, under our signet and sign manual, constitute and appoint others in their stead; but, that our affairs at that distance may not suffer from want of a due number of councillors, if ever it shall happen that there be less than nine of them residing in our said colony, we do hereby give and grant unto our said governor full power and authority to choose as many persons out of the principal inhabitants thereof as shall make up the full number of our council to be nine, and no more; which persons so chosen and appointed by him shall be to all intents and purposes councillors in our said colony, until either they shall be confirmed by us, or that, by the nomination of others by us under our sign manual and signet, our said council shall have nine or more councillors in it resident in our said colony; and we do further by these presents, ordain, will, and appoint, that our governor of our said colony, or in his absence, our lieutenant-governor or commander-in-chief for the time being of our said colony together with our council of the same, or the major part thereof, shall have full power and authority to make, constitute, and ordain laws, statutes, and ordinances for the public welfare and good government of our said colony, under the like conditions, and subject to the same limitations and restrictions, as those imposed in that behalf on the governor and council of our said colony in the letters patent of his said late Majesty hereinbefore recited; but, to the end that nothing may be done or passed to the prejudice of us, our heirs, and successors, by our said council, we further ordain by these presents, that our governor of our said colony, or in his absence, our lieutenant-governor or commander-in-chief for the time being, may and shall have a negative voice in the making and passing of all laws, statutes, and ordinances as aforesaid: and we do further by these presents will, ordain, and appoint, that from and after the publication of these presents in our said colony of Sierra Leone, as hereinafter directed, our court of record in our said colony, called and known by the name of "the court of the recorder of Freetown," shall consist of our chief justice of the said colony for the time being, and two such members of the council as shall be appointed by the governor of our said colony for the time being assistant judges thereof, in lieu of the mayor and aldermen of Freetown for the time being, as ordained and appointed in and by the letters patent of his said late Majesty hereinbefore recited: and we do hereby will and ordain, that they or any two of them (whereof our said chief justice for the time being resident in Freetown to be one), shall, and the same are hereby authorized to hear and determine all civil suits, actions, and pleas between party and party that shall or may arise or happen, or that have already arisen or happened within our said colony of Sierra Leone, or any of the forts, settlements, islands, or territories subject or subordinate thereto, except when the cause of action or suit shall not exceed the value of 40s.: provided always, and it is hereby further ordained and directed, that if such chief justice and recorder, or any of the said assistant judges, should be any ways interested in the event of any such action or suit, no such chief justice and recorder or assistant judge, shall sit or act as a judge in such suit or action, but the same shall be heard and determined by such of them as shall be no ways interested therein; and in all cases where the number of voices shall be equal in the determination of any action or suit, the chief justice, or in his absence the senior assistant judge present, shall have two voices: and we do further direct, that the said court of the recorder of Freetown hereby constituted shall proceed in the same manner and form, and subject to the same rules as to trial by jury and otherwise, and to the same remedy and right of appeal, as were in and by the said letters patent hereinbefore recited, directed, and provided in respect of the court of the recorder of Freetown, constituted by such letters patent; and that all rules of practice made by the one court, and now or at the time of the publication of these presents remaining in force, shall be observed and followed in and by the other, until by the authority of that other the same be varied or repealed: and we do further will and direct, that no action, cause, suit, or proceeding depending in the said court of the recorder of Freetown at the publication of these presents, shall be avoided, abated, discontinued, or annulled for or by reason of any change in the constitution of the said court effected by these presents, but that the same shall be respectively transferred in their then present condition to, and subsist and depend respectively, and be prosecuted, tried, and determined respectively, in the said court of the recorder of Freetown hereby constituted and established to all intents and purposes as if they had been respectively first commenced, had, bought, and prosecuted in the said last-mentioned court: and we do further will and direct, that each person so nominated or appointed one of the assistant judges of the said court of the recorder of Freetown as aforesaid, shall, prior to the entering upon the execution of his said office, take an oath before the governor, lieutenant-governor, or other commander-in-chief for the time being, for the due discharge of the same, which oath the said governor, lieutenant-governor, or commander-in-chief for the time being, is hereby empowered to administer: and we do further by these presents will and establish, that our said governor, lieutenant governor, or other commander-in-chief, and council, of our said colony for the time being shall be, and they are hereby constituted a court of record to receive, hear, and determine appeals from as well the said court of the recorder of Freetown, as from any other superior court of common law now established or to be in future established in our said colony pursuant to these presents, in the like cases, and subject to the like limitations, rules, and directions as to their proceedings therein, and subject also to the like right of appeal from their judgment, sentence, or decree, to us in our privy council, when the debt, damages, or things, or matter in dispute shall exceed the value of 400l., and upon the like condition as to the security to be thereupon given by the appellant, as were in and by the said letters patent hereinbefore recited, directed, and provided in respect of appeals to the governor and council of the said colony, and from them to his said late Majesty in his privy council respectively: provided always, and it is hereby ordained, that no such member or members of our said council as shall be at that time judge or judges of the court from which such appeal shall be made, shall be entitled or permitted to vote upon such appeal; provided also, that no appeal be allowed from any sentence, order, or decree of our courts of chancery of our said colony, to us or our privy council, unless the debt, damage, or thing or matter in dispute, shall exceed the like sum or value of 400l. sterling; and that such appellant do also give good security that he will effectually prosecute such appeal, and answer the condemnation money, and pay also such costs and damages as shall be by us awarded in case such sentence, order or decree so appealed from be affirmed: provided nevertheless, and our further will and pleasure is, that when the matter in question relates to the taking or demanding of any duty payable to us, or to any fee of office or annual rent, or other such like matter or thing, where the right in future may be bound, in all such cases an appeal may be had from the judgment of our said governor and council as aforesaid, or from the sentence, order, or decree of our court of chancery of our said colony, to us in our privy conneil, though the immediate sum or value appealed for be of a less amount than 4001. sterling: and our further pleasure is, and we do hereby direct and appoint, that our said governor shall and may keep and use the public seal of our said colony of Sierra Leone for sealing all instruments whatsoever that do and ought to pass the great seal of our said colony under his said government: and whereas writs of inquiry of idiots and lunatics may and ought to issue out of our court of chancery in our said colony, and be returnable in our said court, and great trouble and charges may arise if occasion be to resort unto us, our heirs and successors, for directions respecting such idiots and lunatics, and their estates, we do by these presents give and grant unto our said governor full power and authority to give orders and warrants from time to time for preparing grants of the custodies of such idiots and lunatics and their estates, as are or shall be found by inquisition thereof, taken or to be taken, and returned or to be returned into our said court of chancery of our said colony, and thereupon to make and pass grants and commitments under our great seal of our said colony, of the custodies of all and every such idiots and lunatics and their estates, to such person or persons, suitors in that behalf as according to the rules of law, and the use and practice in those and the like cases, he shall judge meet for that trust; the said grants and commitments to be made in such manner and form, or as nearly as may be, as bath heretofore been used and accustomed in making the same under the great seal of this kingdom, and to contain such and the like apt and convenient covenants, conditions, and agreements on the part of the committees and grantees to be performed, and such security to be by them given, as shall be requisite and needful : and we do further by these presents order, direct, and establish, that from and after the expiration of three months from the publication of these presents hereinafter directed, the authority of the court of requests for the colony of Sierra Leone, for the recovery of small debts within the said colony, as constituted by the letters patent of his said late Majesty hereinbefore recited, shall cease and be abolished: and we do by these presents authorize and require our said governor, by and with the advice and concurrence of our said council, prior to the expiration thereof to nominate and appoint certain justices or others commissioners in and for particular districts, upon whom the authority of the said court thenceforward to cease and be abolished in and throughout the said colony as aforesaid may regularly devolve; and that the said justices or other commissioners may and shall proceed to the hearing and determining of all matters of debt or damage under 40s, value, in the same or the like manner and form, as near as circumstances will admit of, as any commissioners of requests usually and lawfully do within that part of our united kingdom called England; and that such commissioners shall assemble at such times and places as our said governor, with the advice and concurrence of our council as aforesaid, shall from time to time appoint: and we do further hereby direct and establish, that from and after the publication of these presents, our governor, lieutenant-governor, or commander-in-chief for the time being of our said colony, shall and may do, execute, and perform all that is necessary for the granting of licences for marriages, as also for the probate of wills and granting of administrations for, touching or concerning any interest or estate which any person or persons shall have within our said colony or its dependencies, in such or the like manner and form as our governors, lieutenant-governors, or other commanders-in-chief of our provinces in America, are used and authorized to do, execute, and perform the same:

And our further will and pleasure is, that from thenceforth such jurisdictions, powers, and authorities as were given to the court of the recorder of Freetown aforesaid, and to the said mayor of Freetown, in and by the said letters patent hereinbefore recited, in respect to grants of probates of wills and letters of administration, shall cease and determine; but we do nevertheless will and ordain, that no probates issued or letters or administration granted in the said court pursuant to the provisions of the said letters patent, prior to the publication of these presents, shall be impeached or avoided by the cessation of the authority and functions of the said court in the premises, but that the same shall, and the same are hereby ordained to remain in as full force and effect as if the said court still possessed the powers and authorities to grant probates of wills and letters of administration conferred upon it by the said letters patent: And we do further by these presents give and grant unto our said governor full power and authority, with the advice and consent of our said council, to creet and constitute judicatories and courts of record, or other courts, to be held of us, our heirs and successors, for the hearing and determining all and all manner of causes, as well criminal as civil, arising or happening within our said colony, or between persons inhabiting or residing there: as also to issue from time to time special commissions of over and terminer and gaol delivery, limited to the districts and crimes or misdemeanors specified in such commissions, and for the awarding and making out execution thereupon; to which courts and judicatories we do hereby give and grant full power and authority from time to time to administer oaths for the better discovery of truth in any matter in controversy or depending before them, together with all other reasonable and necessary powers, authorities, fees, and privileges belonging thereto: And we do hereby further give and grant unto our said governor full power and authority to constitute and appoint judges, and in cases requisite, commissioners of over and terminer. justices of the peace, and other necessary officers and ministers in and through our said colony, for the better administration of justice and putting the laws in execution, and to administer or cause to be administered to them their several and respective oaths for the due and faithful performance of their duties in their several and respective offices, before undertaking the execution of the same; provided nevertheless, and be it further ordained, that no election or appointment of any sheriff or other officer or minister, pursuant to these presents, shall or shall be deemed or construed to alter or abridge the power and right of the sheriff of our said colony, appointed pursuant to the letters patent hereinbefore recited, to summon juries, or to execute and make return of all processes and the like, of the said court of the recorder of Freetown, or of any other courts erected or to be erected within that tract or district known by the name of the peninsula of Sierra Leone, bounded as aforesaid: And in case of the death, absence, or removal of our lieutenant-governor of our said colony, we do further by these presents authorize and empower our governor of our said colony, being at the time of such appointment personally resident within our said colony, to nominate and appoint any person resident within our said colony, whom he shall judge the most proper and fitting to be our heutenant-governor thereof, until our pleasure thereupon shall be known; provided it shall appear to our said governor that the administration of the government of our said colony, by the member of our said council next in seniority to the chief justice thereof for the time being, may not tend to the good of our service and the welfare of our said colony: And we do further ordain, will, and establish, that within thirty days after these presents shall arrive within our said colony of Sierra Leone, our governor, lieutenant-governor, or other commander in chief of our said colony for the time being shall cause these our letters patent to be published and proclaimed, and the contents thereof to be publicly known within the said colony, and that from and immediately after such publication the same shall be in full force and effect within our said colony: provided always, and we do hereby reserve unto ourself, our heirs and successors, full power and authority to revoke, vary, alter, annul, and make void these presents, and every or any clause, matter, or thing herein contained, and to make such new, other, or further ordinances and appointments for the government of our said colony, and for the administration of justice within the same, as to us, our heirs and successors, in that behalf shall seem meet; And we do lastly by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, direct and appoint that our governor of our said colony of Sierra Leone, and his successors the governors thereof, during our royal will and pleasure, may and shall have and exercise the several powers and authorities given and granted to them by these presents, together with and superadded to the several powers and authorities conterred on the governor of the said colony by the letters patent of his late Majesty King George the Third, our dearest father, hereinbefore recited; and that the constitution and laws of our said colony of Sierra Leone, and all judicial and municipal authorities therein, shall for the present and during our royal will and pleasure, continue such as they were constituted and appointed to be by the said letters patent of his said late Majesty, or under the authority thereof, so far as the possessions heretofore held by the African company, and also the territories belonging to us, our heirs and successors, on the west coast of Africa, between the twentieth degree of north latitude and the twentieth degree of South latitude, being annexed by these presents to our said colony of Sierra Leone, and other changes of circumstanes within our said colony, whether consequent upon the same or howsoever accruing, will permit, and save also and except as the same are altered by these presents. In witness, &c., witness, &c., the 17th day of October.

APPENDIX VII.—EUROPE.

A .- CONSTITUTIONAL CHART OF THE UNITED STATES OF THE IONIAN ISLANDS.

Ratified by His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, 26th August, 1817.

Chapter I .- General Organization.

Article 1. The United States of the Ionian Islands are composed of Corfu, Cephalonia, Zante, Santa Maura, Ithaca, Cerigo, and Paxo, and the other smaller islands situated along the coast of Albania and the Morea, which formerly belonged to the Venetian dominions.

2. The seat of the general government of the United States of the Ionian Islands is declared to be permanently fixed in the capital of the Island of Corfu.

3. The established religion of these States is the orthodox Greek religion; but all other forms of the Christian religion shall be protected as hereinafter stated.

4. The established language of these states is the Greek, and in consequence it is hereby declared to be an article of primary importance, that the language of these states is the Greek, and in consequence it is hereby declared to be an article of primary importance, that the language of the nation should become, as soon as possible, that in which all the records of government should be held, all process of law alone conducted, and, in fact, the sole recognised language for official proceedings within these States.

5. It being impossible, however, from the circumstances of the case, to carry the above principle into immediate effect, the whole business of the country having been hither to conducted principally in the Italian language, it is ordained, that during the first parliament the Italian shall be the language in which all public business is to be conducted, save and except in the instances of the minor courts of law, where it may be judged expedient by the government to introduce the native language, with a view to its encouragement and general propagation.

6. With a further view at once to encourage the propagation of the languages of the protecting and protected States, his highness the president of the senate shall be bound, within six days after the first meeting of parliament, to send down to the legislative assembly a projet of a law, to be therein discussed, relative to how far it may be possible to extend the native language to other departments, or to the whole of the government; and it is to be clearly understood, that whenever a law is passed, declaring the Greek language to be the sole official language, that the only other language that can be made use of in copies or otherwise, is that of the protecting power, viz. the English.

7. The civil government in these States shall be composed of a legislative assembly, of a senate, and of a judicial

- 8. The military command in these States being placed, by the treaty of Paris, in the hands of his Majesty's com-ander-in-chief, it remains with him.
- 9. The legislative assembly shall be elected, in manner and form hereinafter laid down, from the body of the noble
- 10. The senators shall be elected out of the body of the legislative assembly, in manner and form as may hereinafter be directed.

11. The judicial authority shall be selected by the senate, in manner and form as shall hereinafter be directed.

12. These elections, and all other civil appointments, shall be valid for the period of five years, except as may be hereinafter provided for.

At the expiration of five years all appointments of right fall to the ground, and the new election of the new legislative assembly shall take place on the day of the expiration of the term of five years; but his highness the president of the senate and the senators, the regents of the local governments, the judges, together with all the ministerial officers in the various departments, shall continue to exercise their duties; the first, till replaced by the new senate and president; the second, till relieved by the new regents; the judges and ministerial officers, till removed or re-appointed by the proper authority.

14. When the legislative assembly holds a session at the seat of government, the civil authority shall be termed the Parliament of the United States of the Ionian Islands; and such session, being the first, shall be termed the first session.

15. The second parliament and the subsequent sessions shall be styled numerically in the same manner.
16. All acts of the legislative assembly, of the senate, and generally of all the departments of government, shall be registered according to the parliament and session in which they may have been enacted, or otherwise carried into

17. During the first parliament an annual session shall take place, of right, the first day of every March, and shall continue in activity for three months; but such session may be prolonged beyond the said three months in the event of necessity, for a period to be declared by the senate and approved of by his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign.

- protecting sovereign.

  18. In every subsequent parliament a session shall take place, of right, on the first day of March in every two years, and shall continue in activity for the same period as stated in the preceding article.

  19. The power of assembling and prorogulng parliament on an emergency shall be vested in his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign; but parliament cannot be prorogued for a longer space than six months.

  20. The power of dissolving parliament, on any special emergency, shall be solely vested in his Majesty by an order in council.
- On parliament being prorogued, the session of the legislative assembly forthwith ceases for the period of prorogation; and all bills and acts of every kind, not completely carried through parliament, shall fall to the ground.
   When the parliament is dissolved, all bills and acts of every kind, not completely carried through, fall equally to

23. The public instruction of youth being one of the most important points connected with the prosperity and happiness of any state, and it being of the utmost importance, both to the morals and religion of the country, that its pastors in particular should receive a liberal and adequate education, it is hereby declared to be a primary duty immediately after the meeting of parliament, subsequent to the ratification of this constitutional chart by his Majesty the protecting sovereign, that measures should be adopted by the parliament for the institution in the first place of primary schools, and subsequently for the establishment of a college for the different branches of science, of literature, and of the fine arts.

Chanter II .- The Senate.

Section I .- General.

Article 1. The executive power in the United States of the Ionian Islands shall be vested in a senate composed of six persons, viz. five members and a president.
2. The style and title of the president shall be His Highness the President of the Senate of the United States of the Ionian Islands; that of the other senators, the Most Illustrious (Presiantissimo).

3. His highness the president of the senate of the United States of the Ionian Islands shall take rank of all other persons being natural born subjects of the Ionian States; the most illustrious the senators shall take rank next the president, save and except as may be hereinafter provided.

4. It is agreed upon and declared, that his highness the president of the senate of the United States of the Ionian Islands, shall at all times enjoy the same military honours as his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign; and that the most illustrious the senators shall receive those of a major-general.

Section II .- Mode of Election.

Article 1. The nomination of his highness the president of the senate of the United States of the Ionian Islands is conceded to his Majesty the protecting sovereign, through the medium of his lord high commissioner, he being a natural born noble subject of the Ionian States.

7. On this new election taking place, it shall again be transmitted to his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign for his approbation or negative, and in the event of his again sending down to the legi-lative assembly his negative, the election shall fall to the ground; and in this event, his excellency the high commissioner of the protecting sovereign shall transmit, within twenty-four hours, the names of two members of the legislative assembly belonging to the island or islands for which the election is to take place, when the legislative assembly shall elect, by a majority of votes, one of the said two members; and this election shall be final.

8. The most illustrious the members of the senate shall remain in office five years; his highness the president of the senate half that period. But it shall be competent for his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign either to name another, or to re-appoint the same person for a second period of the same duration, save and except as may hereafter be provided.

except as may hereafter be provided.

Section III. - Mode of Proceeding and Powers.

Section III.—Mode of Proceeding and Powers.

Article 1. The six distinguished persons composing the senate shall decide every question brought before them by a majority of votes; and in the event of an equality of votes, his highness the president shall have the casting vote.

2. The initiative in the senate shall be vested alone in his highness the president. But each senator shall be permitted verbally, and once only in the same session of parliament, to propose to the senate any projet on any subject, with the view that his highness the president may submit the said projet to be discussed by the senate.

3. In the event of his highness the president declining to submit the said projet to the senate, the senator in that case, who originally proposed it, may submit it in writing, provided, in addition to his own name, such proposal is signed by another senator, and the proposition in this form shall be transmitted by his highness the president to his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting soverign, and if approved by him, it shall be, without any alteration whatever, submitted to the discussion of the senate, in the usual manner, by his highness the president. If disapproved of by his excellency the lord high commissioner, it shall fall to the ground.

4. In the event of the indisposition or necessary absence of his highness the president of the senate of the United States of the Ionian Islands, his excellency the lord high commissioner shall name one of the other senators to execute the functions of president till his highness's return or recovery, and the senator so named for the time, shall be stiled the most illustrious the vice-president.

- the functions of president till his highness's return or recovery, and the senator so named for the time, shall be stilled the most illustrious the vice-president.

  5. In the event of the indisposition or absence of any most illustrious member of the senate, it shall possess the power of appointing, for the time, one of the legislative assembly then at Corfu, to execute his functions till his recovery or return—such appointment being subject to the same affirmative or negative, on the part of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, and to the same proceeding in every way as in the instance of the original election of senators; and in the event of his excellency the lord high commissioner nominating a temporary president, as stated in the preceding article, the place of the senator so named shall be filled, pro tempore, in a similar recovery.
- 6. In the event of the death of his highness the president of the senate of the United States of the Ionian Islands, his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign shall be bound, within three days to nominate a new president of the same.
- new president or the same.

  7. In the event of the death of any of the most illustrious the senators, if the parliament be sitting at the time, it shall proceed within three days, to the election of a new senator, in the manner heretofore directed. If the parliament be not sitting, the senate shall proceed forthwith to appoint a senator pro lempore, till the next meeting of parliament, in the manner directed in Article 5, and at the said next meeting of parliament, the election of the new scuator shall take place.

8. The senate shall possess the right to name its own ministerial officers, with the exception as shall be hereinafter stated, and shall divide itself into three departments, viz.; 1st, General; 2d, Political; 3d, Finance.

9. The first department shall consist of his highness the president and one of the said members. The second and third, of two members each: to each of these departments shall be attached a secretary: the secretaries in the political and finance departments being native born subjects of the lonian States. But the appointment of the secretary in the general department is reserved for the nomination of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sove-

Nor shall the senate possess the authority, subsequent to this list being approved of, and placed upon the general civil list, of altering or increasing it, save and except in the instance and under the provisions hereinafter stated.

13. The senate shall possess the power of nominating to all the situations under the general government; the regents to the different local governments, the judges in all the islands, and generally to all situations, except merely municipal ones, under the restrictions and reservations hereinafter stated.

14. The senate shall possess the authority of proposing any law to the consideration of the legislative assembly, and such law, so transmitted by the senate, shall be received and taken into consideration accordingly, within the period hereinafter stated; and any law sent down by the senate to be considered by the legislative assembly, if agreed to in that assembly a majority of votes, shall be considered as a law, if it meets with the approbation hereinafter stated on the part of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, or is not subsequently cancelled by an order of his Malesty in council. jesty in council.

15. The senate shall possess the power, after a bill has passed the legislative assembly, of putting a direct negative on the said bill, stating its reasons for so doing, and transmitting them within three days to the legislative assembly; when such act, so passed, shall fall to the ground, nor can it be again introduced in the same session.

such act, so passed, shall fall to the ground, nor can it be again introduced in the same session.

16. During the recess of parliament the senate shall possess the power of making regulations, having, pro tempore, the force of laws; but no such regulations shall be valid without the approbation of his excellency the lord high commisoner; and all such temporary regulations shall be submitted, the first day of the ensuing session, to the legislative assembly for its consideration. If approved of in that assembly, hey shall be considered as the law from the date of their proclamation; if disapproved of, in manner and form as hereinafter stated, they shall fall to the ground: but the acts done under them, in the intervening space, between the time when they were originally issued by the senate and the disapproval of the legislative assembly, shall be held valid.

17. The senate shall possess the power of establishing rules and regulations for the guidance of its own proceedings, provided such rules and regulations meet with the sanction of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, and do not interfere with the provisions of the constitutional chart, or with the established law of the land.

CHAPTER III .- Of the Legislatine Assembly.

Section I .- General.

Article 1.—The legislative assembly of the United States of the Ionian islands shall consist of forty members, including the president.

2. The most illustrious the president of the legislative assembly shall enjoy the honours of a senator: the style and title of the members shall be "most noble." (Nobilissimi.)

Section II .- Mode of Election.

Article 1. On the meeting of a new parliament, the president of the primary council shall be president of the legislative assembly, till the new senate is formed, and till the future president of the legislative assembly be elected.

2. This election shall take place the day after that of the senators is completed, and the rules laid down in chapter 2, section 2, relative to the election of senators, shall in all instances apply to the election of the president.

3. The most noble the forty members of the legislative assembly shall be composed of eleven integral members, and twenty-nine to be elected.

4. The eleven integral members shall, in the instance of parliament dying a natural death (that is, in all usual cases where it runs its full term of five years) consist of the president and members of the old senate, of the four regents of the great islands during the late parliament, and of one of the regents of the smaller islands, taken in the following rotation, viz. Ithaca, Cerigo, Paxo.

5. In the instance of a dissolution of parliament, the primary council shall uniformly consist of the president and members of the old senate, and five of the late legislative assembly, to be named by his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, within three days of the period when the dissolution of the parliament takes place.

6. The most noble the twenty-nine members to be elected shall be furnished from the various islands in the following proportions, viz.—Corfa ?; Cephalonia ?; Zante ?; Santa Maura 4; Ithica 1; Cerigo 1; Paxo 1. But each of the three last, in the rotation in which they stand (exclusive of that island whose regent becomes an integral member of the legislative assembly), shall elect a second.

assembly), shall elect a second.

7. The most noble the members of the legislative assemby to be elected by the various islands, shall be elected out of

7. The most noble the members of the legislative assemby to be elected by the various islands, shall be elected out of the body of the synclitæ of the island to which such election may belong.

8. The election by the synclitæ shall be made on a double list, formed and transmitted to them to vote on in manner following:—This double list shall be made by the members of the new primary council, and in the instance of parliament dying a natural death, with a view to prevent any possibility of delay (some of the members of the new primary council, viz. the five regents being absent from the seat of government), its functions upon this head shall commence six months antecedent to the death of the parliament, in order that the most illustrious regents of the different islands may have full antecedent to the death of the parliament, in order that the most illustrious regents of the different islands may have full time to correspond with the senate on the subject; and the mode of selecting the names for such double list shall be by a majority of votes of the new primary council.

9. On the double list being completed, the president of the council shall transmit a copy of the said lists, signed by himself, to the most illustrious the regents of the different islands, so as to arrive at the island to which they may belong, at least fourteen days antecedent to the death of parliament, and upon these lists the regent of the island shall proceed.

10. Whereas in article 13, chapter 1, provision is made for the time of the new elections taking place upon the natural death of parliament, but no provision is made relative to the time of election on the dissolution of parliament: on any such emergency, the new elections shall take place the fortierh day after the proclamation for the said dissolution, and the new primary council shall send down, within six days after such dissolution, the said double lists to the regents of the different islands to proceed upon.

11. Notwithstanding a fixed day is appointed, whether in the instance of the death or dissolution of parliament, for the

11. Notwithstanding a fixed day is appointed, whether in the instance of the death or dissolution of parliament, for the 11. Notwithstanding a fixed day is appointed, whether in the instance of the death or dissolution of parliament, for the new elections to take place, yet as it may be impossible, from the divided situations of the States, to foresee the accident that may prevent the arrival of the mandate of the president of the primary council, inclosing the double lists, within the period stated in the antecedent articles, it is to be understood, that, in the event of such accident occurring, the elections in the said island or islands shall take place within five days after the mandate of the president of the primary council arrives, and that all such elections shall be held legal and valid, as if they had been made on the days stated in the foregoing clauses upon that head.

12. Whether the parliament dies a natural death or be dissolved, in either instance the new legislative assembly shall

12. Whether the parliament dies a natural death or be dissolved, in either instance the new legislative assembly shall met at the seat of government within twenty days after the day of its election, and as much sooner as circumstances will admit, which will be signified by mandate from his highness the president of the senate of the United States of the Ionian islands, communicated at the time, he, in his quality of president of the primary council, transmits the double lists.

13. Whereas in chapter 2, section 2, article 2, provision is made, that the senators shall be elected out of the body of the legislative assembly, and whereas such election vacates the seats of the members chosen in the legislative assembly; whereas also the appointment of regent vacates the seat of any legislature; and whereas death or resignation, from a variety of circumstances, may also occasion a vacancy or vacancies in the legislative body; in all and every such instance, the president of the primary council shall, in manner before laid down, within six days of such vacancy or vacancies occurring, issue a mandate to the regent of the island to which such vacancy belongs, together with a double list, directing bim to call an extraordinary meeting of the synclitæ to fill up the vacancy in the legislative assembly, and such meeting shall be called within six days after the receipt of such mandate.

14. Whereas in the antecedent article, the offices and circumstances are generally detailed which may cause a vacancy in the legislative assembly, and whereas such vacancy, if it happens to a member thereof, will also create one in the primary council: upon all and every such occasion his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign shall within three days of such vacancy, nominate another member or members of the legislative assembly as member of the primary council.

15. Although, from the moment of the meeting of the legislative assembly, there is no distinction in the powers and anthority of the integral members thereof, and those elected by the different islands, yet the power of issuing mandates in all cases that may occur hereafter of vacancies of every kind (though not hereinbefore mentioned) in the legislative body, and of making the double lists for the elections, shall be exclusively, and in every instance, vested in the eleven integral members, being the primary council, through the medium of their president.

16. On all occasions of importance or emergency in which the legislative assembly may wish to hold personal conference with the senate, or with his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, or rice rera, the committee of the said legislative assembly for conducting such conference, shall uniformly consist of the said primary council. 17. Whereas the case may occur, that his highness the new president of the senate of the United States of the Ionian islands, may be the president, or a member of the primary council, on all such occasions his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign shall be bound, within three days, to nominate a new president of the said primary council itself, and a new member for the said council out of the legislative assembly.

18. The organization of the synclitae, or noble electors of these states, as declared in the constitution of 1803, shall be maintained and confirmed, save and except as it may be hereafter changed or ameliorated, by any law passed in regard to it, or as hereignfor may be enacted.

maintained and confirmed, save and except as it may be hereafter changed or ameliorated, by any law passed in regard to it, or as hereinafter may be enacted.

19. The most illustrious the regent of each island shall be, upon all occasions, the president of the synclite, and shall direct the proceedings thereof, assisted by the secretary of the local government, and the advocate Fiscal, as his assessors.

20. The said most illustrious the regents and the assessors shall annually (they giving public notice of the same) correct the lists of the synclitize of the various islands, striking off from such lists those who may have lost their qualification, and admitting those who may produce satisfactory proof of being in possession of the due qualification; and such lists, when corrected, shall be uniformly transmitted to the senate, antecedent to the first of October in every year, for its confirmation

C C .- AUSTRALIAN AGRICULTURAL COMPANY.

This company received a free grant of 1,000,000 acres of land in the territory of New South Wales, and is incorporated by charter : its objects are-rated by charter: its objects are—

1st. From the growth and export of fine wool, from Merino sheep of the most approved breed.

2nd. The breeding of horses, on an extensive scale, for sale in New South Wales and in India.

3rd. The breeding of cattle and other live stock, the raising of corn, tobacco, &c. for the supply of the residents in the colony, and the manufacture of salt.

The introduction, at a future period, of white the company were Prench Merino, 4,940; Saxon On the 31st December, 1836, the total number of sheep belonging to the company were Prench Merino, 4,940; Saxon Merino, 2866; Anglo Merino, 1552; improved colonial, 27,254—total of sheep, 36,61s: on the 31st December, 1836, there were, sheep, 65,589. Of horses, in 1834, thorough bred and Cleveland, and the produce of those breeds, 197; colonial ditto, 139; Welsh and Timour ponies, and their produce, 58:—total, 384:: in 1836, 435. Of cattle, in 1834, Darham, 23; improved colonial, 867; colonial, 1,395; working oxen, 227:—total 2,803: in 1836, 3,169. The number of acres of land in cultivation and partly cleared in 1839, was 2,000. The people employed were—of free, 60; tickets of leave men, 62; convicts, 343; exclusive of women and children.

In the year 1825, a negociation was concluded with his Majesty's government, by which the mines of coal in New South Wales which had been previously worked by the local government, were transferred to the company, with a grant

These mines are situated at Newcastle, about 60 miles to the north of Sydney, at the south entrance of a secure harbour, called Port Hunter, containing a sufficient depth of water for vessels of about 250 tons, and into which the Coal River empties itself. The entrance of these mines is on a considerable elevation above the level of the rea, and the seams of coal are visible on the surface of the cliff, which forms the south headland of the harbour. The country immediately to the south of Port Hunter is an extensive field of coal, of which the strata have been traced for nine miles, when they bend downwards, and sink below the level of the sea. Between the coal beds, are strata of sandstone and of clay slate, embedded in which there is found abundance of argillaceous iron ore.

The mines are within a short distance of the sea, an inclined plane and level railway leading from the pits' mouth to the wharf; the coal is, therefore shipped with facility.

The works have been completed in a very superior style, and the operations are proceeding in a most satisfactory manner. The sale of coal has been steadily increasing each year since the establishment of the company's works, and the quality continues to improve. The rapid increase of the town of Sydney, the comparative failure of wood for fuel in its neighbourhood, together with the increasing introduction of steam vessels and steam engines, combine to offer the most flattering prospect of adding annually to the company's profits in this important department of their under-

In the year 1836 the sales of coals were as follows:—To his Majesty's Government, 1,703 tons, at 8s., 680l.; to the public, 8,103 tons, at 9s., 3,646l.; to ditto, 2,841 tons, at 10s., 1,420l.; total tons, 12,646: total sum, 5,747l.

Abstract of the Australian Agricultural Company's Charter.

The Australian Agricultural Company's charter, bearing date the 1st of October, 1824, is founded on the Act 5 Geo. 4, cap. 86. The charter, after setting forth the objects contemplated in the act, provides:

1. That all grants of land to the company shall be passed under the great seal of the colony, in pursuance of a warrant under the sign manual.

2. That a quit-rent of one and a half per cent. shall be charged on the land, its value being estimated at 1s. 6d.

- 3. That no quit-rent shall be charged on the land during the term of five years, such term to be computed from the - date of the grant.
- 4. That the Company shall have the power to redeem their quit-rent, or any part thereof, on the payment of a sum equal to 20 times the value of the quit-rent to be redeemed.

  5. That the company shall employ on their lands such a number of convicts as shall at least be equal to the number of free labourers employed, provided the governor shall be able and willing to supply a sufficient number of convicts for that purpose

- 6. That the company shall employ one free superintendent to every 50 convicts.
  7. That none of the company's land shall be in any way alienated during five years from the date of the grant, under pain of forfeiture of such land.
- 8. That the company shall have the power of allenating any portion of their land, not exceeding 50,000 acres, after having proved to the local government an expenditure in the improvement of their grant to the amount of 10,000%, and so on in like proportion, and on the same condition, to the extent of one half of their grant; and they shall also have the power of leasing for any period not exceeding 21 years, without any covenant of renewal, portions of their land, not exceeding one moiety of the whole.
- 9. 10. 11. That the quit-rent chargeable on the company's land shall be paid at intervals of five years; the first payment to be made after the expiration of 10 years from the date of the grant. Provision is also made for the redemption of the quit-rent, by the employment and maintenance of 600 convicts during the greater part of the second period of five years from the date of the grant, of 1,000 convicts during the third period, and of 1,400 convicts during the fourth period.
- period.

and that the said judges should from time to time be appointed by his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors; and that the said ministerial and other officers of the said courts respectively should from time to time be appointed to and removed from their respective offices in such manner as his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, should by such charters or letters-patent as aforesaid direct: and it was thereby further enacted, that until his said late Majesty should cause such charters or letters patent to be issued as aforesaid, the Supreme Courts of New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land respectively, instituted by his said late Majesty's letters-patent under the great seal, bearing date respectively the 13th day of October, in the fourth year of his said late Majesty's reign, should retain and exercise the several jurisdictions and dowers in such courts vested by his said late Majesty's said last-mentioned letters-patent, so far as the same might not be altered by that act, as fully and effectually as if such courts respectively had been instituted in virtue and in pursuance of the said act: and it was thereby enacted, that the said letters-patent and all orders, acts, matters and things made and done in pursuance of the powers and authorities vested in his said late Majesty in and by the said act passed in the fourth year of the reign of his said late Majesty should be of the same force and effect as if the same had respectively been issued, made, done and performed by virtue and in pursuance of the said act of the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign: now know ye, that we upon full consideration of the premises, and of our especial grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, have, in pursuance of the said act of parliament of the ninth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, thought fit to grant, direct, ordain and appoint, and by these presents do accordingly for us, our heirs and successors, grant, direct, ordain an appoint, that there shall be within our colony of Van Diemen's Land a court, which shall be called "the Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land;" and we do hereby create, direct and constitute the said Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land to be a court of record; and we do further will, ordain and appoint, that the said Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land shall consist of and be holden by and before two judges, of whom one shall be and be called the chief justice of the Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land, and the other shall be and be called the puisne judge of the Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land; and such judges shall respectively be barristers in England or Ireland of not less than five years standing, to be named and appointed from time to time by us, our heirs and successors, by letters patent under our or their great seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland; and such judges shall hold their offices during the pleasure of us, our heirs and successors, and not otherwise. And we do further grant, ordain and appoint, that the said Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land shall have and use, as occasion may require, a seal bearing a device and impression of our royal arms within an exergue or label surrounding the same with this inscription, "The Scal of the Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land;" and we do hereby grant, ordain and appoint, that the said seal shall be delivered to and kept in the custody of the said chief justice. And we do further grant, appoint and declare, that no judge of the said Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land shall be capable of accepting, taking or performing any other office or place of profit or emolument, on pain that the acceptance of any such other office or place as aforesaid shall be and be deemed in law de facto an avoidance of his office of judge, and the salary thereof shall cease and be deemed to have ceased accordingly from the time of such acceptance of any such other office or place. And we do hereby constitute and appoint our trusty and well-beloved John Lewes Pedder, Esquire, to be the first chief justice, and our trusty and well-beloved Alexander M'Duff Baxter, Esquire, to be the first puisne judge of the said Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land, and the said John Lewes Pedder and Alexander M'Duff Baxter being respectively barristers in England of five years standing and upwards. And we do hereby ordain, appoint and declare, that there shall be and belong to the said court the following officers, that is to say, a registrar, and another officer to be called the master and keeper of records, and such and so many other officers as to the chief justice of the said court for the time being shall from time to time appear to be necessary for the administration of justice and the due execution of all the powers and authorities which are granted and committed to the said court by these our letters-patent: provided nevertheless, that no new office shall be created in the said court unless the governor or acting governor for the time being of our said colony shall first signify his approbation thereof to our said chief justice for the time being, in writing under the hand of such governor or acting governor as aforesaid: and we do further ordain and direct that all persons who shall and may be appointed to the several offices of registrar or master and keeper of records of the said Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land, or to any offices in the said court, whereof the duties shall correspond to those performed by the master, regisgistrar, prothonotary, or keeper of records of any or either of our courts of record at Westminster, shall be so appointed by us, our heirs, and successors, by warrant under our or their royal sign manual; and that all persons who shall or may be appointed to any other office within the said Supreme Court of Van Diemen's Land shall be so appointed by the governor for the time being of the said colony. And we do further direct and appoint that the several officers of the said court so to be appointed as aforesaid by us, our heirs and successors, shall hold their respective offices during our and their pleasure: and that the several officers of the said court so to be appointed as aforesaid by the said governor, shall be subject to be removed by the said court from the offices therein upon reasonable cause. And we do hereby authorize and empower the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land to approve, admit, and enrol such and so many persons, having been admitted barristers at law or advocates in Great Britain or Ireland, or having been admitted writers, attornies, or solicitors in one of our courts at Westminster, Dublin, or Edinburgh, or having been admitted as proctors in any ecclesiastical court in England, to act as well in the character of barristers and advocates, as of proctors, attornies, and solicitors in the said court; and which persons so approved, admitted, and enrolled as aforesaid, shall be and are hereby authorized to appear and plead and act for the suitors of the said court, subject always to be removed by the said court from their station therein, upon reasonable cause; and we do declare that no other person or persons whatsoever shall be allowed to appear and plead, or act in the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land, for and on behalf of such suitors or any of them: Provided always, and we do ordain and declare that in case there shall not be a sufficient number of such barristers-at-law, advocates, writers, attornies, solicitors, and proctors within the said colony, competent and willing to appear and act for the suitors of the said court, then and in that case the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land shall and is hereby authorized to admit so many other fit and proper persons to appear and act as barristers, advocates, proctors, attornies, and solicitors, as may be necessary, according to such general rules and qualifications as the said court shall for that purpose make and establish: Provided, that the said court shall not admit any person to act in any or either of the characters aforesaid, who hath been by due course of law convicted of any crime, which, according to any law now in force in England would disqualify him from appearing and acting in any of our courts of record at Westmin-And we do hereby ordain and declare that the governor or acting governor for the time being of the said colony of Van Diemen's Land shall yearly, on the first Monday in the month of January in each year, by warrant under his hand and seal, nominate and appoint some fit and proper person to act as and be the sheriff for our said colony of Van Diemen's land and its dependencies for the year ensuing, which sheriff when appointed shall, as soon as conveniently may be, and before he shall enter upon his said office, take an oath faithfully to execute his office, and the oath of allegiance, before the governor or acting governor, who are hereby auothorized to administer the same; and such sheriff shall continue in such his office during the space of one whole year, to be computed from the said first Monday in the month of January, and until another shall be appointed and sworn into the said office; and in case such sheriff shall die in his office, or depart from our said colony of Van Diemen's Land, then another person shall, as soon as conveniently may be after the death or departure of such sheriff, be in like manner appointed and sworn in as aforesaid, and shall continue in his office for the remainder of the year, and until another sheriff shall be duly appointed and sworn into the said office: And we do further order, direct, and appoint that the said sheriff and his successors shall by themselves, or their sufficient deputies to be by them appointed and duly authorized under their respective hands and seals, and for whom he and they shall be responsible during his or their continuing in such office, execute, and the said sheriff and his said deputies are hereby authorized to execute all the writs summonses, rules, orders, warrants, commands, and processes of the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land and make return of the same, together with the manner of the execution thereof, to the supreme court of Van Diemen's Land, and to receive and detain in prison all such persons as shall be committed to the custody of such sheriff by the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land, or by the chief justice or the puisne judge of the said court: And we do further authorize our governor or acting governor for the time being of the said colony of Van Diemen's Land, to re-appoint the same person to fill the office of sheriff from year to year, if it shall appear to our said governor or acting governor expedient so to do; so nevertheless as that such appointment shall be annually renewed and be not ever made for more than one year: Provided nevertheless, and we do hereby require our said governor or acting governor of our said colony for the time being, in the selection of any person or persons to fill the said office of sheriff of Van Diemen's land, to conform himself to such directions as may from time to time be given in that behalf by us, our heirs, and successors, through one of our or their principal secretaries of state: And we do further direct, ordain, and appoint, that whenever the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land shall direct or award any process against the said sheriff, or award any process in any cause, matter, or thing, wherein the said sheriff, on account of his being related to the parties or any of them, or by reason of any good cause of challenge which would be allowed against any sheriff in England, cannot or ought not by law to execute the same, in every such case the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land shall name and appoint some other fit person to execute and return the same, and the said process shall be directed to the person so to be named for that purpose, and the cause of such special proceedings shall be suggested and entered on the records of the said court: Provided always, and we do hereby ordain and declare, that the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land shall fix certain limits beyond which the said sheriff shall not be compelled or compellable to go in person, or by his officers or deputies, for the execution of any process of the said court; and when the process of the said court shall be to be executed in any place or places beyond the limits so to be fixed, we grant, ordain, and direct that the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land shall, upon motion, direct by what person or persons, and in what manner such process shall be executed, and the terms and conditions which the party, at whose instance the same shall be issued, shall enter into, in order to prevent any improper use or abuse of the process of the said court, and the said sheriff shall and he is hereby required to grant his special warrant or deputation to such person or persons as the said court shall direct for the execution of such process; and in that case we direct and declare that the said sheriff, his executors, or administrators, shall not be responsible or liable for any act to be done in or in any way respecting the execution of such process, under and by virtue of such special warrant, and that any person or persons being aggrieved under or by pretence of such special warrant, shall and may seek their remedy under any security which may have been directed to be taken upon the occasion, and which the said court is hereby authorized to direct to be taken. And whereas in the said last mentioned Act of Parliament, it is enacted that the said supreme courts respectively shall be courts of ecclesiastical jurisdiction, and shall have full power and authority to administer and execute within New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land, and the dependencies thereof respectively, such ecclesiastical jurisdiction and authority as shall be committed to the said supreme courts respectively, by our charters or letters-patent: Now we do hereby, for us, our heirs, and successors, grant, ordain, establish, and appoint that the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land shall be a court of eccle-siastical jurisdiction, with full power to grant probates, under the seal of the said court, of the last wills and testaments of all or any of the inhabitants of the said colony and its dependencies, and of all other persons who shall die and leave personal effects within the said colony and its dependencies and to commit letters of administration, under the seal of the said court, of the goods, chattels, credits, and all other effects whatsoever of the persons aforesaid who shall die intestate, or who shall not have named an executor resident within the said colony and its dependencies, or where the executor, being duly cited, shall not appear and sue forth such probate, annexing the will to the letters of administration, when such persons shall have left a will without naming any executor or any person for executor who shall then be alive and resident within the said colony and its dependencies, and who, being duly cited thereunto, will appear and sue forth probate thereof, and to sequester the goods and chattels, credits, and other effects whatsoever of such persons so dying, in cases allowed by law, as the same is and may be now used in the diocese of Loudon; and to demand. require, take, hear, examine, and allow, and if ocsasion require to disallow and reject, the accounts of them in such manner and form as may be used in the diocese of London, and to do all other things whatsoever needful and necessary in that behalf: Provided always, and we do hereby authorize and require the said court, in such cases as aforesaid, where letters of administration shall be committed with the will annexed, for want of an executor applying in due time to sue forth the probate, to reserve in such letters of administration full power and authority to revoke the same, and to grant probate of the said will to such executor whenever he shall duly appear and sue forth the same: And we do hereby further authorize and require the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land to grant and commit such letters of administration to any one or more of the lawful next akin of such person so dying as aforesaid, and being then resident within the jurisdiction of the said court, and being of the age of twenty-one years, and in case no such person shall then be residing within the jurisdiction of the said court, or, being duly cited, shall not appear and pray the same, to the registrar of the said court, or to such person or persons, whether creditor or creditors or not of the deceased person, as the court shall see fit: Provided always, that probates of wills and letters of administration to be granted by the said court shall be limited to such money, goods, chattels, and effects as the deceased person shall be entitled to within the said colony and its dependencies: And we do hereby further enjoin and require that every person to whom such letters of administration shall be committed, shall, before the granting thereof, give sufficient security by bond, to be entered into to us, our heirs, and successors, for the payment of a competent sum of money, with one, two, or more able sureties, respect being had in the sum therein to be contained, and in the ability of the sureties, to the value of the estates, credits, and effects of the deceased, which bond shall be deposited in the said court among the records thereof, and there safely kept, and a copy thereof shall be also recorded among the proceedings of the said court; and the condition of the said bond shall be to the following effect: "That if the above-bounded administrator of the goods, chattels, and effects of the deceased do make or cause to be made a true and perfect inventory of all and singular the goods, credits, and effects of the said deceased which have or shall come to the hands, possession, or knowledge of him the said administrator, or to the hands or possession of any other person or persons for him, and the same so made do exhibit into the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land at or before a day therein to be specified, and the same goods, chattels, credits, and effects, and all other the goods, chattels, credits, and effects of the deceased at the time of his death, or which at any time afterwards shall come to the hands or possession of such administrator, or to the hands or possession of any other person or persons for him, shall well and truly administer according to law, and further shall make or cause to be made a true and just account of his said administration at or before a time therein to be specified, and afterwards from time to time as he, she, or they shall be lawfully required, and all the rest and residue of the said goods, chattels, credits, and effects which shall be found from time to time remaining upon the said administration account, the same being first examined and allowed by the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land, shall and do pay and dispose of in a due course of administration, or in such manner as the said court shall direct, then this obligation to be void and of none effect, or else to be and remain in full force and virtue;" and in case it shall be necessary to put the said bond in suit for the sake of obtaining the effect thereof for the benefit of such person or persons as shall appear to the said court to be interested therein, such person or persons from time to time giving satisfactory security for paying all such costs as shall arise from the said suit, or any part thereof, such person or persons shall, by order of the said court, be allowed to sue the same in the name of the attorney-general for the time being of the said colony, and the said bond shall not be sued in any other manner: And we do hereby authorize and empower the said court to order that the said bond shall be put in suit in the name of the said attorney-general: And we do further will, order and require, that the said court shall fix certain periods when all persons to whom probates of wills and letters of administration shall be granted by the said court, shall from time to time, until the effects of the deceased person shall be fully administered, pass their accounts relating thereto before the said court; and in case the effects of the deceased shall not be fully administered within the time for that purpose to be fixed by the said court, then, or at any earlier time, if the said court shall see fit so to direct, the person or persons to whom such probate or administration shall be granted, shall pay, deposit and dispose of the balance of money belonging to the estate of the deceased then in his, her or their hands, and all money which shall afterwards come into his, her or their hands, and also all precious stones, jewels, bonds, bills, and securities belonging to the estate of the deceased, in such manner and unto such persons as the said court shall direct for safe custody; and we require that the said court shall from time to time make such order as shall be just for the due administration of such assets and for the payment or remittance thereof or any part thereof, as occasion shall require, to or for the use of any person or persons, whether resident or not resident in the said colony and its dependencies, who may be entitled thereto or any part thereof as creditors, legatees or next of kin, or by any other right or title whatsoever. And we further order and direct, that it shall be lawful for the said court to allow to any executor or administrator of the effects of any deceased person (except as herein mentioned) such commission or per centage out of their assets as shall be just and reasonable for their pains and trouble therein: provided always, that no allowance whatever shall be made for the pains and trouble of any executor or administrator who shall neglect to pass his accounts at such time or to dispose of any money, goods, chattels or securities with which he shall be chargeable, in such manner as in pursuance of any general or special rule or order of the said court shall be requisite; and moreover every such executor or administrator so neglecting to pass his accounts, or to dispose of any such money, goods, chattels or securities with which he shall be chargeable, shall be charged with interest at the rate then current within the said colony and its dependencies for such sum and sums of money as from time to time shall have been in his hands, whether he shall or shall not make interest thereof. And we do hereby authorize the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land to appoint guardians and keepers of infants and their estates according to the order and course observed in that part of our United Kingdom called England, and also guardians and keepers of the persons and estates of natural fools, and of such as are or shall be deprived of their understanding or reason by the act of God, so as to be unable to govern themselves or their estates, which we hereby authorize and empower the said court to inquire [into,] hear and determine, by inspection of the person, or such other ways and means by which the truth may be best discovered and known. And we do hereby direct, establish, and ordain, that any person or persons may appeal to us, our heirs and successors, in our or their privy council, from any judgment, decree, order or sentence of the said supreme court of Van Diemen's Land, in such manner, within such time, and under and subject to such rules, regulations and limitations as are hereinafter mentioned, that is to say, in case any such judgement, decree, order, or sentence shall be given or pronounced for or in respect of any sum or matter at issue above the amount or value of £1000 sterling, or in case such judgment, decree, order, or sentence shall involve directly or indirectly any claim, demand or question to or respecting property or any civil right, amounting to or of the value of £1000 sterling, the person or persons feeling aggrieved by any such judgment, decree, order, or sentence, may within 14 days next after the same shall have been pronounced, made or given, apply to the said court by petition for leave to appeal therefrom to us, our heirs and successors, in our or their privy council; and in case such leave to appeal shall be prayed by the party or parties who is or are directed to pay any such [?] sum of money, or perform any duty, the said court shall and is hereby empowered either to direct that the judgment, decree, order or sentence appealed from shall be carried into execution, or that the execution thereof shall be suspended pending the said appeal, as to the said court may appear to be most consistent with real and substantial justice; and in case the said court shall direct such judgment, decree, order or sentence to be carried into execution, the person or persons in whose favour the same shall be given, shall, before the execution thereof, enter into good and sufficient security, to be approved by the said court, for the due performance of such judgment or order as we, our heirs and successors, shall think fit to make thereupon; or in case the said court shall direct the execution of any such judgment, decree, order, or sentence to be suspended pending the appeal, the person or persons against whom the same shall have been given, shall in like manner and before any order for the suspension of any such execution is made, enter into good and sufficient security to the said court for the due performance of such judgment or order as we, our heirs and successors, shall think fit to make thereupon; and in all cases we will and require that security shall also be given by the party or parties appellant to the satisfaction of the said court for the prosecution of the appeal and for the payment of all such costs as may be awarded by us, our heirs and successors, to the party respondent; and if such last-mentioned security shall be entered into within three months from the date of such petition for leave to appeal, then, and not otherwise, the said court shall allow the appeal, and the party or parties appellant shall be at liberty to prefer and prosecute his, her or their appeal to us, our heirs and successors, in our or their privy council in such manner and under such rules as are observed in appeals made to us from our plantations or colonies: and we do hereby reserve to ourself, our heirs and successors, in our or their privy council, full power and authority, upon the humble petition, at any time, of any person or persons aggreived by any judgment or determination of the said court, to refuse or admit his. her or their appeal therefrom, upon such terms and upon such limitations, restrictions and regulations as we or they shall think fit, and to reverse, correct or vary such judgment or determination as to us or them shall seem meet: and it is our further will and pleasure, that in all cases of appeal allowed by the said court, or by us, our heirs or successors, the said court shall certify and transmit to us, our heirs, or successors, in our or their privy council, a true and exact copy of all evidence, proceedings, judgments, decrees and orders had or made in such cases appealed, so far as the same have relation to the matters of appeal, such copies to be certified under the seal of the said court. And we do further direct and ordain, that the said court shall in all cases of appeal to us, our heirs or successors, conform to and execute, or cause to be executed. such judgments and orders as we shall think fit to make in the premises, in such manner as any original judgment, decree, or decretal order, or other order or rule of the said court of Van Diemen's Land, should or might have been executed: and we do hereby strictly charge and command all governors, commanders, magistrates, ministers, civil and military, and all our liege subjects within and belonging to the said colony, that in the execution of the several powers, jurisdictions and authorities hereby granted, made, given or created, they be aiding and assisting, and obedient in all things, as they will answer the contrary at their peril: provided always, that nothing in these presents contained, or any act which shall be done under the authority thereof, shall extend or be construed to extend to prevent us, our heirs and successors, to repeal these presents or any part thereof, or to make such further or other provision by letters patent for the administration of justice, civil and criminal, within the said colony and the places now or at any time hereafter to be annexed thereto, as to us, our heirs and successors, shall seem fit, in as full and ample a manner as if these present had not been made, these presents or anything herein contained to the contrary thereof in anywise notwithstanding. In witness, &c., the 4th day of March.

By Writ of Privy Seal.

D.-ABSTRACT OF THE VAN DIEMEN'S LAND COMPANY'S CHARTER.

The Van Diemen's Land Company's charter, bearing dated the 1st September, 1825, is founded on the Act of the 6 Geo. 4, c. 39.

The charter, after setting forth the objects contemplated in the act, goes on to declare and define the scope of the operations of the company. It empowers the company to expend their capital in the improvements of their lands and the construction of works thereon, and in carrying out emigrants. It conveys the power of "working and raising mines and minerals," subject to such conditions as might be imposed by the sovernment.

The company may make loans on the security of "lands and hereditaments" situated within the colony, to the amount of 50,000l. in the whole; a record of each loan to be entered in the supreme court within one month.

They may also make loans to the amount of 20,000l. on any "bonds or judgments" (such loans to be subject to the further regulation of the government), provided they do not enter into any banking operations. Loans may be made without restriction to persons settling on their lands for the purpose of improving them.

They may contract for public works to the extent of 50,000l. This licence to continue for 10 years only, and be then subject to renewal or otherwise.

They may advance money to the government to the extent of 100,000l. on security of any tolls or taxes. This licence also to continue for 10 years only, subject to renewal.

They may advance money on whale or seal fisheries to the amount of 20,0001.

They may lay out capital to the extent of 20,000l. in the acquirement of "houses, wharfs, and buildings," and capital to the amount of 10,000l. in the acquisition of any other description of real property, "lands or hereditaments." Such last-mentioned description of property (not being a house, wharf, or other building) to be only through a license from the governor. The secretary of state may authorize the company to increase such loans and investments of capital, if it shall appear to be for the benefit of the colony to do so. Provision is then made for regulating the tenure of their grant.

- 1. The grants to be made under the seal of the colony, in pursuance of warrants under the Royal Sign Manual.
  - 2. A quit-rent to be chargeable of 14 per cent. on the lands.
  - 3. No quit-rent to be due or payable for five years from the date of the grant.
  - 4. May redeem the quit-rent by payment of 20 times its amount.
- 5. They shall employ a number of convicts equal to the number of their free labourers, provided the governor should be able and willing to supply such a number.
  - 6. The company to employ one free overseer to every 50 convicts.

- 7. None of the company's land to be alienated for five years from the date of the grant, under penalty of a forfeiture to the crown.
- 8. The company have the power of alienating any portion of their land (after such period of five years) not exceeding 12,500 acres, after having proved to the local government an expenditure of 2,500l.; and so on in like proportion, and on the same conditions, to the extent of one-half their grant. They may also lease for any period not exceeding 21 years any portions of their land, to the extent of one-half their grant.
- 9, 10, & 11. The quit-rent chargeable on the company's land shall be paid at intervals of five years; the first payment to be made after the expiration of 10 years from the date of the grant. It is also provided, that the quit-rent may be redeemed by the employment and maintenance of 150 convicts during the greater part of the second period of five years from the date of the grant, of 250 convicts during the third period, and of 350 during the fourth period.
- 12. The lands shall be free from quit-rent if, within 20 years from the date of the grant, the company shall make it appear that they have relieved the local treasury from a charge equal to 25,000*l*. by the maintenance of convicts, to be calculated at the rate of 16*l*. for each convict supported during the year.

The capital of the company is fixed at 1,000,000l, sterling, to be raised in shares of 100l, each.

Then follow various provisions relative to the appointment of the governor, deputy-governor, and the directors; their meetings, &c. &c. &c. [A letter of Lord Bathurst's, then secretary of state for the colonies, will shew the terms on which government were then disposed to grant the colonial lands to companies established in England.]

E.—Copy of a Letter from Earl Bathurst to Mr. Edward Curr, Secretary to the proposed Van Diemen's Land Company.

Sir,

Having had under my consideration the letter which on the 22d ultimo you addressed to me on behalf of the merchants and others who have associated themselves together as a company for the cultivation and improvement of waste lands in His Majesty's Island of Van Diemen's Land, I have thought it right in transmitting my answer to your proposals to avail myself of the opportunity this correspondence affords, of stating to you explicitly the terms upon which I am prepared to advise His Majesty to sanction the formation of the projected company.

2. It would be superfluous to state in this place the reasons which have induced me to consider the establishment of a company for the cultivation and improvement of waste lands in more than one of His Majesty's colonies as an undertaking deserving the support of His Majesty's government. It is sufficient to express the conviction of His Majesty's government, that the introduction of capital, judiciously applied, cannot fail to produce the most beneficial results. It must therefore form the essential basis of every such plan, that adequate security should be given that the nominal capital of any company of this description will be really raised and expended in carrying the avowed designs of the subscribers into effect.

3. I must therefore stipulate, on the behalf of His Majesty's government, that before any bill is brought into Parliament for investing the Van Diemen's Land company with the necessary powers, four-fifths, at least, of the capital should be actually subscribed; and I shall expect to receive, on the personal credit of the very respectable gentlemen whose names are placed at the head of the proposed company, an assurance that the subscribers are in general persons of capital and substance adequate to the payment of their subscriptions.

4. I shall further require as a necessary preliminary to the granting of the charter, that the subscribers shall actually pay up and deposit in the hands of the directors five per cent. upon the amount of the capital subscribed, and an additional five per cent. on that amount before the lands to be granted by the Crown are actually delivered into the possession of the company. If, in addition to these securities, it were possible to render the shares of the capital stock of the company inalienable for a few years, I should be much disposed to insist on such a condition. But being, upon full consideration of the subject, persuaded that the number of exceptions to such a rule which must be admitted, combined with the various contrivances which might be devised for eluding its operation, would deprive the rule itself of all practical efficacy, I have decided not to insist upon such a condition. As a substitute for it, however, I shall expect the company to agree to the following regulation: The capital originally subscribed will be divided into shares of 501. each, and the certificates to be delivered to shareholders will be expressed accordingly. But as, in the progress of the undertaking, it may be necessary that additional capital should be raised, it will be provided, that His Majesty's government may authorize the creation of an additional capital, equal in amount to that originally subscribed.

This additional capital will also be divided into shares of 501. each, and the original subscribers will be required to agree, for themselves and their representatives, that each person will accept a number of the second set of shares equal to the number which, at the time of such increase of capital, he may hold in the original shares.

5. Although the sanction of His Majesty's government will thus precede the increase of capital, it is, on the other hand, to be understood that this sanction will not be given unless it shall be applied for in a petition adopted at a general meeting of the subscribers, and unless His Majesty's government shall receive satisfactory proof that a considerable proportion of the original capital has been bona fide applied and expended in the prosecution of the undertaking.

6. The capital to be originally subscribed will be 500,000t. sterling, and will be divided into ten thousand shares. Each director and auditor of the company will be required to hold fifty shares, as the necessary qualification for his admission and continuance in those offices.

7. It is necessary that the manner in which it shall be lawful for the company to employ this capital should be defined with as much precision as the nature of the subject will admit; for it must be clearly understood that every intentional deviation from the mode of employment authorized by the terms of the charter, according to their fair and equitable construction, will be deemed a violation of the terms upon which such charter was granted.

- 8. As soon as the proposed charter of incorporation shall be obtained, and the necessary surveys completed, I shall be ready to advise His Majesty to make to the company a grant of two hundred and fifty thousand acres of land in the island of Van Diemen's Land; and one of the primary objects in which the company will be authorized to expend their capital, will be the clearing, improvement and cultivation of this tract of land. The words "improvement and cultivation" will be understood in a large and liberal sense, as including the formation of roads, drains and bridges; the erection of houses, mills, and other works and machinery necessary or convenient for the occupation or profitable cultivation of the soil; the depasturing of sheep or cattle, and generally such operations of agriculture or pasturage as the exigencies and peculiar situation of settlers in a new country may require.
- and peculiar situation of settlers in a new country may require.

  9. Another mode of employing the capital of the company will consist in the defraying the expenses incident to the emigration of persons proposing to settle upon any part of the company's estates; in which is of course included all charges of freight, outfit, and other expenses incident to the removal of emigrants, and to the settling them on their arrival.
- 10. With respect to the operations of mining, it may be necessary to remark that the Crown has always reserved to itself, upon the grant of waste lands in the colonies, all mines and minerals beneath the surface. A similar reservation will be made in the grant which may be issued in favour of the proposed company. Permission, however, will be given to the company to accept leases or grants of mines from His Majesty within the island of Van Diemen's Land, and to employ their capital in raising minerals, and in all other expenses ordinarily incident to that operation. It will, however, be clearly understood that the company is not to engage in any mining concerns, except upon such lands as may be expressly demised or granted to them by the Crown for that purpose; and that such grants or leases will prescribe such conditions as may from time to time appear necessary to His Majesty, for preventing the capital of the company being engaged in these undertakings to an unreasonable extent, or in an improvident manner. It is scarcely necessary to add, that it will altogether be optional with the Crown to make or to withhold such grants or leases, and that without an express grant or lease the company will not be at liberty to engage in mining operations, even upon their own lands. The ordinary operations of quarrying, or raising lime, clay, or other materials for buildings, do not fall within the meaning of this prohibitory rule.
- 11. The employment of the capital of the company in making loans to settlers will be permitted, but this power must not be exercised, except under such restrictions as have appeared to me necessary for preventing the abuses to which such a power, if unrestricted, might obviously lead. First, then, it will be required that all loans of this nature should be matter of public record, and that the whole amount of the money for which the company may at any one time be in advance to settlers shall not exceed 50,000l. sterling. Further, the company will be permitted to lend money on mortgage to persons not settled on their own estates, but in such manner as only will give them, in default of payment, the right, not of foreclosure, but of sale; and in every loan made on mortgage, a provision shall be introduced for the repayment of the money borrowed by instalments. In the event of the company bringing the estate of their debtor to a judicial sale, they will not be permitted to become the purchasers of it from the sheriff, for any price greater than the sum which the company may have vested on the mortgage of such estate.
- 12. The preceding regulations respecting the lending of money on mortgage will not extend to the case of persons effecting settlements on the company's estates. I do not deem it necessary to limit the amount of capital which may be advanced to this class of settlers, or to restrain the company from entering into such contracts with them, as, upon general principles of law, may be made by way of mortgage between any private capitalist and the owners of land.
- 13. With respect to the employment of the capital of the company on loans to private individuals upon mere personal security, it is requisite to lay down explicitly the distinction which it will be necessary to observe. It cannot be too plainly stated, that transactions in the nature of banking operations cannot be permitted. The company will therefore not be at liberty to lend money at interest to any private person by way of discount upon bills of exchange, promissory notes, or other negotiable securities, which by the custom of trade are transferable by delivery, or by a simple indorsement: still less can they be allowed to open a running account with any private person in the nature of an ordinary banker's account. But they will be permitted so advance money to any private person resident in the island on the security of bonds or judgments, provided that the whole amount of such loans shall not at any one time exceed 20,000% and subject to such regulations as may from time to time be laid down for the prevention of abuses.
- 14. The employment of a portion of the capital of the company in the accomplishment of public works, will be expressly sanctioned: but here also the permission must be qualified by such limitations as have appeared to be necessary to obviate its possible abuse. In the first place, the company will not be permitted, at any one time, to embark more than 50,000L in the whole, in any undertaking of this nature. At the expiration of ten years from the date of their charter, the power of employing any part of their capital in the execution of public works, will cease, unless his Majesty's government shall, at that period, see fit to continue that power for a further period. And finally, the company will not consider themselves as having any claim to be preferred above private persons in contracts of this nature, unless their proposals should, by the local government, be deemed more advantageous than those of any other candidates.
- 15. If the governor and legislative council of the colony should, at any time, pass any act for borrowing money for the public service, on the security of tolls, or other public taxes, the company will be permitted, in the event of such acts being confirmed by his Majesty, to become competitors for any such loans, provided that they are never in advance, on that account, in a greater sum than 100,000l. at any one time. This power of making loans will, however, expire in ten years from the date of the charter, unless it should be then renewed for a limited period, by the express sanction of his Majesty's government.

- 16. Whaling and sealing are mentioned in your letter as affording a mode in which the capital of the company might be invested with advantage to the colony. The conduct of a whale fishery, upon an extensive scale, requires so much attention, and so large an expenditure, and involves so much risk, that I cannot deem it right to sanction the diversion of the capital of the company, or the time of its agents, into such a channel. But so far as whaling and sealing, undertaken on the account and risk of others, can be promoted by loans of money to be made by the company, according to the preceding conditions, there will be no objection to that employment of it, to an extent not exceeding 20,000l.
- employment of it, to an extern not exceeding 20,000s.

  17 Having thus defined in general the purposes for which the capital of the company may be employed, I proceed to state the general rule, that it is not to be engaged in any species of trade. Without undertaking to furnish a precise definition of the general term, I would be understood to mean by trade, any transaction in the nature of barter and sale, which might not be fairly and bond fide undertaken for the purpose of converting into cash, or remitting to other ports, in the most convenient and economical manner, the produce of the company's lands.

18. The investment of the capital of the company in the purchase of lands in the colony, will not be permitted except in special cases, in which they shall first obtain the licence of the governor, it being understood, that even with his licence, they can never at any one time have invested in the purchase of land more

19. In reference to your request that the company may be at liberty to invest some portion of its capital in the purchase of houses and wharfs in the different townships, I am to apprize you that to the extent of 20,000*l*, such investments will be permitted, and that for that purpose the licence of the local government will not be necessary.

20. As the preceding limitations, with regard to the amount of the capital which the company may embark in the several particular operations above enumerated, may in process of time require revision, a power will be reserved to the crown to authorize by a licence through the secretary of state, any augmentation of such advances which experience may show to be necessary or desirable.

21. With respect to the grant and selection of the lands to be conceded to the company, the following rules will be observed:—

The company will receive their grant in the north west district of the island, that district being for the present purpose, considered as bounded on the north by Bass's Streights; on the west by the ocean; and on the cast and south by lines drawn from either shore, so as to afford the necessary depth of country. Within that district they will be at liberty to select any ungranted lands at their own discretion. Those lands must however lie in one continuous and unbroken tract, approximating to the form of a square, as nearly as may be, compatible with preserving a clear and well-defined natural boundary. The whole quantity of useful land, that is of land capable of being used in pasturage or tillage, to be contained in this square, is two hundred and fifty thousand acres. Whatever useless and unprofitable land may be unavoidably included in order to complete the square figure, will be granted to the company gratuitously.

22. The survey and valuation of the land thus to be granted to the company, will be carried into effect by five commissioners, of whom two will be appointed by the crown, and two by the company. The fifth commissioner will be elected by the four thus approinted. If the majority cannot concur in the election within fourteen days after their own appointment, then at the expiration of that period the governor or officer administering the government of Van Diemen's Land, will, on his Majesty's behalf, nominate a fifth commis-

23. In the event of the death, resignation or absence from the colony of any one of the five commissioners before the survey is completed, a successor will be appointed by the surviving or continuing commissioners; and if they cannot concur in electing a successor within fourteen days after the vacancy has occurred, the nomination will be made by the officer administering the government of the island.

24. The remuneration of the commissioners appointed by his Majesty will be provided for and paid by his Majesty; that of the commissioners appointed by the company, will be provided for and paid by them. The remuneration of the fifth commissioner, and the other expenses incident to the commission, will be provided and paid for equally between his Majesty and the company, those expenses being first taxed and allowed by the officer administering the government of the island.

25. The commissioners will make a report in writing to the governor or lieutenant-governor of the result of their survey and valuation, and a report of the majority of their number must be taken as the report of the whole body. In that report, they will state with all possible precision, the exact limits of the grant to be made to the company, especially distinguishing all the natural boundaries; and they will also state the average value per acre of that part of the land which is capable of being employed in pasturage or tillage.

26. So soon as the limits of the intended grant shall be thus ascertained, the officer administering the government of the island will be authorized to issue a grant of it to the company, to be held by them and their successors in free and common soccage. In this grant a quit rent will be charged upon the land, amounting to 30s. per annum, upon every hundred pounds of the ascertained value of the land to be comprised in the grant. The quit rent will not become payable until the expiration of five years from the date of the grant. Upon giving six months notice in writing to the local government, the company will be at liberty to redeem the quit rent, or any part of it, by paying into the colonial treasury a sum equal to twenty times the amount of the rent proposed to be extinguished. If the local government should be able and willing to supply the company with a number of convict labourers, not exceeding the number of free labourers employed by them in their grant, the company will accept such convicts and employ and maintain them at their own expense. If within fifteen years from the date of the grant, it shall be made to appear that the company have saved to His Majesty's government, by the maintenance of convicts, the sum of 25,000*l*. sterling, then all the lands contained in such grant will be for ever exonerated from all future quit rents. It will be estimated that His Majesty's government has saved 16*l*. sterling by each convict wholly kept and maintained by the company for one year.

27. In order to carry into full effect the preceding conditions, and to invest the company with all the powers which may be necessary for the accomplishment of their undertaking, I will recommend the necessary measures for obtaining a charter of incorporation under the great seal of the United Kingdom, and for introducing into parliament a bill for granting to the company such necessary powers as it would not be competent to His Majesty, in the exercise of his prerogative to confer.

Edward Curr, Esq. I am, Sir, your obedient humble servant, 48, Lothbury. (signed) BATHURST.

Van Diemen's Land Company was established by Act 6 Geo. IV., chap. 39, and incorporated by royal charter, 1825. The capital is one million sterling, divided into 10,000 shares of 100l. each. The amount paid on each share is £——

The general management of the affairs of the company, in London, is vested in a governor, deputy-governor, 18 directors, three auditors, and the clerk to the company.

The superintendence in the colony devolves upon the chief agent, and the objects are similar to the Australian Company.

The company's grants consist of 180,000 acres on the north-west coast, including three islands off the coast, in climate and soil resembling the west of England, as laid down in the map.

170,000 acres of the interior of the island, in climate and soil resembling the northern counties of England, and the southern counties of Scotland.

The present determination of the directors is to pursue tillage with the view to artificial grasses chiefly at Circular Head, to encourage the increase of the valuable imported flocks of sheep at Woolnorth, to discontinue for the present the attempt to keep sheep at the Hampshire and Surrey Hills, and to convert that district into a cattle estate. The stock, &c. belonging to the company is as follows:—

4 & 5 Will. IV. chap. 93.

An Act to empower his Majesty to erect South Australia into a British Province or Provinces, and to provide for the Colonization and Government thereof.—15th August. 1834.

Whereas that part of Australia which lies between the neridians of the one hundred and thirty-second and one hundred and forty-first degrees of east longitude, and between the Southern Ocean and twenty six degrees of south latitude, together with the islands adjacent thereto, consists of waste and unoccupied lands which are supposed to be fit for the purposes of colonization: and whereas divers of his Majesty's subjects possessing among them considerabe property are desirous to embark for the said part of Australia: and whereas it is highly expedient that his Majesty's said subjects should be enabled to carry their said laudable purpose into effect: and whereas the said persons are desirous that in the said intended colony an uniform system in the mode of disposing of waste lands should be permanently established: be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that it shall and may be lawful for his Majesty, with the advice of his privy council, to erect within that part of Australia which lies between the meridians of the one hundred and thirty-second and one hundred and forty-first degrees of east longitude, and between the Southern Ocean and the twenty-six degrees of south latitude, together with ull and every the islands adjacent thereto, and the bays and gulfs thereof, with the advice of his privy council, to extablish one or more provinces and to fix the respective boundaries of such provinces; and that all and every person who shall at any time hereafter inhabit or reside within his Majesty's said province or provinces shall be free, and shall not be subject to or bound by any laws, orders, statutes, or constitutions which have been hereto the manner hereinafter directed, be made, ordered, and enacted for the government of his Majesty's province or provinces of South Australia.

- vinces of South Australia.

  2. And be it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for his Majesty, his helrs and successors, by any order or orders to be by him or them made with the advice of his or their privy council, to make, ordain, and, subject to such conditions and restrictions as to him and them shall seem meet, to authorize and empower any one or more persons resident and being within any one of the said provinces, to make, ordain, and establish all such laws, institutions, or ordinances, and to constitute such courts, and appoint such officers, and also such chaplains and clergymen of the established clurch of England and Scotland, and to impose and levy such rates, duties, and taxes, as may be necessary for the peace, order, and good government of his Majesty's subjects and others within the said province or provinces; provided that all such orders, and all laws and ordinances so to be made as aforesaid, shall be laid before the king in council as
- that all such orders, and all laws and ordinances so to be made as aforesaid, shall be laid defore the King in council as soon as conveniently may be after the making and enacting thereof respectively, and that the same shall not in anywise be contrary or repurant to any of the provisions of this act.

  3. And be if further enacted, that it shall be lawful for his Majesty, his heirs, and successors, by warrant under the the sign manual, to be counter-igned by his Majesty's principal secretary of state for the colonies, to appoint three or more fit persons to be commissioners to carry certain parts of this act, and the powers and authorities hereinafter contained, the properties and also (from time to time at pleasure to remove, any of the commissioners for the time being each less.)
- fit persons to be commissioners to carry certain parts of this act, and the powers and authorities hereinafter contained, into execution, and also from time to time at pleasure to remove any of the commissioners for the time being, and upon every or any vacancy in the said number of commissioners, either by removal or by death or otherwise, to appoint some other fit persons to the said office; and until such appointment, it shall be lawful for the surviving or continuing commissioners or commissioner to act as if no such vacancy had occurred.

  4. And be it further enacted, that the said commissioners shall be styled "The Colonization Commissioners for South Australia;" and the said commissioners or any two of them may sit from time to time, as they deem expedient, as a board of commissioners for carrying certain parts of this act into execution.

  5. And be it further enacted, that the said commissioners shall cause to be made a scal of the said board, and shall cause to be sealed or stamped therewith all rules, orders, and regulations made by the said commissioners in pursuance of this act; and all such rules, orders, and regulations, or copies thereof, purporting to be sealed or stamped with the seal of the said board, shall be received as evidence of the same respectively without any further proof thereof; and no such rule, order, or regulation, or copy thereof, shall be valid, or have any force or effect, unless the same shall be so sealed or stamped as atoresaid.

  6. And be it further enacted, that the said commissioners shall and they are hereby appropriate to declarate.
- 6. And be it further enacted, that the said commissioners shall and they are hereby empowered to declare all the lands of the said province or provinces (excepting only portions which may be reserved for roads and footpaths) to be public lands, open to purchase by British subjects, and to make such orders and regulations for the surveying and sale of such public lands at such price as the said commissioners may from time to time deem expedient, and for the letting of the common of pasturage of unsold portions thereof as to the said commissioners may seem meet, for any period not exceeding three years; and from time to to time alter and revoke such orders and regulations, and to employ the monies from time to time received as the purchase-money of such lands, or as rent of the common of pasturage of unsold portions thereof, in conducting the emigration of poor persons from Great Britain or Ireland to the said province or provinces: provided always, that no part of the said public lands shall be sold except in public for ready money, and either by auction or otherwise as may seem best to the said commissioners, but in no case and at no time for a lower price than the sum of twelve shillings sterling per English acre: provided also, that the sum per acre which the said commissioners may declare during any period to be the upset or selling price at which such lands shall be sold shall be an uniform price; (that is to say,) the same price per acre whatever the quantity or situation of the land put up for sale: provided also, that the whole of the funds from time to time received as the purchase money of the said lands, or as the rent of the common of pasturage of unsold portions thereof, shall constitute an "Emigration Fund," and shall, without any deduction whatsoever, except in the case hereinafter provided for, be employed in conveying poor emigrants from Great Britain or Ireland to the said province or provinces: provided also, that the poor persons who shall by means of the said "Emigration Fund" be conveyed to the said province or provinces, shall, as far as possible, be adult persons of the two sexes in equal proportions, and not exceeding the age of thirty years.

gration rund. Be conveyed to the said province or provinces, shail, as far as possible, be adult persons of the two sexes in equal proportions, and not exceeding the age of thirty years.

7. And be it further enacted, that no poor person having a husband or wife (as the case may be), or a child or children, shall, by means of the said "Emigration Fund," obtain a passage to the said province or provinces, unless the husband or wife (as the case may be), or the child or children of such poor person, shall also be conveyed to the said

8. And be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for his Majesty, his heirs and successors, by warrant, under the sign manual to be countersigned by his Majesty's principal secretary of state for the colonies, to appoint a commissioner of public lands to be resident in the said colony, and to act under the orders of the said board of commissioners as hereinafter directed.

9. And be it further enacted, that the said commissioners shall and they are hereby empowered to appoint such person or persons as they may think fit treasurer, assistant surveyors, and other officers, for carrying this act into execution respecting the disposal of the said public lands and the purchase money thereof, and to remove such treasurer or assistant surveyor or other officers at their discretion, and on every or any vacancy in the said office of treasurer, assistant surveyor, or other officers, by removal or by death or otherwise, to appoint, if they see fit, some other person to the said office. the said office.

10. And be it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioners to delegate to the said colonial commissioners, assistant-surveyor, or other officer, or to any of them, such of the powers and authorities with respect to the disposal of the public lands of the said province or provinces as the said commissioners shall think fit; and the powers and authorities so delegated, and the delegation thereof, shall be notified in such manner, and such powers and authorities shall be exercised at such places, for such periods, and under such circumstances, and subject to such regulations, as the said commissioners shall direct; and the said commissioners may at any time revoke, recall, alter, or vary all or any of the powers and authorities which shall be so delegated as aforesaid.

11. And be it further enacted, that all the monies under the control of the said board of commissioners shall be received and usign by the treatypes who may be appointed by the said board and who shall give security for the fait follows.

11. And be it further enacted, that all the monies under the control of the said board of commissioners shall be received and paid by the treasurers who may be appointed by the said board, and who shall give security for the faithful discharge of their duties to such amount and in such manner as to the said commissioners may seem fit.

12. And be it further enacted, that all accounts of the said treasurer shall be submitted to the lords of his Majesty's treasurer, and be audited in the same manner as other public accounts.

13. And be it further enacted, that the said commissioners may and they are hereby empowered from time to time, at the discretion of the said commissioners, to remove such secretary, treasurer, clerks, messengers, and officers as they shall think fit, and from time to time, at the discretion of the said commissioners, to remove such secretary, treasurer, clerks, messengers, and officers, or any of them, and to appoint others in their stead.

14. And be it further enacted, that every commissioner and colonial commissioner to be appointed from time to time shall, before he shall enter upon the execution of his office, take the following outh before one of the judges of his Majesty's court of common pleas, or one of the barons of the court of exchequer or (in the case of such colonial commissioners) before the judge of one of his Majesty's court of the said province or provinces; (that it to say,)

15. A. B. do swear, that I shall faithfully, impartially, and honestly, according to the best of my skill and judgment, execute and full all the powers and duties of a commissioner [or colonial commissioner, as the case may be,] under an act passed in the fifth year of the reign of King William the Fourth, intitude [here set forth the title of this act.]

16. And be it further enacted, that the said commissioners shall, at least once in every year, and at such other times and in such form as His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State of the Colonics shall direct, submit to the said Secretary of State a full and particular report of their proceedings; and every such report shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament

State a full and particular report of their proceedings; and every such report shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within six weeks after the receipt of the same by the said Secretary of State, if Parliament be then sitting, or if Parliament be not sitting, then within six weeks after the next meeting thereof.

17. And be it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioners, previously and until the sale of public lands in the said province shall have produced a fund sufficient to defray the cost of conveying to the said province or provinces, from time to time, such a number of poor emigrants as may by the said commissioners be thought desirable, from time to time to borrow and take up on bond or otherwise, payable by instalments or otherwise, at interest not exceeding 10. per cent, per annum, any sum or sums of money not exceeding 50,000d. for the sole purpose of defraying the costs of the passage of poor emigrants from Great Britain or Ireland to the said province or provinces, by granting and issuing, to any person or persons willing to advance such monies, bonds or obligatory writings under the hands and seals of the said commissioners or of any two of them, which bonds or other obligatory writings shall be termed "South Australia Public Lauds Securities;" and all such sum or sums of money, not exceeding in the whole 50,000d, so borrowed on the credit of and be deemed a charge upon the whole of the fund to be received as the purchase money of public lands, or as the rent of the common of pasturage of unsold portions thereof; and it shall and may be afterned for the said commissioners from time to time to appropriate all or any part of the monies which may be obtained by the sale of public lands in the said province or provinces to the payment of interest on any such sum or sums borrowed and taken up as aforesaid, or to the repayment of such principal sum or sums such principal sum or sums.

18. And be it further enacted, that for defraying the necessary costs, charges and expenses of founding the said intended colony, and of providing for the government thereof, and for the expenses of the said commissioners (excepting always the purpose whereunto the said emigration fund is made solely applicable by this act,) and for defraying all costs, charges and purpose whereunto the said emigration fund is made solely applicable by this act,) and for detraying all costs, charges and expenses incurred in carrying this act into execution, and applying for and obtaining this act, it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioners from time to time to borrow and take up on bond or otherwise, payable by instalments or otherwise, at interest not exceeding 10% per cent. per annum, any sum or sums of money required for the purposes last aforesaid, not exceeding in the whole the sum of 200,000% by granting or issuing to any person or persons willing to advance such monies, bonds or obligatory writings under the hands and seals of the said commissioners or any two of them, which bonds monies or obligatory writings shall be termed "South Anstralia Colonial Revenue Securities;" and all such sum or sums of money by the said commissioners so borrowed and taken up as last aforesaid, shall be and is and are hereby declared to be obsers more the ordinare revenue or reduces of all rates duting and taken up the land as a destread to the obsers, now the ordinare revenue or reduces of all rates duting and the land as a destread to be above a new the ordinare revenue or reduces of all rates duting and the land as a destread to be a borrowed. as charge upon the ordinary revenue or produce of all rates, duties and taxes to be levied and collected as hereinhelore directed within the said province or provinces, and shall be decined and taken to be a public debt owing by the said province to the holders of the bond or bonds or other writings obligatory by the said commissioners granted for the purposes last aforesaid.

19. And be it further enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioners at any time to borrow or take up any sum or some of money for any of the purposes of this act at a lower rate of interest than any security or securities previously given by them under and by virtue of this act which may then be in force shall bear, and therewith to pay off and discharge any existing security or securities bearing a higher rate of interest as aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, that if after the expiration of ten years from the passing of this act the population of the said province or provinces shall be less than 20,000 natural born subjects, then and in that case all the public lands of the said province or provinces which shall then be unsold shall be liable to be dispused of by His Majesty, his heirs and successors, in such manner as to him or them shall seem meet: provided always, that in case any of the obligations created by the said South Australian Public Lands Securities should then be unsatisfied, the amount of such obligations shall be deemed a charge upon the said unsold public lands, and shall be paid to the holders of such securities out of any monies that may be obtained by the sale of the said lands.

26. And be it further enacted, that until the said commissioners shall, by the granting and issuing of bonds and writings obligatory as aforesaid, that is to say, "South Australian Colonial Revenue Securities," have raised the sum of 20,000*l*, and and have invested the same in the purchase of Exchequer bills or other government securities, as hereinbefore directed, and until the persons intending to settle in the said province or provinces and others shall have invested, (either by payment to the said commissioners, or in the names of trustees to be appointed by them,) for the purchase of public lands in the said province or provinces, the sum of 35,000*l*, none of the powers and authorities hereby given to His Majesty, or to the said commissioners, or to any person or persons, except as respects the exercise by the said commissioners of such powers as are required for raising money by means of and on the security of the bonds or securities last aforesaid, and for receiving and investing the aforesaid sum of 35,000*l*, for the purchase of public lands, shall be of any effect, or have any operation when the said province and some securities last aforesaid, and for receiving and investing the aforesaid sum of 35,000*l*, for the purchase of public lands, shall be of any effect, or have any operation whatsoever.

APPENDIX VI.-AFRICA.

A .- CHARTER FOR SUPREME COURT OF JUSTICE AT THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

WILLIAM the FOURTH, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith. To all to whom these presents shall come greeting: Whereas it is expedient to make provision for the better and more effectual administration of justice in our colony of the Cape of Good Hope, and in the several territories and settlements dependent thereupon, and for that purpose to constitute within our said colony and its dependencies one supreme court of justice, to be holden in the manner and form hereinafter mentioned. Now know ye, that we of our special grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, have thought fit to grant, direct, order, and appoint, and by these presents do accordingly for us, our heirs and successors, grant, direct, order, and appoint, that there shall be within our said colony of the Cape of Good Hope a court, which shall be called "The Supreme Court of the Colony of the Cape of Good Hope." And we do hereby create, erect, and constitute the said supreme court to be a court of record. And we do further will, ordain, and appoint, that the said supreme court of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope shall consist of and be holden by and before one chief justice and two puisne judges, and that the said chief justice shall be called and known by the name and style of " The Chief Justice of the Colony of the Cape of Good Hope;" and which said chief justice and puisne judges shall be respectively barristers in England or Ireland, or advocates admitted to practise in our courts of session of Scotland, or in the said supreme court. And which said chief justice and puisne judges shall from time to time be nominated and appointed to such their offices by us, our heirs and successors, by letterspatent under the public seal of the said colony, to be issued in pursuance of any warrants or warrant, to be from time to time for that purpose granted by us, our heirs and successors, under our or their sign manual. And we do hereby declare, ordain, and grant, that upon the death, resignation, sickness, or incapacity of the said chief justice or any of the said puisne judges; or in the case of the absence of any of them from the said colony, or in case of any such suspension from office as hereinafter mentioned, of any such chief iustice or puisne judge, it shall and may be lawful to and for the governor of our said colony for the time being, by letters-patent, to be by him for that purpose made and issued under the public seal of the said colony, to nominate and appoint some fit and proper person or persons to act as and in the place and stead of any such chief judge or puisne judge so dying or resigning, or labouring under such sickness or incapacity as aforesaid; or being so absent as aforesaid from the said colony, or being so suspended, until the vacancy or vacancies so created by any such death or resignation, or sickness, or incapacity, or absence, or suspension, shall be supplied by a new appointment, to be made in manner aforesaid by us, our heirs and successors, or until the chief justice or puisne judge so becoming sick, or incapable, or being absent, or suspended as aforesaid, shall resume such his office, and enter into the discharge of the duties thereof. And we do further will, ordain, and grant, that the said chief justice and puisne judges shall hold such their offices during their good behaviour. Provided nevertheless, that it shall and may be lawful for the governor of our said colony for the time being, by any order or orders to be by him for that purpose made and issued under the public seal of the said colony, with the advice of the executive council of government of the said colony, or the major part of them, upon proof of the misconduct of any such chief justice or puisne judge as aforesaid, to suspend him from such his office and from the discharge of the duties thereof, provided that in every such case the said governor shall immediately report for our information, through one of our principal secretaries of state, the grounds and causes of such suspension. And we do hereby reserve to us, our heirs and successors, full power and authority to confirm or disallow such suspension from office as aforesaid of any such chief justice or puisne judge. And we do hereby further reserve to us, our heirs and successors, full power and authority, upon sufficient proof to our or their satisfaction of any such misconduct, to remove and displace any such chief justice or puisne judge from such his office. And we do hereby give and grant to our said chief justice for the time being rank and precedence above and before all our subjects whomsoever within the said colony of the Cape of Good Hope and the territories and places dependent thereupon, excepting the governor or lieutenant-governor for the time being thereof, and the commander-in-chief of our forces for the time being within the same, and excepting all such persons as by law or usage in England take place before our chief justice of our court of King's Bench. And we do hereby give and grant to the said puisne judges for the time being rank and precedence within our said colony of the Cape of Good Hope and the territories and places dependent thereupon, next after our said chief justice of our said colony for the time being. And we do hereby declare, that the said puisne judges shall take rank and precedence between themselves according to the priority of their appointment respectively. And we do further grant, ordain, and appoint, that the said supreme court of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope shall have and use as occasion may require, a seal bearing a device and impression of our royal arms within an exergue or label surrounding the same, with this inscription, "The Seal of the Supreme Court of the Cape of Good Hope." And we do hereby ordain, grant, and appoint, that the said seal shall be delivered to and shall be kept in the custody of the said chief justice, with full liberty to deliver the same to any puisne judge of the said court for any temporary purpose; and in case of vacancy of or suspension from the office of chief justice, the same shall be delivered over to and kept in the custody of such person as shall be appointed by the said governor of our said colony to act as and in the place and stead of the said chief justice. And we do further grant, ordain, and declare, that the said chief justice and the said puisne judges, so long as they shall hold their offices respectively, shall be entitled to liave and receive such salaries as shall be granted to them by us, our heirs and successors, which salaries shall be in lieu of all fees of office, perquisites, emoluments, and advantages whatsoever; and that no fee of office, perquisite, emolument, or advantages other than and except the said salaries shall be accepted, received, or taken by any such chief justice or puisne judge on any account or any pretence whatsoever. And we do further ordain, appoint, and declare, that no such chief justice or puisne judge as aforesaid, shall accept, take, or perform any other office, place of profit or emolument within our said colony; and that the acceptance of any such other office or place as aforesaid, shall actually vacate and avoid such his office of chief justice or puisne judge, as the case may be, and the salary thereof shall cease accordingly from the time of the acceptance of any such other office or place. And we do hereby ordain, appoint, and declare, that there shall be attached and belong to the said court the following officers (that is to say), one officer to be styled the registrar or prothonotary and keeper of records of the said court, and one other officer to be styled the master thereof, together with such and so many other officers as the chief justice of the said court for the time being shall from time to time appear to be necessary for the administration of justice, and the due execution of the powers and authorities which are granted and committed to the said court by these our letters-patent. Provided nevertheless, that no new office shall be created in the said court, unless the governor of the said colony or lieutenant-governor for the time being shall first signify his approbation thereof to the said chief justice for the time being in writing under the hand of such governor or lieutenant-governor. And we do further ordain and direct, that all persons who shall and may be appointed to the offices of registrar or prothonotary and keeper of records or master of the said court, and that all persons who shall be appointed in the said court to any offices of which the duties shall correspond to those performed by the master or prothonotary of any or either of our courts of record at Westminster, shall be so appointed by us, our heirs and successors, by warrant under our or their royal sign manual; and that all persons who shall and may be appointed to any other office within the said supreme court, shall be so appointed by the governor for the time being of the said colony. And we do further direct and appoint, that the said several officers of the said court other than and except the said chief justice and puisne judges thereof, shall hold their respective offices therein during the pleasure of us our heirs and successors. And we do hereby authorize and empower the said supreme court of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope to approve, admit, and enrol such persons as shall have been admitted as barristers in England or Ireland, or advocates in the court of session of Scotland, or to the degree of doctor of laws at our universities of Oxford, Cambridge, or Dublin, to act as barristers or advocates in our supreme court. And we do further authorize and empower the said supreme court to admit any persons to practise as barristers and advocates therein, who previously to the promulgation of these pre-ents within the said colony have been actually admitted to practise as advocates in the supreme court of justice heretofore existing within the same. And we do further authorize and empower the said supreme court to approve, admit, and enrol, any persons being attornies or solicitors of any of our courts of record at Westminster or Dublin, or being proctors admitted to practise in any ecclesiastical court in England or Ireland, or being writers to the signet in Scotland, or being now entitled to practise as proctors or notaries in the said supreme court of justice heretofore existing within the said colony, to act as attornies, solicitors, or proctors in the said supreme court of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope. And we do further authorize our said supreme court to approve, admit and enrol, as such attornies, solicitors or proctors as aforesaid, such and so many persons as may be instructed within our said colony in the knowledge and practice of the law, by any barrister, advocate, attorney, solicitor, or proctor, duly admitted to practise in the said court, and which persons shall be so approved, admitted, and enrolled according to and in pursuance of any general rule or rules of court to be for that purpose made in manner hereinafter directed. And we do ordain and declare, that persons approved, admitted, and enrolled as aforesaid, shall be and they are hereby authorized to appear and plead and act for the suitors of the said supreme court subject always to be removed by the said supreme court from their station therein upon reasonable cause. And we do further ordain, that no person or persons whatsoever not so approved, admitted and enrolled as aforesaid, shall be allowed to appear, plead, or act in the said supreme court for or on behalf of any suitors in the said court. Provided always, and we do further ordain and declare, that the functions and office of barristers and advocates shall not be discharged in the said court by the attornics, solicitors, and proctors thereof; and that the functions and office of such attornies, solicitors, and proctors, shall not be discharged by such barristers at law or advocates. Provided nevertheless, and we do further declare our will to be, that in case there shall not be a sufficient number of barristers and advocates within the said colony competent and willing to act for the suitors of the said court, the said court shall and is hereby authorized to admit any of the attornies, solicitors, or proctors thereof, to appear and act as barristers and advocates during the time of such insufficiency only; and in case there shall not be a sufficient number of attornies, solicitors, and proctors within the said colony competent and willing to appear and act in that capacity for the suitors of the said court, the said supreme court shall and is hereby authorized to admit any of such barristers or advocates to practise and act in the capacity of attornies, solicitors, and proctors, during the time of such insufficiency only. And we ordain and declare, that the governor for the time being of the said colony of the Cape of Good Hope shall, on the first Monday in the month of January in each year, by warrant under his hand and seal, nominate and appoint some fit and proper person to act as and be the sheriff for our said colony of the Cape of Good Hope and its dependencies for the year ensuing, which Sheriff, when appointed, shall, as soon as conveniently may be, and before he shall enter upon his said office, take an oath faithfully to execute the duties thereof, and the oath of allegiance before the said governor, who is hereby authorized to administer the same. And we do direct, that the said sheriff shall continue in such his office during the space of one whole year, to be computed from the said first Monday in the month of January, and until another shall be appointed and sworn into the said office; and in case such sheriff shall die in or resign his said office, or depart from our said colony of the Cape of Good hope during the period of his office, then another person shall as soon as conveniently may be after the death, resignation, or departure of such sheriff, be in like manner appointed and sworn as aforesaid, and shall continue in his office for the remainder of the year, and until another sheriff shall be duly appointed and sworn into the said office. And we do further order, direct and appoint, that the said sheriff for the time being shall, by himself or his sufficient deputies, to be by him appointed and duly authorized under his hand and scal, and for whom he shall be responsible during his continuance in such office, execute, and the said sheriff by himself and his said deputies are hereby authorized to execute, all the sentences, decrees, judgments, writs, summonses, rules, orders. warrants, commands, and processes of the said supreme court of the Cape of Good Hope, or of the circuit courts of the said colony hereafter mentioned; and shall make a return of the same, together with the manner of the execution thereof, to the supreme court of the Cape of Good Hope, or to the said circuit courts, as the case may be; and shall receive and detain in prison all such persons as shall be committed to the custody of such sheriff by the supreme court of the Cape of Good Hope, or by the said circuit courts, or by the chief justice, or by any other judge of the said courts. And we do further authorize our governor for the time being of the said colony of the Cape of Good Hope in each succeeding year to re-appoint the same person to fill the office of sheriff, if it shall appear to our said governor expedient so to do. Provided nevertheless, and we do hereby require our said governor in the selection of any person to fill the said office of sheriff of the Cape of Good Hope, to conform himself to such directions as may from time to time be given in that behalf by us, our heirs and successors, through one of our or their principal Secretaries of State. And we do further direct, ordain, and appoint, that whenever the said supreme court of the Cape of Good Hope, or the circuit courts hereinafter mentioned, shall direct or award any process against the said sheriff, or award any process in any cause, matter, or thing, wherein the said sheriff, on account of his being related to the parties or any of them, or by reason of any good cause or challenge which would be allowed against any sheriff in England, cannot or ought not by law to execute the same, in every such case the said supreme court of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope, or the said circuit courts, as the case may be, shall name and appoint some other fit person to execute and return the same; and the said process shall be directed to the person so to be named for that purpose, and the cause of such special proceedings shall be registered and entered on the records of the said courts respectively. And we do hereby further ordain, direct and appoint, that the said supreme court of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope shall have cognizance of all pleas and jurisdiction in all causes whether civil, criminal, or mixed, arising within the said colony, with jurisdiction over our subjects and all other persons whomsoever residing and being within the said colony, in as full and ample manner and to all intents and purposes as the supreme court of justice now existing within the said colony now hath or can lawfully exercise the same. And we do further give and grant to the said supreme court of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope full power, authority, and jurisdiction, to apply, judge, and determine upon, and according to the laws now in force within our said colony, and all such other laws as shall at any time hereafter be made and established for the peace, order, and government thereof by us, our heirs and successors, with the advice and consent of Parliament, or in our or their privy council, or by the governor of the said colony, by the advice of the legislative council of government thereof. And we do further give and grant to the said supreme court full power, jurisdiction, and authority, to review the proceedings of all inferior courts of justice within our said colony, and if necessary to set aside and correct the same; and in the exercise of such jurisdiction, powers, and authorities as aforesaid, our will and pleasure is, that the pleadings and proceedings of the said supreme court and the said circuit courts shall be carried on, and the sentences, decrees, judgments, and orders thereof, pronounced and declared in open court, and not otherwise, and that the several pleadings and proceedings of the said courts shall be in the English language; and that in all criminal cases the witnesses against and for any accused person or persons shall deliver their evidence rive roce and in open court. And we do further will, direct, and appoint, that for the conduct and decision of all civil suits, actions, and causes depending before the said supreme court, and of all questions, matters, and things arising in the course of any such civil suits, actions, or causes, any two of the judges of the said supreme court shall form a quorum, and shall be competent to execute all and every the powers, jurisdictions, and authorities hereby granted to and vested in the said supreme court; and that in the event of any difference of opinion between such two judges, the decision of the said court shall in any such case be suspended until all the three judges shall be present, and the decision of such three judges when unanimous, or of the majority of such three judges in case of any difference of opinion, shall in all cases be deemed and taken to be the decision of the whole court. And we do further ordain, direct, and appoint, that in any criminal case depending before the said supreme court the trial of the person or persons accused shall be before any one or more of the judges of the said court and a jury (a) of nine men, who shall concur in every verdict to be given on the trial of any such accused party or parties; and every such verdict shall be delivered in open court by the mouth of the foreman of every such jury, and shall be thereupon recorded and read over to such jury before they are discharged from attendance on the said court. Provided nevertheless, and we do further declare and direct, that no person within the said colony who may be otherwise competent to serve on any such jury as aforesaid, shall be or be taken to be incompetent to serve on such jury by reason of his ignorance or supposed ignorance of the English language. And we do further ordain and direct, that all the duties heretofore performed by the orphan chamber within our said colony, shall henceforth be performed by the master for the time being of the said supreme court, and that the said orphan chamber shall be and the same is hereby abolished. And we do further direct and appoint, that the said supreme court shall at all times be holden at Cape Town in our said colony. And we do further ordain and direct, that it shall and may be lawful for the governor of the said colony by any proclamation or proclamations, to be by him for that purpose issued, to apportion and divide the said colony into two or more districts, and to fix and ascertain the boundaries and limits of every such district, and such boundaries and limits from time to time to alter as occasion may require. Provided always, that such apportionment of the said colony into such districts as aforesaid be made in such manner as to such governor may appear to be best adapted for enabling the inhabitants of the said colony to resort with ease and convenience to the circuit courts to be therein established as after mentioned. And we do further grant, ordain and appoint, that courts to be called circuit courts shall be holden twice at the least in each year in each of the districts into which the said colony may be so divided as aforesaid, and each of the said circuit courts shall be holden by the chief justice, or by one of the said puisne judges of the said supreme court of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope, at such times and at such one or more place or places within each of the said districts as the governor of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope shall from time to time direct and appoint. And we do further direct and appoint, that each of the said circuit courts shall be respectively courts of record, and shall, within the district in which it may be holden, have and exercise all such and the same jurisdiction, powers, and authority as is hereby vested in the said supreme court of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope throughout the whole of the said colony; and that all crimes and offences cognizable in the said circuit courts shall be inquired of heard, and determined by the said circuit judge and a jury of nine men, and that the verdict of such jury shall be pronounced and recorded in the manner before directed respecting the verdict of juries to be given in the said supreme court; and that the provision hereinbefore contained respecting the ignorance or supposed ignorance of the English language of any person otherwise competent to serve on any jury in the said supreme court, shall also extend and apply to persons serving or who may be required to serve as jurors in the said circuit courts or any of them. Provided nevertheless, and we do further ordain and direct, that if upon the trial of any crime or offence before any of the said circuit courts, nine good and lawful men, being duly summoned, shall not appear to form a jury, then and in all such cases such trial shall be had before the circuit judge and any number of the jury who shall appear, not being less than six, who shall be sworn and have the same power as if the full number of nine had appeared. Provided also, and we do further direct and appoint, that all civil suits or actions depending in any of the said circuit courts shall be tried and decided by the judge of such court alone and without a jury: and that in all cases where the sum or matter at issue in any such suit or action shall exceed or be of the value of more than one hundred pounds sterling British money, the judge of the said court respectively shall cause the evidence on every such hearing or trial as aforesaid to be taken down in writing by the clerk or other proper officer in open court in the presence of the witnesses respectively giving the same, and the evidence so taken shall be entered upon the proceedings of the said courts and be of record; and in every case in which any appeal shall be made and allowed under the provisions of this our charter from any judgment of the said circuit courts, copies of all documents and papers which shall have been produced and given in evidence shall be certified and transmitted by the said clerk or other proper officer as authentic, and also copies of any documents and papers which shall have been produced and tendered in evidence and rejected, shall, if required by the party producing the same, be in like manner authenticated and marked by such officer as aforesaid as rejected, in order that all such copies may be annexed to the record as part thereof in case of appeal. And we do further direct and declare, that it shall be lawful for the judges of the said circuit court respectively, on application of either of the parties, plaintiff or defendant, at or before the trial of any civil suit or action commenced in the said circuit courts respectively, to permit the evidence on such trial to be recorded and certified as aforesaid, although the sum or matter at issue may be less than one hundred pounds sterling provided that it shall be made to appear to such judge that such judgment, decree, order, or sentence which may be given, made, or pronounced in such suit or action may be of such importance as to render it proper that an appeal should be permitted; and if after giving or pronouncing such judgment, decree, or order the said judge shall be of opinion that such judgment, decree, order or sentence is of such importance as to make it proper that an appeal should be permitted, it shall be lawful for the said judge to allow either of the said parties, plaintiff or defendant, to appeal to the said supreme court in like manner and under and subject to the like rules and regulations as in and by this our charter are directed in other cases of appeal from the said circuit courts. And we do further direct and appoint, that it shall be lawful for the plaintiff or plaintiffs, defendant or defendants, against whom any sentence, judgment, or decree or order of the said circuit courts respectively shall be given for or in respect of any sum or matter at issue above or exceeding the value of one hundred pounds sterling, to appeal therefrom to the said supreme court; and the party or parties appealing from such sentence, judgment, decree, or order, shall within fourteen days from the passing thereof give notice to the adverse party or parties of such appeal, and within fourteen days from and after such sentence, judgment, decree, or order, enter into sufficient security, to be approved by the judge of the said circuit courts respectively, to satisfy and perform the said judgment, decree, or order, in case the same shall be affirmed or the appeal dismissed, together with such further costs as shall be awarded thereon; and in all cases of appeal where notice shall be given and security perfected as aforesaid, execution shall be stayed, and not otherwise; and the said supreme court shall and may inquire into, hear, and decide all questions whether of law or fact arising upon any such appeal, but shall not admit or receive any evidence which was not tendered to the circuit court from which such appeal may be bronght on the hearing or trial of any such suit or action therein. And we do further direct and appoint, that as often as any action or suit shall be brought in the supreme court or in either of the said circuit courts respectively, and it shall be made to appear to the court before which such action or suit may be pending, that such action may be more conveniently heard or determined either in the said supreme court or in some other of the said circuit courts, it shall be lawful for such court to permit and allow such action or suit to be removed to such other court, and such allowance shall be certified by the judge, together with the process and proceedings in such action or suit, to the court into which such action or suit shall be intended to be removed, and thereupon it shall be lawful for such last-mentioned court and such court is hereby required to proceed in such action or suit in like manner as if the same had been originally commenced and prosecuted in such last-mentioned court. And we do further ordain and direct, that no judgment or sentence, either of the said supreme court or of any such circuit court as aforesaid, in any criminal case whereby any person shall be condemned to death, or transportation, or banishment from the said colony, shall be carried into execution until a report of all the proceedings upon any such trial hath been laid before or transmitted to the governor of the said colony by the chief justice or puisne judge presiding at any such trial, nor until such governor shall have authorized and approved the execution of such sentence. And we do further grant, ordain, direct, and appoint, that it shall and may be lawful for the said supreme court, by any rules or orders of court to be by them from time to time for that purpose made and published, to frame, constitute, and establish such rules, orders and regulations as to them shall seem meet, touching and concerning the time and place of holding the said supreme court and touching the forms and manner of proceeding to be observed in the said supreme court and circuit courts respectively, and the practice and pleadings upon all actions, suits, and other matters, both civil and criminal, indictments and informations to be therein brought, the appointing of commissioners to take bail and examine witnesses, the examination of witnesses de bene esse, and allowing the same as evidence, the proceedings of the sheriff and other ministerial officers of the said courts respectively, the process of the said courts and the mode of executing the same, the summoning, empannelling, and challenging of jurors, the admission of barristers, advocates, attornies, and solicitors, and proctors, the fees, poundage, or perquisites to be lawfully demanded by and payable to any officers, attornies, solicitors, and proctors, in the said courts respectively, and touching and concerning all such other matters and things necessary for the proper conduct and dispatch of business in the said supreme and circuit courts respectively, and all such rules, orders, and regulations, from time to time to revoke, alter, amend, or renew, as occasion may require. Provided always, that no such rules, orders and regulations shall be repugnant to this our charter and that the same shall be so framed as to promote, as far as may be, economy and expedition in the dispatch of business of the said supreme court and circuit courts respectively. And that all such rules and forms of practice, process, and proceeding, shall, so far as the circumstances of the said colony may permit, be framed with reference to the corresponding rules and forms in use in our courts of record at Westminster, and that the same be drawn up in plain, succinct, and compendious terms, avoiding all unnecessary repetitions and obscurity, and promulgated in the most public and authentic manner in the said colony for three months at least before the same shall operate and take effect. Provided always that all such rules, orders, and regulations shall forthwith be transmitted to us, our heirs, and successors, under the seal of the said court, for our or their approbation or disallowance. And whereas it may be expedient and necessary to make provision respecting the qualifications of jurors to serve in the said courts, and the mode of enforcing the attendance of such jurors, and it may also be expedient and necessary to make provision for the extension of trial by jury in the said supreme court or circuit courts in civil cases: now we do further ordain, direct, and appoint, that it shall and may be lawful for the governor for the time being of our said colony with the advice of the legislative council of government thereof, to make and establish all such wholesome laws, statutes, and ordinances, as to them may seem meet, respecting the matters aforesaid, which laws, statutes, and ordinances shall forthwith be transmitted to us for our approbation or disallowance in the manner prescribed by law respecting all other the laws, statutes, and ordinances made or to be made by the said governor, with the advice of the said council. And whereas it may be expedient to establish within our said colony courts of request and other courts having jurisdiction in civil cases of small amount or value, and in cases of crimes or offences not punishable by death or transportation: now we do hereby authorize and empower the governor for the time being of our said colony, with the advice of the legislative council of government thereof, by any laws or ordinances to be from time to time made for that purpose, to erect, constitute and establish all such courts of request and other courts having jurisdiction in civil and criminal cases within our said colony: provided that the jurisdistion of such civil courts shall not be extended to any case wherein the sum or matter in dispute shall exceed the amount or value of £40 (b) sterling money, or wherein the title to any lands or tenements, or any fee, duty, or office, may be in question, or whereby rights in future may be bound. And provided also, that the jurisdiction of such courts in criminal cases shall not be extended to any case wherein any person may be accused of any crime punishable by death, transportation, or banishment from the said colony. And we do hereby authorize and empower the said governor, by and with the advice of the said chief justice and Puisne judges of the said supreme court for the time being, to make, ordain, and establish all necessary rules, orders, or regulations respecting the manner and form of proceeding in any such last-mentioned courts, and respecting the local limits within which the jurisdiction thereof is to be exercised, and respecting the manner and form of carrying the judgments and orders of such courts into execution, and all such other rules, orders, and regulations as may be necessary for giving full and perfect effect to the jurisdiction of the said courts. And we do hereby grant, ordain, and direct, that it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons, being a party or parties to any civil suit or action depending in the said supreme court of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope, to appeal to us, our heirs and successors, in our or their privy council, against any final judgment, decree, or sentence of the said court, or against any rule or order made in any such civil suit or action, having the effect of a final or definite sentence, and which appeals shall be made, subject to the rules, regulations, and limitations following, that is to say, in case any such judgment, decree, order, or sentence shall be given or pronounced for or in respect of any sum or matter at issue above the amount or value of £500 sterling, or in case such judgment, decree, order, or sentence shall involve directly or indirectly any claim, demand, or question to or respecting property or any civil right amounting to or of the value of £500 sterling, the person or persons feeling aggrieved by any such judgment, decree, order, or sentence of the supreme court may, within fourteen days next after the same shall have been pronounced, made, or given, apply to the said supreme court, by petition, for leave to appeal therefrom to us, our heirs, and successors, in our or their privy council. And in case such leave to appeal shall be prayed by the party or parties who is or are directed to pay any sum of money or perform any duty, the said supreme court shall and is hereby empowered either to direct that the judgement, decree, order, or sentence appealed from shall be carried into execution, or that execution thereof shall be suspended pending the said appeal, as to the said court may in each case appear to be most consistent with real and substantial justice; and in case the said supreme court shall direct such judgment, decree, order, or sentence to be carried into execution, the person or persons in whose favour the same shall be given, shall, before the execution thereof, enter into good and sufficient security, to be approved by the said supreme court, for the due performance of such judgment or order, as we, our heirs and successors, shall think fit to make thereupon; or in case the said supreme court shall direct the execution of any judgment, decree, order, or sentence to be suspended pending the said appeal, the person or persons against whom the same shall have been given shall, in like manner and before any order for the suspension of any such execution is made, enter into good and sufficient security, to be approved by the said supreme court, for the due performance of such judgment or order, as we, our heirs and successors, shall think fit to make thereupon. And in all cases we will and require that security shall also be given by the party or parties appellant, to the satisfaction of the supreme court, for the prosecution of the appeal and for the payment of all such costs as may be awarded by us, our heirs and successors, to the party or parties respondent; and if such last-mentioned security shall be entered into within three months from the date of such petitions for leave to appeal, then, and not otherwise, the said supreme court shall allow the appeal, and the party or parties appellant shall be at liberty to prefer and prosecute his, her, or their appeal to us, our heirs, and successors, in our or their privy council, in such manner and under such rules as are observed in appeals made to us from our plantations or colonies. And we do hereby reserve to ourselves, our heirs and successors, in our or their privy council, full power and authority upon the humble petition, at any time, of any person or persons aggrieved by any judgment or determination of the said supreme court, to admit his, her, or their appeal therefrom upon such other terms and upon and subject to such other limitations, restrictions, and regulations. as we or they shall think fit, and to reverse, correct, or vary such judgment or determination as to us or them shall seem meet. And it is our further will and pleasure that in all cases of appeal allowed by the said supreme court, or by us, our heirs and successors, the said court shall certify and transmit to us, our heirs and successors, in our or their privy council, a true and exact copy of all evidence, proceedings, judgments, decrees, and orders had or made in such causes appealed, so far as the same have relation to the matter of appeal, such copies to be certified under the seal of the said court. And we do further direct and ordain, that the said supreme court shall in all cases of appeal to us, our heirs and successors, conform to and execute such judgements and orders as we shall think fit to make in the premises, in such manner as any original judgment, decree, or decretal order, or rule, by the said supreme court of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope could or might have been executed. And we hereby strictly charge and command all governors, commanders, magistrates, ministers, civil and military, and all our liege subjects, within and belonging to the said colony, that in execution of the several powers, jurisdictions, and authorities hereby granted, made, given, or created, they be aiding and assisting and obedient in all things, as they will answer the contrary at their peril. Provided always, that nothing in these presents contained, or any act which shall be done under the authority thereof, shall extend or be construed to extend to prevent us, our heirs and successors, from repealing these presents or any part thereof, or from making from time to time, as occasion may require, such further or other provisions by letters-patent for the administration of justice, civil and criminal, within the said colony and the places now or at any time hereafter to be annexed thereto, as to us, our heirs and successors, shall seem fit, in as full and ample a manner as if these presents had not been made, these presents or any thing contained to the contrary therein in anywise notwithstanding, And whereas our royal brother and predecessor, his late Majesty King George the Fourth, by letters-patent under the great seal of the United Kingdom aforesaid, bearing date at Westminster the twenty-fourth day of August, in the eighth year of his reign, did grant, direct, order and appoint that there should be within the colony of the Cape of Good Hope a court which should be called the supreme court of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope, and it was thereby amongst other things, provided that nothing therein contained should extend or be construed to extend to prevent us, our heirs, and successors from repealing the said letters-patent or any part thereof, or from making such further or other provision by letters-patent for the administration of justice, civil and criminal, within the said colony and the places then or at any time thereafter to be annexed thereto, as to us, our heirs and successors should seem fit, in as full and ample a manner as if the said letters-patent had not been made, the said letters-patent or any thing contained to the contrary therein in anywise notwithstanding. Now we do hereby, in virtue and in pursuance of the powers so reserved to us as aforesaid in and by the said letters-patent, repeal and revoke the before-mentioned letterspatent and each and every part thereof: provided nevertheless, that all decrees, judgments, and sentences, rules and orders heretofore made by the courts established by, or by the judges appointed under the said letters-patent, or by any or either of such courts or judges, and that all general rules, orders, and regulations of court made under and in pursuance thereof, and that all proclamations issued by any governor of the said colony in virtue thereof, and that all laws or ordinances promulgated by the governor of the said colony, with the advice of the council of government thereof, for carrying the said letters-patent or any part thereof into effect, shall to all intents and purposes be as binding, conclusive, good, valid, and effectual as if these presents had not been made. And we do further ordain and direct that the governor of our said colony of the Cape of Good Hope, upon the arrival therein of these presents, shall by proclamation notify to the inhabitants of the said colony the time when the courts hereby established will be open, and as soon as the judges of the said supreme court shall have assumed and entered upon the exercise of their jurisdiction therein then and from thenceforth the supreme court of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope and the circuit courts now established within the same and the jurisdiction of the said courts respectively shall be absolutely abolished, cease, and determine, and every suit, action, complaint, matter, or thing, civil or criminal, which shall be depending in such last-mentioned courts respectively, shall and may be proceeded upon in the supreme court instituted under and by virtue of these presents, or in either of the said circuit courts which shall and may have jurisdiction within the district or place in the colony of the Cape of Good Hope where such action or suit or other matter, civil or criminal, respectively was depending, and all proceedings which shall thereafter be had in such action or suit or other matter, civil or criminal, respectively, shall be conducted in like manner as if such action or suit or other matter, civil or criminal, had been originally commenced in one or other of the said courts instituted under these presents, and all the records, muniments, and proceedings whatsoever of and belonging to the said supreme court and circuit courts established by the said recited letters-patent, shall, from and immediately after the opening of the said courts respectively instituted by these presents, be delivered over and deposited for safe custody in such of the said courts respectively instituted under these presents, as shall be found most convenient, and all parties concerned shall and may pave recourse to the said records and proceedings as to any other records or proceedings of the said courts respectively. And we do hereby further declare and direct, that during the absence from our said colony of the Cape of Good Hope of the governor thereof, or if there shall be no person commissioned by us, our heirs and successors, to be the governor of our said colony, then and in every such case all and every the powers hereby granted to and vested in the governor for the time being of the said colony shall and may be executed by and vested in the lieutenant-governor thereof, or the officer for the time being administering the government thereof. In witness, &c. Witness, &c. the fourth day of May, 1832.

By Writ of Privy Seal.

(a) The following was the jury law of the colony under an ordinance issued in pursuance of the charter of 1827.

"Ordinance of his honour the lieutenant-governor in council for determining the qualification of persons to serve on grand and petit juries, and the mode of making out and returning lists of the same." Passed

February 4, 1828.

SECT. 1. Whereas by His Most Gracious Majesty's charter, bearing date the 24th day of August, 1827, it is ordained, directed, and appointed, that in any criminal cause depending before the supreme court of this colony, the trial of the party or parties accused shall be before one or more of the judges of the said court and a jury of nine men, who shall concur in every verdict to be given on the trial of any such accused party or parties. And whereas by the said charter it is also directed, that all crimes and offences cognizable in the circuit court of this colony, shall be inquired of, heard, and determined by the circuit judge and a jury of nine men, unless upon the trial of any crime or offence before any of the said circuit courts nine good and lawful men, being duly summoned, shall not appear to form a jury, then and in all such cases such trial shall be had before the judge and any number of the jury who shall appear, not being less than six, who shall be sworn, and shall have the same power as if the usual number of nine had appeared : now, therefore, in pursuance to the powers and directions aforesaid in the said charter contained, be it enacted by his honour the lieutenant-governor in council, that from and after the passing of this ordinance, every man, except as hereinafter excepted, between the ages of 21 and 60 years, residing within the colony and its dependencies, who shall have the possession of any land situated within this colony, held on perpetual quit-rent or on loan, and for which he is liable to pay an annual rent of not less than one pound seventeen shillings and sixpence sterling, or of freehold land of the same annual value, or who shall be liable to pay in Cape Town and the district thereof a sum not less than twenty shillings serling, and in any and every other part of this colony a sum not less than fifteen shillings sterling for or on account of taxes already imposed or hereafter to be imposed by any law or ordinance, shall be qualified and shall be liable to serve on juries in all criminal cases in the supreme and circuit courts, such cases being triable in the district respectively in which every man so qualified shall reside.

2. Provided always, and be it further enacted, that all judges of the supreme court, all clergymen in holy orders, all priests of the Roman Catholic faith, all persons licensed to teach or preach in any congregation assembled for religious worship, all attornies and proctors duly admitted by the supreme court or court of vice-admiralty, and actually practising, all officers of any courts of superior or inferior jurisdiction, exercising the duties of their respective offices, all gaolers and keepers of houses of correction, all persons duly admitted to practise as physicians, surgeons, or apothecaries, and actually practising, all officers in his Majesty's army and navy on full pay or in active employment, all persons employed in the civil service of his Majesty's government in this colony, and all field-cornets, sheriffs' officers, constables and clerks, shall be and are hereby absolutely freed and excepted from being returned and from serving upon any jury whatsoever.

7. And be it further enacted, that no person shall be put on trial on any indictment at any criminal session of the supreme court, unless the bill shall first have been presented to a grand jury, and shall have been returned by them a true bill.

8. And be it further enacted, that every such grand jury shall consist of not more than seventeen men, and not less than nine men, between the ages of 21 and 60 years, of good fame and condition, possessing property in land or houses within Cape Town of the value of £2,000 sterling.

(b) Under the charter of 1827 district courts had been appointed, the jurisdiction of which did not extend in the Cape district to cases where more than £20 were in dispute, nor in other places to a larger amount than £10. Whoever, in the Cape district, had a claim on another for more than £20, was obliged to apply to an attorney at least three or four days before the matter could be brought into court. If his claim was founded on a note or bond already due, no witnesses were required, and it would have been sufficient to submit the document to his attorney, who handed it to an advocate, by whom it was submitted to the court on Tuesday, the day appointed for such claims, for provisional judgment, which was immediately granted if no one appeared in defence.

B.—SIERRA LEONE.—CHARTER OF JUSTICE.

Ninth Part Patents of the Second Year of King George the Fourth.

GEORGE the Fourth, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith, to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting: Whereas by an Act of Parliament made, and passed in the thirty-first year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, our dearest father intituled, "An Act for establishing a Company for carrying on Trade between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the coasts, harbours, and countries of Africa, and for enabling the said company to hold by grant from His Majesty, his heirs, and successors, and from the native Princes of Africa, a certain district of land, commonly called the Peninsula of Sierra Leone, now vested in his Majesty or belonging to the said princes, for the better enabling the said company to carry on the said trade," it was, amongst other things, enacted, that the several persons therein named and described should be and they were thereby created one distinct and separate body politic and corporate, by the name or style of "The Sierra Leone Company;" and it was also enacted, that it should be lawful for his said late Majesty, his heirs, and successors, to make unto the said company a grant by letters-patent, under the great seal of Great Britain, of so much and such part of all that tract or district of land situate and being at Sierra Leone, on the coast of Africa, and commonly called or known by the name or description of "The Peninsula of Sierra Leone," as then already might have or should thereafter by any grant, purchase, or cession from any of the kings, princes, or chiefs having right therein, become vested in his said late Majesty, his heirs, or successors, with power and liberty to and for the said company to purchase of and from all kings, princes, and chiefs, or other powers having right to make sale thereof, so much land as should include the whole tract or district so commonly called or known by the name of the Peninsula of Sierra Leone as aforesaid, bounded as thereinafter mentioned; to hold the same to the said company and their assigns, upon such terms, conditions, and reservations as his said late Majesty, his heirs, and successors should judge expedient; and it was thereby further enacted, that the said Act should take place and have continuance from the 1st day of July 1791, for the term of thirty-one years, and from thence to the end of the next session of Parliament: And whereas the said company, in pursuance of the said Act and immediately after passing the same, did raise a large capital of stock, and did enter upon the business and undertakings for which they were incorporated, and did also purchase from the natives of Sierra Leone aforesaid a part or district of the said peninsula, and form a very considerable establishment for their officers, servants, and settlers, and built a town called Freetown, and laid out plantations there, and also formed some other settlements or factories on the neighbouring coasts for the purpose of carrying on trade with this country in the natural productions of Africa: And whereas the said company humbly besought his said late Majesty, by petition, to make unto them such grant of the said penin-sula as in the said Act of Parliament is specified; and further to grant unto them certain powers, privileges, and franchises for the government of the said peninsula, and for the effectual administration of justice in civil causes, and for the trial and punishment of crimes or misdemeanors committed there, or in the said company's other factories and settlements, suggesting that the granting of such powers unto the said company would not only conduce to the welfare of the said peninsula, but would also tend (as there was great reason to believe) to advance the national interests on the continent of Africa: And whereas his said late Majesty having considered the premises, did by virtue and in pursuance of the said recited act, and of his own special grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, give and grant, by letters-patent under the great seal of Great Britain, bearing date at Westminster the 5th day of July in the fortieth year of his reign, for himself, his heirs and successors, to the said company, their successors, and assigns, under the reservations, limitations, and declarations thereinafter expressed, all and every such part and parts of all that tract and district of land, situate and being at Sierra Leone, on the coast of Africa, and commonly called or known by the name or description of "The Peninsula of Sierra Leone," as already had by any grant, purchase, or cession from any of the kings, princes, or chiefs having right therein become vested in his said late Majesty, his heirs, and successors, together with all the soils, grounds, havens, ports, gulfs, and bays, mines, minerals, precious stones, quarries, woods, rivers, waters, fishings, as well royal as other fishings, pearls, commodities, jurisdictions, royalties, franchises, privileges, and pre-eminences within the same, and the precincts thereof and thereunto in any sort belonging or appertaining, and which his said late Majesty, by his letters-patent, might or could grant, and in as ample a manner as his said late Majesty or any of his royal progenitors had hitherto granted to any company or body politic or corporate, or any other person or persons whomsoever, and in as large and ample a manner as if the same were there particularly mentioned and expressed; and did further give and grant unto the said company, their successors, and assigns, full power, liberty, and privilege to purchase of and from all kings, princes, and chiefs, or other powers having right to make sale thereof, so much land in addition thereto as should include the whole tract or district commonly called or known by the name of "The Peninsula of Sierra Leone" as aforesaid, as the same was bounded on the north by the river Sierra Leone, on the south by the river Caramanca, on the east by the river Bruce, and on the west by the sea; to have, hold, and enjoy the same peninsula, and the whole use, property, and possession thereof, unto the said company, their successors, and assigns, to be holden of his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, as of his manor of Fast Greenwich, in the county of Kent, in free and common soccage and not in capite, yielding and paying therefore to his said late Majesty, his heirs, and successors, the rent or sum of ten shillings of lawful money of Great Britain, on the 1st day of September yearly, all which lands, countries, and premises thereby granted or mentioned, or intended so to be, his said late majesty did by the said letters-patent make, crect, and create one independent and separate colony, by the name of "The Colony of Sierra Leone;" and did further for himself, his heirs, and successors, grant unto the said company and their successors, and did by the said letters-patent or charter of justice ordain, will, and establish that the court of directors of the said company, assembled for that purpose, should and might make, enact, and declare laws, statutes, and ordinances fit and necessary for and concerning the government of the said colony, and that the same should be in full force and virtue within the said colony of Sierra Leone, so as the same should not be repugnant to the laws of this realm, and to impose reasonable fines, penalties, or forfeiture for any breach or breaches thereof; and did further will and ordain that the court of directors of the said company for the time being, being assembled for that purpose, should from time to time have full power and authority to nominate, make, constitute, and appoint a governor and three councillors for the government of the said colony, and the factories or settlements dependent thereon, and such governor and council, or any of them so appointed, at their pleasure to remove or recall, and another or others in his or their place or places to appoint; and that such governor and council so to be appointed, should and might make, enact, and declare laws, statutes, and ordinances fit and necessary for and concerning the government of the said colony, and not repugnant to the laws and statutes of this realm, and that the same should be in full force and virtue within the said colony of Sierra Leone until the said Court of Directors should think fit to disallow or disapprove of the same; and did further give and grant unto the said company and their successors, and did by the said charter ordain, direct and establish that there should be within the said town of Freetown one body politic and corporate, by the name or style of "The Mayor and Aldermen of Freetown," and that such body politic and corporate should consist of a mayor and three aldermen, and that the said body politic and corporate, by the name and style aforesaid, should have perpetual succession, and should and might be able and capable in law to sue and be sued in any courts and causes whatsoever, and should and might have a common seal for the business and affairs of the said corporation, which common seal they and their successors might break and change at their pleasure: And did further, by the said charter, direct that the persons constituted respectively the first and modern mayor, and the first and modern aldermen of the said town of Frectown, in and under the same, should, at a time to be appointed for that purpose by the governor, or in case of his absence, by the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, within fourteen days after notice of the said charter, take an oath duly to execute their respective offices, together with the oath of allegiance, which oath the said governor, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, was thereby empowered to administer, and that from the time of taking the said oaths of office and allegiance the said mayor should continue in the said office until another person should be duly elected and sworn into the said office as thereinafter was directed; and did by the said charter direct that the said persons therein nominated as aforesaid to be aldermen of Freetown, should continue in their respective offices of aldermen from the time of taking such oaths as aforesaid, for and during the term of their natural lives, unless their said places should be avoided, or themselves removed, in such manner as thereinafter was mentioned: And did further will and direct, that it should and might be lawful to and for the governor and council of the said colony for the time being, or the major part of them, whereof the said governor, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one, yearly and every year, on the first Monday in the month of September, to assemble themselves, and proceed to the election of one person out of the aldermen of the said town of Freetown to be mayor of the said town for one year, from the 29th day of September in every year, and until another should be duly elected and sworn into the said office: And did further ordain and appoint, that the person so chosen into the office of mayor should, on or before the 29th day of September next after he should be chosen into his said office as aforesaid, take the usual oath of office and the oath of allegiance before the said governor for the time being, or in his absence, before the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, who were thereby authorized and required to administer the same, and should continue in such office for the space of one whole year from the said 29th day of September, and until another should be duly elected and sworn into the said office in manner before mentioned; and that in case any mayor should happen to die in his said office, the governor and council of the said colony for the time being, or the major part of them, (whereof the said governor, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one) should and might, as soon after as they conveniently could, assemble and elect one other person out of the said aldermen of the said town of Freetown for the time being to be mayor of the said town of Freetown for the remainder of the year, and until another should be duly elected and sworn into the said office; and that the person so chosen and appointed as aforesaid should immediately thereupon take the same oaths of office and allegiance as were before directed to be taken by the mayors of the said corporation: And did further ordain, that the mayor of the said town of Freetown thereinbefore nominated, and every other person who should thereafter be mayor of the said town, should, after the determination of his office of mayor, continue to be one of the aldermen of the said town until his said place shall be avoided and himself removed in manner thereinafter mentioned; provided that the mayor for the time being should be capable of being re-elected from time to time when and as the electors should think fit: And did further will and direct, that so often as any of the aldermen of the said town should die or be removed, or their places be avoided in manner thereinafter mentioned, the governor and council of the said colony for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the said governor, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one), should and might assemble and elect some other fit person out of the inhabitants of the said town of Freetown into the said place of alderman, who should, within fourteen days after his election, take the oath of office and the oath of allegiance before the governor of the said colony for the time being, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, and should continue in such office during his life, unless his said place should be avoided, or himself removed, in such manner as thereinafter was mentioned; and that if any person so chosen an alderman should neglect or refuse to accept such office, not having a reasonable excuse for so doing, and should not within fourteen days next after such his election take the oath of office and the oath of allegiance, then and in such case every such person should forfeit and pay such reasonable fine as should for that purpose be fixed and agreed on by the court of the mayor and aldermen thereinafter constituted, with the approbation and consent of the said governor and council of the said colony for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the said governor, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one), to be by them signified to the said court in writing: And did further by the said charter ordain and provide, that if the said mayor, or any of the said aldermen, should remove or return to Europe, or should otherwise be absent from the said town of Freetown by the space of three calendar months, unless for such reasonable cause as the said governor and council for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the said governor, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one), should allow, or should become the said company's governor, or one of their council of the said colony, in every such case the place or office of every such mayor or alderman should be void; and it should and might be lawful to choose another mayor or alderman in the place and stead of such person, in the same manner as was before provided in case such mayor or alderman had been naturally dead: And did further thereby direct and appoint, that it should and might be lawful to and for the said governor and council of the said colony for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the said governor, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one), to remove any of the said aldermen, upon reasonable cause, provided

that a complaint in writing were first exhibited against him, and that he had a reasonable time given him for his defence, and were summoned for that purpose, in case he should be resident within the limits and precincts of the said town of Freetown; but that in case any person should think himself aggrieved by any such sentence or adjudication of removal, such person might, within one calendar month after notice of such removal, appeal to the said court of directors, upon giving security to pay the costs of such appeal in case such sentence or adjudication should be affirmed, although such appeal should not suspend the execution of such sentence: And did further by the said charter ordain, direct, and appoint, that the mayor and aldermen for the time being of the town of Freetown aforesaid should be, and they were thereby constituted, a court of record, by the name of "The Mayor's Court of Freetown;" and that they, or any two or more of them (whereof the mayor, or the senior alderman for the time being residing there to be one), might, and they were thereby authorized to try, hear, and determine all civil suits, actions, and pleas between party and party that should or might arise or happen, or that had already arisen or happened, within the said colony of Sierra Leone, or any of the factories subject or subordinate thereunto, except such suits or actions as should be between natives of Africa only not become settlers within the said colony or factories, in which case his said late Majesty willed that the same should be determined among themselves, unless both parties should by consent submit the same to the determination of the said mayor's court, and also except where the cause of action or suit should not exceed the value of 40s.: Provided, that if the said mayor, or any of the said aldermen, should be in any ways interested in the event of any such action or suit, no such mayor or aldermen so interested as aforesaid should sit or act as judge in such suit or action, but that the same should be heard and determined by such of them, the said mayor and aldermen, as should be no ways interested therein; and that in all cases where the number of voices should be equal in the determination of any action or suit, the mayor, or in his absence, the senior alderman present, should have two voices: And did further by the said charter direct, that the person constituted first sheriff of the said colony in and under the same, should, at a time to be appointed for that purpose by the governor, or in his absence, by the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone aforesaid, within fourteen days after notice of the said charter, take an oath duly to execute his office, together with the oath of allegiance, which oaths the said governor, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone aforesaid, was thereby empowered to administer; and that from the time of taking the said oaths of office and allegiance the said sheriff should continue in the said office until another should be duly elected and sworn into the said office, as thereinafter was directed; and that the governor and council of the said colony for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the said governor, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one), should yearly, on the first Monday in the month of September, assemble themselves, and proceed to the election of a new sheriff for the year ensuing, to be computed from the 29th day of September next after such election, which sheriff, when elected, so soon as conveniently might be, and before he should enter upon his said office, should take the usual oath of office and the oath of allegiance before the said governor for the time being, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, who were thereby authorized to administer the same, and should continue in such office during the space of one whole year, from the said 29th day of September, and until another should be duly elected and sworn into the said office, unless his said place should be avoided in such manner as thereinafter was mentioned; and that in case any such sheriff should die in his office, or should remove from the said town of Freetown, or be absent from the same by the space of three calendar months, unless for such reasonable cause as the said governor and council for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the governor, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one) should allow, then the said governor and council, or the major part of them (whereof the governor, or, in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one), should and might, as soon as conveniently might be after the death, removal, or absence of such sheriff, assemble and choose another person to be sheriff in his room, who should be sworn as aforesaid, and continue in his office for the remainder of the year, and until another should be duly elected and sworn into the said office; and that the said sheriff thereby appointed, and every other sheriff so to be elected and sworn as aforesaid, should, during his and their continuance in such office respectively, have full power and authority to summon juries, execute and make return of all process of the said court, and of any other court erected by the said charter within the districts aforesaid; and in case of the absence of any such sheriff for such reasonable cause, to be allowed as aforesaid, the deputy or under sheriff, to be appointed by such sheriff, should return all process, and do all acts in the name of and by virtue of the authority of such sheriff: And did further by the said charter direct, ordain, and appoint, that upon complaint, to be made in writing to the said court, by or on behalf of any person or persons against any other person or persons whomsoever, then residing or being, or who, at the time when such cause of action had or should have accrued, did or should reside or be within the said town or elsewhere in the said colony of Sierra Leone, or any of the factories subordinate thereto, of any of the causes of suit aforesaid already accrued, or which should or might thereafter accrue, unless the same should be between the natives only of Africa, not become settlers within the said colony of Sierra Leone or the said factories, or unless such cause of suit should not exceed the value of 40s., the said court should and might issue a summons in writing, under the hands and seals of two of the judges of the said court, (whereof the mayor for the time being, or in his absence, the senior alderman residing within the said town of Freetown, to be one,) to be directed to the said sheriff, requiring the party or parties, defendant or defendants, to appear before them at a certain time and place therein to be appointed, to answer the said complaint, and in default of appearance upon return of the said summons at such time and and place, the said court should and might issue forth a warrant, under the hands and seals of any two of the judges of the said court, (whereof the mayor for the time being, or the senior alderman then residing within the said town of Freetown, to be one, unless the said mayor or senior alderman should be a party in such action or suit, and in that case under the hands and seals of any other two of the judges of the said court) directed to the said sheriff for the time being, to take the body or bodies of such defendant or defendants, and bring him or them before the said court, at a certain time and place therein to be appointed, to answer to the said complaint; and in case of appearance or arrest of the body or bodies of such defendant or defendants, to let such defendant or defendants out to bail upon giving sufficient security (which his said late Majesty did thereby empower the said court to take) to abide and perform the final order and judgment of the said court, or such final order and judgment as should or might be given upon any appeal to be brought in the said cause, or to surrender himself to the said court to be charged in execution till the said judgement should be satisfied; and in default of finding bail, or giving such security as aforesaid, to detain such defendant or defendants in custody, until he, she, or they should have found such bail, or have given such security as aforesaid, or should have judgment or sentence given for him, her, or them for such complaint; and after such bail-bond or security given as aforesaid, or in case such defendant or defendants should be detained in custody for want of bail or security, his said late Majesty did thereby for himself, his beirs and successors, ordain, direct, and authorize the said court to proceed to the examination of the matter and cause of complaint, either upon the oath or oaths or solemn affirmation of any witness or witnesses, to be taken in the most solemn manner; that is to say, the oath or oaths of such witness or witnesses who should profess the Christian religion to be taken upon the Holy Evangelists, unless such witness or witnesses should be of the persuasion of the people called Quakers, in which case a soleum affirmation should be sufficient: and upon the oath or solemn affirmation of any of the natives, in such manner as they should esteem to be most binding on their consciences to oblige them to speak the truth, for which purpose the said court was empowered and required by the said letters-patent to administer such oath or affirmation to such witness or witnesses as should be produced on behalf of either party (plaintiff or defendant), or by the confession or admission of such defendant or defendants in his, her, or their answer, upon the like oath or affirmation, according to his, her, or their religion, sect, or caste respectively, which oath or affirmation the said court was also by the said letters-patent empowered to administer; and that thereupon it should be lawful for the said court to give judgment and sentence according to law and equity, and to award and issue a warrant or warrants of execution under the hands and seals of two of the judges of the said court (whereof the mayor of the said town of Freetown for the time being, or the senior alderman then residing within the said town, to be one, unless they or either of them should be interested therein, and in that case, under the hands and seals of any two of the aldermen not interested therein), to be directed to the sheriff for the time being, for levying the debt, duty, or damages adjudged or decreed to the party or parties, complainant or complainants, together with their costs of suit, upon the goods and chattels of such defendant or defendants, or to cause sale to be made of his, her, or their goods and chattels, rendering to the party the overplus, if any were; and for want of sufficient distress, his said late Majesty did thereby give full power and authority to the said court to imprison the defendant or defendants until satisfaction was made by him, her, or them to the plaintiff or plaintiffs of the debt, duty, or damages decreed or adjudged, together with the costs of suit; and in case judgment were given for the defendant or defendants, full power and authority were thereby likewise given to the said court to award costs to such defendant or defendants, and to issue the like process and execution for the same as in cases where costs were awarded to any plaintiff or plaintiffs; and that if any action or suit should be brought or commenced against the mayor of the said corporation for the time being during his being or continuing in his office, it should and might be lawful for the said mayor's court to proceed in and determine such suit, in the same manner as in any other action or suit depending before them, but such mayor should not sit as judge or appear on the bench during the hearing of the said cause or making any order therein; and that if any action or suit should be brought against the said sheriff during his being and continuing in his office, it should and might be lawful to and for the said governor and council for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof the governor or the senior of the council residing at Sierra Leone to be one), to nominate and appoint a proper person to execute the process and orders of the said court against such sheriff for the time being; and to the intent that due provision might be made that there might be no failure of justice, if the defendant or defendants, who was or were resident within the said town of Freetown or elsewhere within the said colony, or any of the factories or settlements subordinate thereto, at the time when any cause of action did accrue should withdraw himself, herself, or themselves out of or should not be found within the jurisdiction of the said court, his said late Majesty did by the said charter give, grant, will, direct, and appoint that in case the sheriff should make return to such summons or warrant of arrest that the party or parties, defendant or defendants therein mentioned, or any of them. was or were not to be found within the jurisdiction of the said court, it should and might be lawful to and for the said court, upon an affidavit of proof verifying the demand of the plaintiff or plaintiffs in such suit to the satisfaction of the said court, to grant a sequestration to seize the estate and effects of such party or parties, defendant or defendants, to such value as the said court should think reasonable and should direct in such process of sequestration, and the same to detain in the hands of a proper person, to be appointed by the said court, till such party or parties should appear to the said complaint and give security as aforesaid; and in case the party or parties, defendant or defendants, should not appear and give security as aforesaid within the space of six months, unless it should be shewn to the said court on behalf of such defendant or defendants, that he, she or they was or were residing in Great Britain or Ireland, then that it should and might be lawful for the said court to proceed to hear and determine the said cause, and to give judgment therein as aforesaid: and in case judgment should be given for the plaintiff or plaintiffs in such suit, to direct the effects so seized to be sold, and out of the produce thereof to make satisfaction to the plaintiff or plaintiffs for the debt, duty or damages, and costs recovered, returning the overplus (if any should be) unto such defendant or defendants; and in case such produce should not be sufficient to make satisfaction to the plaintiff or plaintiffs, that then it should and might be lawful to and for the said court to award execution for the residue of the debt, duty or damages and costs, recovered in manner aforesaid: provided nevertheless, that in all cases where the action to be tried would, if the parties had been resident in this realm, have been tried by a jury in some court of law, every such action should be tried in the said mayor's court before a jury, according to the practice of the said courts of law in this realm, or as near thereto as the circumstances

would admit of; and his said late Majesty did thereby empower the said court to administer to such jury the usual oath taken in like cases in this realm: And for the considerations therein recited, his said late Majesty further, by the said charter, willed and ordained that all such money, securities and effects of the suitors of the said court as should be ordered in to court, or to be paid, delivered or deposited for safe custody, should be paid or delivered unto or deposited with the governor and council of the said colony, to be by them kept in deposit, subject to such orders and directions as the said mayor's court should from time to time think fit to make concerning the same for the benefit of the suitors; and did also give and grant unto the said court of directors of the said company, or the major part of them, full power and authority from time to time to name and appoint an officer, under the name of accountant-general of the mayor's court of Freetown, and the same at their pleasure to remove and another to appoint, who should act, perform and do all matters and things necessary to carry into execution the orders of the said mayor's court relating to the payment or delivery of the suitor's money, effects and securities unto the governor and council of the said colony, and taking the same out again, and keeping the accounts with the said governor and council and registrar, or other proper officer of the mayor's court, and other matters relative thereto, under such rules, methods and directions as should from time to time be made and given by the court of directors of the said company, which rules, methods and directions his said late Majesty thereby willed and directed should be according to such as were observed by the accountant-general of the High Court of Chancery of Great Britain, or as near thereto as might be, and as the situation and circumstances of affairs would admit; and did further thereby authorize the said mayor's court to administer oaths and affirmations, and to frame such rules of practice, and nominate and appoint such clerks and officers, and to do all such other things as should be found necessary for the administration of justice, and the due execution of all or any of the powers given to them by the said charter, so as they from time to time should give an account thereof unto the said company, and so as the same should be subject to the approbation, controul and alteration of the said court of directors of the said company, whom his said late Majesty did likewise will and ordain to have full power and authority to make such rules and orders for the better administration of justice as they should from time to time think fit and necessary; but such rules and orders so to be made by the said mayor's court, so far as the same should be repugnant to any rules or orders afterwards made by the said court of directors of the said company as aforesaid, should nevertheless be in force until the same should be revoked or altered by the said court of directors, and notice thereof given unto the said mayor's court: And did further thereby require and command that a table of fees to be allowed to such clerks and officers should be settled by the said mayor's court, and approved and signed by the governor and council of the said colony for the time being, and should be written out fair, and constantly fixed up in some visible and open part of the room or place where the said court should be held, and that it should be lawful for the said mayor's court, with the approbation of the said governor and council for the time being, or the major part of them, and also to and for the court of directors of the said company, to vary and alter such table of fees in such manner as they should think fit: And it was further by the said charter ordained and established, that if any person or persons should think him, her or themselves aggrieved by any judgment, sentence or decree of the said mayor's court, such person or persons should or might, within fourteen days after such judgment, sentence or decree of the said court should be entered of record, appeal to the governor and council of the said colony for the time being, whom (or any two or more, whereof the governor, or in his absence, the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one) his said late Majesty did thereby for himself, his heirs and successors, constitute, nominate and appoint to be a court of record for that purpose to receive such appeals, and to hear and determine the same, and to do all other acts, matters and things necessarily incident thereto; provided, that if the said governor and council should be anyways interested in the event of any such action or suit, no person so interested should sit or act as a judge upon such appeal, but the same should be heard and determined by such of them, the said governor and council, as should be no ways interested therein, or any two or more of them; and that in all cases wherein the number of voices should be equal in the determination or judgment upon such appeal, the governor for the time being, or in his absence, the senior of the council who should be present, and not interested, should have two voices, which determination should be final if the debt, damages or things directed to be paid, done or delivered, or matters in dispute should not exceed the value of 400l.; but in case the same should exceed the value of 400l., any person or persons who should think him, her or themselves aggrieved by such judgment, sentence or decree made on such appeal, should and might, within fourteen days after the same should be entered of record, appeal to his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, in Council, (as is usual in cases of appeal from any of the colonies in the West Indies) upon giving security to pay interest (not exceeding the rate of interest which should prevail at the time of pronouncing such judgment, sentence or decree) for the thing adjudged or decreed to be paid, done or delivered, and the costs of such appeal, in case the said judgment, sentence or decree should be affirmed: And did further will and direct that the judgments, sentences and orders of his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, and of the said governor and council, made upon such appeals respectively, should and might be put in execution by the said mayor's court, in such manner as an original judgment of the said court should or might have been, and they the said court were thereby required and commanded to execute the same accordingly; and in case the said mayor's court should refuse or neglect to cause such judgments. sentences or orders to be executed within fourteen days after application made to them for that purpose, then that it should be lawful for, and the said governor and council were thereby required and commanded to execute or cause the same to be executed by such ways and means as the said mayor's court might have used or employed in executing the same: And did further direct and appoint that there should be within the said town of Freetown a court, which should be called "The Court of Requests for the town of Freetown, and the factories and settlements thereof;" and for that purpose willed and required the said governor and council, as soon as conveniently might be after the arrival of the said charter, to nominate and appoint some of the principal inhabitants of the town of Freetown aforesaid, not more than twenty-four nor fewer than eight, to be commissioners to hear and determine suits in a summary way, under such rules, orders and regulations as should from time to time be given or sent to them under the hands of the court of directors of the said company, which commissioners, any three or more of them, should have full power and authority to hear and determine all such actions or suits as should be brought before them, where the debt, duty or matter in dispute should not exceed or be more than the value of 40s.; which commissioners so to be appointed should sit one day in every week from the hour of nine to cleven in the forenoon, or longer if the business should require, to hear and determine all such causes as should be brought before them not exceeding the value aforesaid: And did further by the said charter will, ordain and establish that the Governor and council of the said colony for the time being should be justices of the peace, and have power to act as justices of the peace in and for the said town of Freetown and throughout the said colony of Sierra Leone, and all the factories and settlements subordinate thereto, in the same or the like mauner, and with the same or the like powers, as justices of the peace constituted by any commission or letters patent under the great seal of Great Britain, for any county, city or town corporate in that part of Great Britain called England, did or might exercise such office: And did further will and provide that the said governor and council for the time being, or any two or more of them, (whereof the governor for the time being, or in his absence the senior of the council then residing at Sierra Leone, to be one,) should and might hold quarter sessions of the peace four times in the year within the district aforcsaid, and should at all times thereafter be a court of record in the nature of a court of over and terminer and gaol delivery, and should from time to time and at all times thereafter be commissioners of over and terminer and gaol delivery for the trying and punishing of all offenders and offences (high treason only excepted) had, committed or done, or to be had, committed or done within the said town of Freetown or elsewhere within the said colony of Sierra Leone, and any of the said factories or settlements subordinate thereto; and that it should and might be lawful to and for the said justices of the peace and commissioners of over and terminer and gaol delivery respectively to proceed by indictment or by such other ways, and in the same or the like manner, as was used in that part of Great Britain called England, as near as the condition and the circumstances of the place and inhabitants would admit of; and for that purpose to issue their warrant or precept to the sheriff of the said district for the time being, commanding him to summon a convenient number of the principal inhabitants within the said district to serve and attend as a grand and petty jury at the said court respectively; and that the said justices of the peace and commissioners of over and terminer and gaol delivery respectively, should and might administer to them the usual oath taken in England by grand and petty juries, and also administer to the witnesses who should be produced for or against the party to be tried, a proper oath or affirmation, in such manner as they should esteem most binding on their consciences to oblige them to speak the truth, and that the said justices and commissioners should and might respectively proceed to the arraignment, trial, conviction and punishment of persons accused of any crimes or offences, (high treason only excepted,) in the same or the like manner and form, as near as the condition and circumstances of the place and inhabitants would admit of, as any justices of the peace or commissioners of over and terminer and gaol delivery in that part of Great Britain called England usually and legally do; and that the said court might assemble and adjourn at and unto such times and places as they should judge convenient: And did thereby direct that the said governor should before the council there, or the major part of them, take an oath faithfully to execute the said offices of governor, justice of the peace, and commissioners of over and terminer and gaol delivery, together with the oath of allegiance, which oaths they were thereby empowered to administer; and after the taking such oaths, did thereby authorize the said governor to administer an oath to the council faithfully to execute the said offices of council, justices of the peace, and commissioners of over and terminer and gaol delivery, together with the oath of allegiance: and did by the said charter further ordain, establish and appoint, that when any person should die within the said town of Freetown or elsewhere within the said colony of Sierra Leone, or any of the factories or settlements subordinate thereto, and should by his will appoint any person or persons within the said town or colony, or the factories or settlements aforesaid, to be his executor or executors, then and in such case the said mayor's court, upon proof made of the due execution of the said will, should and the same was thereby authorized and required to grant probate of the said will under the seal of the said court, (which seal the said court was authorized by the same to use for that and other purposes,) whereby the person or persons so named executor or executors should have full power and ample authority to act as such, as touching the debts and estates of his, her or their testator; and where any person should die within the town or factories, or limits thereof, intestate, or not having appointed some person or persons to be executor or executors residing within the said town, colony, factories, or settlements that in either of these cases the said mayor's court should, and the same was thereby empowered and required to grant letters of administration or letter of administration with an authentic copy of the will annexed, (determinable upon any executor named in such will appearing in court and praying probate thereof,) as touching the debts and estate of the person dying intestate or not naming such executor as aforesaid that should be or arise within the limits aforesaid, to such person or persons then residing within the jurisdiction of the said court as should be next of kin to the person so dying or his residuary legatee, and in case there should be no such person within the said jurisdiction then to the principal creditor of the person so dying, and for want of any creditor appearing, then to such other person or persons as should be thought proper by the said court, every such person or persons to whom auch administration should be granted first giving security by bond (respect being had to the value of the estate) to the mayor of the said town, with condition in the form usually given in courts ecclesiastical within that part of Great Britain called England, or as near thereto as the nature and circumstances of the case would admit; and that such person or persons to whom administra-tion should be so granted should and might act in all respects as administrator or administrators touching the debts, effects and estates of such person or persons to whom he, she or they should take out administration as aforesaid, which should be or arise within the said limits: And whereas in pursuance and by virtue and authority of the said letters-patent, such governor and council, mayor's court, and such other courts and officers as are therein mentioned, were fully constituted, elected and appointed within the said colony of Sierra Leone, and entered upon and thenceforward exercised the various jurisdictions and authorities, offices

and functions respectively granted to and vested in them in and by the said charter, and divers laws and statutes and ordinances fit and necessary for and concerning the government of the said colony, and not repugnant to the laws and statutes of this realm, were from time to time made, enacted and declared as well by the said governor and council as by the said court of directors of the said company, and divers rules and orders for the better administration of justice were also from time to time made by the said mayor's court in further pursuance of the said charter: And whereas by an act of parliament passed in the forty-seventh year of the reign of his said late Majesty, intituled, "An Act for transferring to his Majesty certain possessions and rights vested in the Sierra Leone company, and for shortening the duration of the said company, and for preventing any dealing or trafficking in the buying or selling of slaves within the colony of Sierra Leone," reciting the said act of parliament therein first recited, and in part reciting or mentioning the said letterspatent hereinbefore recited; and further reciting that the said company, convinced of the expediency of relinquishing the government and management of the said colony, had expressed a desire to make and had humbly entreated his said late Majesty to accept a surrender to his said late Majesty of all the tract or district of land granted to them by the said letters-patent or charter of justice, or of which the said company were possessed, or which they did then enjoy by purchase or otherwise in addition to the said lands so granted as aforesaid to the said company, and that they were further desirous that their existence as a body politic and corporate should cease and determine within such period of time, shorter than that limited and declared in and by the said first herein recited statute, as was deemed by the said company sufficient for them in which to settle their affairs: And whereas, for confirming and giving effect to such intended surrender and for limiting the duration of the said company, it was in and by the said now recited act enacted that the said letters patent or charter of justice and grant therein mentioned and hereinbefore recited, and every matter, clause and thing therein contained, should and the same were thereby declared to be henceforth nul and void, and that the said company should be and they were thereby divested of and from all that tract and district of land commonly called and known by the name or description of the Peninsula of Sierra Leone, and of and from all forts, castles, buildings or estate which had been after purchased or otherwise acquired by the said company in addition thereto, or which then were possessed or claimed by the said company in or about the said peninsula, and that the said tract or district of land, and all forts, castles, buildings or estate so purchased or otherwise acquired, possessed, enjoyed or claimed by the said company, should thenceforth be, and the same and every of them were and was thereby declared and enacted to be fully and absolutely vested in his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever: And whereas it was in the said act now in recital further enacted, that at the expiration of seven years from and after the passing of the said act the said Sierra Leone company should cease to be a body politic and corporate to all intents, constructions and purposes whatsoever, anything in the said herein first recited act to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding; provided always and it was thereby further enacted, that it should not be lawful for any person or persons whatsoever inhabiting or being, or who should at any time thereafter inhabit or be within the said peninsula or colony of Sierra Leone, either directly or indirectly, to deal or traffic in, buy or sell, or to be aiding or assisting in the dealing or trafficking, in the buying or selling of slaves, either within the said peninsula or elsewhere: And whereas, in pursuance of the said act of parliament last recited, the said company did on or about the 27th day of July, in the forty-eighth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, actually and fully surrender to the governor for the time being of the said colony, by his said late Majesty in that behalf appointed and authorized, the possession of the said colony or peninsula, tract or district of land, and all forts, castles, buildings and estate, which by the true intent and meaning of the said last recited act of parliament ought to have been so surrendered, and the same were thenceforth in the possession and under the government of his said late Majesty: And whereas, it being necessary to provide for the immediate government and administration of justice within the said colony, his said late Majesty did soon after the passing of the said act transmit instructions to the said governor thereof for the time being, directing him to continue in all respects the administration of justice, and the interior government of the said colony, according to the provisions and directions, powers and authorities contained in the said in part recited letters-patent or charter of justice, as if the same were still in force; and the said governor and council, mayor's court and other courts so constituted and appointed as aforesaid, and the councillors, judges and officers thereof respectively, and other judges and officers subsequently elected and appointed pursuant to the directions of the said charter, did accordingly continue to exercise their former jurisdictions, functions and authorities, and divers proceedings as well judicial as ministerial were had by and before them, and judgments given and decrees or orders made in the said courts, and wills proved and administrations granted in the said mayor's court pursuant to the provisions of the said charter; all which acts and proceedings, subsequent to the annulling of the said letters patent or charter of justice, it was deemed expedient to ratify and confirm : And whereas it was his said late Majesty's royal will and pleasure, that for the better administration of justice within the said colony, a chief justice thereof should from time to time be appointed during pleasure, who should have such jurisdictions and authorities as are hereinafter mentioned, and who should also be judge of a court of vice-admiralty by his said late Majesty then lately constituted for the said colony, with such jurisdictions as then belonged to courts of vice-admiralty in the West India islands in general, and should be judge also of a court of prize, with such limited jurisdiction therein as his said late Majesty thought fit to grant by his prize commission in that behalf; but that in all other respects the laws and constitution of the said colony, and all the judicial and municipal authorities therein, should during his royal will and pleasure continue such as they were constituted and appointed to be by the said receited letters-patent or charter of justice, or under the authority thereof, as far as the said surrender made to his said late Majesty by the said company, and other the changes of circumstances would allow: And whereas his said late Majesty, in order to provide for the then future government of the said colony or peninsula of Sierra Leone, and all territories thereon depending in Africa, and for the administration of justice therein, did by letters-patent, under the great seal of Great Britain, bearing date at Westminster, the 9th day of August, in the forty ninth year of his reign, direct that the person appointed or to be appointed captain-general or governor-in-chief of the said colony, after the publication of the said letters-patent, should in the first place take the oaths appointed to be taken by an act passed in the first year of the reign of King George the First, intituled, "An Act for the further security of his Majesty's person and government, and the succession of the crown in the heirs of the late Princess Sophia being Protestants, and for extinguishing the hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales, and his open and secret abettors," as altered and explained by an act passed in the sixth year of his reign, intituled, "An Act for altering the oath of abjuration and the assurance, and for amending so much of an act of the seventh year of her late Majesty Queen Anne, intituled, 'an act for the improvement of the union of the two kingdoms,' as after the time therein limited requires the delivery of certain lists and copies therein mentioned to persons indicted of high treason or misprision of treason;" and should also make and subscribe the declaration mentioned in an act of parliament made in the twenty-fifth year of the reign of King Charles the second, intituled, "an act for preventing dangers which may happen from Popish recusants;" and should likewise take the oath usually taken by the governors in his Majesty's plantations, for the due execution of the office and trust of captaingeneral and governor-in-chief in and over the said colony or peninsula of Sierra Leone and the territories depending thereon, and for the due and impartial administration of justice; and further should take the oath required to be taken by governors of plantations to do their utmost that the several laws relating to trade and the plantations be duly observed; which said oaths and declarations the council of the said colony, or any two members thereof, were thereby empowered and required to tender and administer unto him, and in his absence to the lieutenant governor, if any in the place, or if none, to such person to whom the administration of the government was committed, in manner as thereinafter provided; which being performed, that the said governor should administer to the chief justice therein nominated and appointed during pleasure, and the other members of the council of the said colony, as also to the lieutenant governor, if any in the place, the oaths mentioned in the first recited act of parliament, altered as above, as also should cause them to make and subscribe the aforesaid declaration, and administer to them the several oaths for the due execution of their places and trusts; and did further give and grant unto the said governor full power and authority from time to time and at any time thereafter, by himself or by any other to be authorized by him in that behalf, to administer the oath mentioned in the said first recited act, altered as above, to all and every such person or persons as he should think fit, who should at any time pass into the said colony of Sierra Leone, or any of the factories and settlements within his government, or should be resident or abiding there; and that the said governor should have full power and authority to suspend any member of the council of the said colony from sitting, voting or assisting therein, if he should find just cause for so doing; and if there should be any lieutenant governor, him likewise to suspend from the execution of his command, and to appoint another in his stead until his said Majesty's pleasure should be known: and did further by the said letters patent ordain, will and direct, that the governor, or in his absence the lieutenant-governor commander inchief for the time being of the said colony, together with the council of the said colony, or the major part thereof, should have full power and authority to make, enact and ordain laws, statutes and or-dinances for the peace, welfare and good government of the said colony, so as such laws, statutes and ordinances were not repugnant to the laws and statutes of this realm, but as near as might be agreeable thereto: provided that all such laws, statutes and ordinances, of what nature or duration soever, were within six months or sooner after the making thereof transmitted by the governor, lieutenant-governor, or other commander in chief of the said colony for the time being, unto his said late Majesty for his approbation or disallowance of the same, as also duplicates thereof by the next conveyance; and in case all or any of the said laws, statutes or ordinancies, being not before comfirmed by his said late Majesty, should at any time be disapproved and disallowed by his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, and it should be so signified under his or their sign manual and signet, or by order of his or their privy council, unto the governor, lieutenant-governor or other commander in chief of the said colony for the time being, then that such and so many of the said laws, statutes and ordinances as should be so disapproved and disallowed, should from thenceforth cease, determine and become utterly void and of none effect, anything therein or in the said letters-patent contained to the contrary thereof notwithstanding; provided always, that nothing contained in the said letters patent should authorize or empower the said governor and council to impose any taxes or duties within the said colony, except such as might thereafter be found necessary for making roads, erecting and repairing public buildings, or other purposes of local convenience and occonomy, and for the interior welfare of the said colony: provided also, that no law, statute or ordinance, whereby any punishment might be inflicted greater than a fine or imprisonment for three months, should be of any force or effect until the same should receive his said late Majesty's approbation: and did by the said letters patent further will and establish, that all laws, statutes and ordinances which then or immediately prior to the annulling the said letters patent or charter of justice therein and hereinbefore in great part recited were in force within the said colony, whether ordained and made by the said charter, or in execution of any authority thereby granted, or otherwise howsoever, should be and continue of the same force and effect in the said colony as if the said charter had not been annulled and made void, except so far as the same related to the territorial or other rights and interests of the said Sierra Leone company, and to the government, administration, jurisdiction and authority of the said company in and over the said colony, under the said charter, until such laws, statutes and ordinances should be expressly repealed or varied by some law, statute or ordinance, to be made by the governor, lieutenant-governor or commander-in-chief for the time being of the said colony, and the council of the same, pursuant to the powers vested in them by the letters patent now in recital; and that all judgment, decrees, sentences, order, probates of wills, grants of letters of administration, and other judicial or ministerial acts and proceedings, made, passed or had subsequent to the annulling of the said charter, and before the publication of the letters patent now in recital in the said colony, should be and be deemed and taken to be of the same force and validity as if the said charter had not been annulled or repealed, but still continued in force; and did further ordain, will and direct, that the governor, or in his absence the lieutenant-governor or other commander-in-chief of the said colony for the time being, and the council of the same, should have, use, exercise and enjoy all and singular the offices, jurisdictions, powers and authorities within the said colony, which in

and by the said charter therein and herein recited were given and granted to the governor and council which the court of directors of the said Sierra Leone company were thereby empowered to constitute and appoint, save and except as was oth. wise directed or provided in and by the said letters patent now in recital. did further thereby give, grant and appoint, that there should be within the said town of Freetown a body politic and corporate, by the name and style of the mayor and aldermen of Freetown; and that such body politic and corporate should consist of a mayor and three aldermen, and should have perpetual succession, and should and might be able and capable in law to sue and be sued in any courts and causes whatsoever, and should have a common seal for the business and affairs of the said corporation, which common seal they and their successors might break and change at their pleasure; and that the persons bearing the offices of mayor and aldermen of Frectown at the time of the publication of the letters patent now in recital, by virtue of an election or appointment made under and by authority of the said annulled charter, though since the same was annulled, should be and continue respectively mayor and aldermen of Freetown, upon the conditions and under the limitations contained in the said charter; and that all the regulations and provisions contained in the said charter in respect to the annual election of the mayor and the determination of his office, and that of the aldermen, and the filling up of their places when vacant by death, absence or removal, should be observed and carried into execution in respect of the said mayor and aldermen constituted by the letters patent now in recital, as fully as if the same had been therein repeated. And did further will and ordain that the person bearing the office of sheriff at the publication of the letters patent now in recital, by virtue of any election or appointment made under and by authority of the said annulled charter, should notwithstanding retain such office until the time appointed in the said charter for the annual determination of such office, to act until the 29th day of September then next ensuing, and should then be succeeded by a new sheriff, to be elected and appointed by the governor and council of the said colony, at the time and in manner and form as directed by the said charter; and that the governor and council of the said colony should have the same powers of electing and appointing the sheriff as were in and by the said annulled charter given to the governor and council appointed by the said Sierra Leone company and its directors; and did further direct that the said sheriff so appointed or to be appointed as aforesaid should execute and perform all such or the like offices and duties, and have, possess and exercise all such or the like powers and authorities, as the sheriff appointed under the said annulled charter, while the same remained in force. And did further by the said letters patent will and appoint that the chief justice of the said colony during his continuance in the said office, and his successors the chief justices of the said colony, should be recorders of Freetown, and with the mayor and aldermen of Freetown for the time being, should be and they were thereby constituted a court of record, by the name of "the court of the recorder of Freetown," and that the said court should have, use and exercise the like jurisdictions, powers and authorities in all respects within the said colony of Sierra Leone, in like cases, and between the like persons and parties, as might have been had, used and exercised by the said mayor's court of Freetown, under and by virtue of the said therein and hereinbefore recited charter of justice, while the same remained in full force and virtue, except only where it was otherwise therein expressly declared or provided; and that the said court of the recorder of Freetown should also proceed in the same manner and form, and subject to the same rules as to trial by jury and otherwise, and to the same remedy or right of appeal, as were in the said therein and hereinbefore recited charter directed and provided in respect of the said mayor's court of Freetown, except as aforesaid; and that all rules of practice made by the said mayor's court of Freetown, and then or at the time of the annulling of the said charter remaining in force, should be observed and followed in and by the said court of the recorder or Freetown, until by the authority of that court the same should be varied or repealed: provided always, and it was thereby further ordained and directed, that the chief justice and recorder should preside in the said court, which should be held before him and the mayor and aldermen of Freetown for the time being, or three of them at least, that is to say, either the mayor and two of the said aldermen, or the three aldermen, except when such chief justice and recorder was a party to or interested in any suit, action or proceeding depending in the said court, in which case it was provided that such suit, action or proceeding should be adjudged, tried and determined by the mayor and aldermen alone, the mayor presiding; and if two or more of the said judges should be parties to or interested in any such suit, action or proceeding, then that the remaining judges of the said court should and might adjudge, try or determine the same, the senior alderman presiding when the chief justice and recorder, and mayor, should be for the reason aforesaid incompetent to sit. Provided further, that in case of the death, absence or long incapacity by sickness of the chief justice and recorder, the governor, lieutenant-governor or other commander-in-chief of the said colony for the time being, should and might appoint the most competent and proper person within the colony to act as chief justice and recorder during such absence or incapacity, or in the case of death, until a successor should be appointed by his said late Majesty, and should enter on the duties of the said office, which acting chief justice and recorder should be competent to preside in the said court, and to exercise all the jurisdictions, offices, functions and authorities of the said chief justice and recorder, until superseded by his return, or his becoming again capable, or by such new appointment as aforesaid. Provided also, that in case of any difference in opinion between the judges of the said court, touching the giving of any judgment or sentence, or the decision of any question depending before them, the majority should determine; and further, that when opinions should be equally divided, the chief justice and recorder, or the judge presiding in his stead, should have a double or casting voice. And did further direct and appoint, that from and after the publication of the said letters patent in the said colony at the period thereinalter appointed, the authority and functions of the said mayor's court of Freetown should cease and determine, to be thenceforth assumed and exercised by the said court of the recorder of Freetown; and that all actions, suits and proceedings then depending in the said mayor's court of Freetown should be respectively transferred in their then present condition to, and subsist and depend respectively, and be prosecuted, tried and determined respectively in the said court of the recorder of Freetown, just as if the same had been commenced respectively in the said last-mentioned court; and that all records, muniments and proceedings whatsoever of or belonging to the said mayor's court of Freetown, should be delivered over to and deposited with the records of the said court of the recorder of Freetown; and that from and after the same period, the said court of the recorder of Freetown should have and exercise such and the same jurisdictions, powers and authorities to grant probates of wills and letters of administration as were theretofore had and exercised by the said mayor's courts of Freetown, pursuant to the said annulled charter. And did further will and appoint, that the governor, lieutenantgovernor or other commander-in-chief, and council, for the time being of the said colony, should nominate and appoint a proper person to be accountant-general of the said court of the recorder of Freetown, who should execute and perform the same offices, trusts, matters and things as the accountant-general of the said mayor's court of Freetown was directed and empowered to execute and perform by the said annulled charter therein and hereinbefore recited, (save and except as to the direction and controul of the court of directors of the Sierra Leone company), subject to the orders of the said court of the recorder of Freetown, and to such directions in respect to the investment or security of the money belonging to suitors of the said court, and the securing and accounting for the same, as might be given from time to time by the said governor, lieutenant-governor or other commander-in-chief, and council, of the said colony for the time being, or by his said late Majesty in his privy council. And did further thereby will and establish, that the governor, lieutenantgovernor or other commander-in-chief, and council, of the said colony for the time being, should be, and they were thereby constituted a court of record to receive, hear and determine appeals from the said court of the recorder of Freetown, in the like cases, and subject to the like limitations, and rules and directions, as to their proceeding therein, and subject also to the like right of appeal from their judgment, sentence or decree to his said late Majesty in his privy council, when the debt, damages or thing or matter in dispute should exceed the value of 400l., and upon the like condition as to security to be thereupon given by the appellant, as were in and by the said annulled charter directed and provided in respect of appeals to the governor and council appointed by the said Sierra Leone company or its directors, and from them to his said late Majesty in his privy council respectively. And did further thereby ordain, will and establish, that there should be within the said town of Freetown a court, which should be called "the court of requests for the colony of Sierra Leone," and which should have and exercise such and the same jurisdiction, power and authority in all actions and suits brought before them, where the debt, duty or matter in dispute should not exceed the value of 40s., in the same way, and subject to the same rules and regulations, as were in and by the said recited letters patent or charter of justice mentioned, contained and provided in respect of the court of requests thereby constituted. And did further ordain and appoint that the governor, lieutenant-governor or commander-in-chief, and the members of the council of the said colony for the time being, should be, and the same were thereby constituted and apointed to be justices of the peace in and for the said town of Freetown, throughout the said colony of Sierra Leone and all the territories dependent thereon, with all such and the same jurisdictions, powers and authorities as lawfully could or might be exercised by justices of the peace duly constituted by his said late Majesty in that part of the United Kingdom called England, within the county, city or town corporate for which they were so constituted, so far as the laws of this realm were applicable to and in force in the said colony. And did further ordain, will and establish, that the chief justice and other members of council of the said colony for the time being (without the governor, lieutenant-governor or commander-in-chief) should and might hold quarter-sessions of the peace four times in the year within the said colony, and should from time to time and at all times thereafter be commissioners of Oyer and Terminer and gaol delivery, for the trying of all crimes and misdemeanours had, committed or done, or to be had, committed or done within the said town of Frectown or elsewhere within the said colony of Sierra Leone, or any territory dependent thereon; and that it should and might be lawful to and for the said justices of the peace and commissioners of Oyer and Terminer and gaol delivery respectively to proceed by indictment, or by such other ways and means, and in the same or like manner, as were used in that part of the United Kingdom called England, as near as the condition and circumstances of the said colony and the inhabitants thereof would admit of; and for those purposes to issue their warrants or precepts to the sheriff of the said colony for the time being, commanding him to summon a convenient number of the principal inhabitants within the said colony to serve and attend as grand and petty jurors at the said courts respectively; and that the said justices of the peace and commissioners of Oyer and Terminer and gaol delivery respectively should and might administer to such jurors the oaths usually taken in England by grand and petty jurors respectively, and also should and might administer a proper oath or affirmation to the witnessess who should be produced for or against the party accused; and that the said justices and commissioners should and might respectively proceed to the arraignment, trial, conviction and punishment of persons accused of any crimes or offences, in the same or the like manner and form, as near as the condition and circumstances of the place and inhabitants would admit of, as any justices of the peace or commissioners of Oyer and Terminer and gaol delivery usually and lawfully do within that part of the United Kingdom called England; and that the said courts might assemble and adjourn at and to such times and places as they might adjudge convenient. And did further direct and appoint, that as well the said justices of the peace and commissioners of Oyer and Terminer and gaol delivery, as the said chief justice and recorder, and other judges of the said court of the recorder of Freetown, should prior to their entering upon the execution of their said respective offices take on oath before the governor, licutenant-governor, or commander-in-chief, and council, for the time being, faithfully to execute their said respective offices, together with the oath of allegiance, which oaths the said governor, lieutenant-governor, or commander-in chief, and council, for the time being were thereby empowered to administer. And did further by the said letterspatent give and grant unto the governor of the said colony for the time being full power and authority from time to time to constitute and appoint all such officers and ministers as might be necessary in the said colony for the better administration of justice and putting the laws in execution, and for whose appointment his said late Majesty had not otherwise therein provided, and the description of the said colony for the better administration of justice and putting the laws in execution, and for whose appointment his said late Majesty had not otherwise therein provided, and to administer or cause to be administered to them the usual oath or oaths for the due execution of their respective offices. And did thereby further give and grant unto the said governor full power and authority, when he should see cause, or should judge any offender or offenders, in criminal matters, or for any fines or forfeitures due unto his said late Majesty, fit objects of his mercy, to pardon all such offenders and to remit all such offences, fines and forfeitures, (treason and wilful murder only excepted,) and that in such cases he should have power upon extraordinary occasions to grant reprieves to the offenders, until and to the intent that his said late Majesty's pleasure might be known therein. And did further authorize and empower the said governor to collate any person or persons to any churches, chapels or ecclesiastical benefices within the said colony, as often as any of them should happen to be void. And did further give and grant unto the said governor, by himself, or by his captains and commanders by him to be authorized, full power and authority to levy, arm, muster, command and employ all persons whatsoever residing within the said colony and the territories dependant thereon, and as occasion should demand to march them from one place to another, or to embark them, for the resisting and withstanding of all enemies, pirates and rebels, both at sea and land, and such enemies, pirates and rebels, if there should be occasion, to pursue and prosecute in or out of the limits of the said colony; and if it should so please God, them to vanquish, apprehend, and take, and being taken, either according to law to put to death, or to keep and preserve alive, at his discretion; and to execute martial law in time of invasion, war, or other times when by law it might be executed, and to do and execute all and every other thing and things which to the captain-general and governor-in-chief of the said colony did or of right should belong; And did further give and grant unto the said governor full power and authority, by and with the advice and consent of the said council, to erect, raise and build in the said colony of Sierra Leone, and the territories depending thereon, such and so many forts and platforms, castles, cities, boroughs, towns, and fortifications, as he by the advice aforesaid should judge necessary, and the same or any part of them to fortify and furnish with ordnance, ammunition, and all sorts of arms fit and necessary for the security and defence of the said colony, and by the advice aforesaid, the same again, or any of them, to demolish or dismantle, as might be most convenient: And forasmuch as divers mutinies and disorders might happen by persons shipped and employed at sea during the time of war, and to the end that such as should be shipped and employed at sea during the time of war might be better governed and ordered, his said late Majesty did by the said letters-patent give and grant unto the said governor of the said colony full power and authority to constitute and appoint captains, lieutenants, masters of ships, and other commanders and officers, and to grant to such captains, licutenants, masters of ships, and other commanders and officers, commissions to execute the law martial during the time of war, according to the directions of an act passed in the twenty-second year of the reign of his said late Majesty King George the Second, intituled, " An Act for amending, explaining, and reducing into one Act of Parliament the laws relating to the government of His Majesty's ships, vessels, and forces by sea," as the same is altered by an act passed in the nineteenth year of the reign of his said late Majesty King George the Third, Our royal father, intituled "An Act to explain and amend an Act made in the twenty-second year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Second, intituled 'An Act for amending, explaining, and reducing into one Act of Parliament the laws relating to the government of His Majesty's ships, vessels, and forces by sea;" and to use such proceedings, authorities, punishments, corrections upon any offender or offenders who should be mutinous, seditious, disorderly, or any way unruly, either at sea or during the time of their abode and residence in any of the ports, harbours or bays of the said colony, as the case should be found to require, according to martial law, and the said directions during the time of war as aforesaid: provided that nothing therein contained should be construed to the enabling of him or of any by his authority, to hold plea or to have any jurisdiction of any offence, cause, matter or thing committed or done upon the high sea, or within any of the havens, rivers, or creeks of the said colony and territories under his government, by any captain, lieutenant, commander, master, officer, seaman, soldier, or other person whatsoever, who should be in his said late Majesty's actual service and pay, in or on board of any ship of war or other vessel acting by immediate commission or warrant from the commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, or from the lord high admiral for the time being, under the seal of the admiralty; but that such captain, commander, lieutenant, master, officer, seaman, soldier, or other person so offending should be left to be proceeded against and tried as their offences should require, either by commission under the great seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, pursuant to the statute of the twenty-eighth of Henry the Eighth, or by commission from the said commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral for the time being, according to the afore-mentioned act, intituled "An Act for amending, explaining, and reducing into one Act of Parliament the laws relating to the government of his Majesty's ships, vessels, and forces by sea," as altered and amended by the said act passed in the nineteenth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, and not otherwise; provided nevertheless, that all offences and misdemeanors committed on shore by any captain, commander, lieutenant, master, officer, seaman, soldier, or other person whatsoever, belonging to any ship of war or other vessel acting by immediate commission or warrant from the said commissioners or lord high admiral for the time being as aforesaid, might be tried and punished according to the laws of the place where any such offences or misdemeanors should be so committed on shore, notwithstanding such offenders were in his said late Majesty's actual service, and borne in his pay on board any such ship of war or other vessels acting by immediate commission or warrant from the said commissioners or lord high admiral for the time being as aforesaid, so that such offender shall receive no protection for the avoiding of justice for such offences so committed on shore, from any pretence of his being employed in his said late Majesty's service at sea: And did further will and appoint that all public monies which should be raised by any law, statute, or ordinance to be thereafter made within the said colony, should be issued out by warrant from the said governor, by and with the advice and consent of the council of the said colony, and disposed of for the purpose directed and appointed by such law, statute, or ordinance, and not otherwise: And did further give and grant unto the said governor full power and authority, by and with the advice and consent of the said council, to settle and agree with the inhabitants of the said colony for such lands, tenements, and hereditaments as then were or thereafter should be in his said late Majesty's power to dispose of, and them to grant to any person or persons, upon such terms, and under such moderate quit-rents, services and acknowledgments to be thereupon reserved unto his said late Majesty, as he the said governor, by and with the advice aforesaid, should think fit; which said grants were directed to pass and be scaled by the seal of the said colony, and being entered upon record by such officer or officers as were or should be appointed thereunto, were declared to be good and effectual in law against his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors: Provided always, and it was thereby ordained, that no grant, lease, or demise at any time theretofore made by or under the authority of the said Sierra Leone Company, prior to the said surrender to his said late Majesty of their territorial rights and interest in the said colony and its dependencies, pursuant to the Act of Parliament aforesaid, whether the same were by deed or writing, or by parole only, should be in any manner impeached or avoided, but that the same should be and be taken to be as valid and effectual, to all intents and purposes, against his said late Majesty, his heirs, and successors, as if the said surrender pursuant to the said Act of Parliament therein and hereinbefore recited had not been made; and that all such grants, leases, and demises of lands or tenements within the said colony should be confirmed by the said governor under the seal of the said colony, if the grantees, lessees, or parties beneficially interested therein should apply for and request such confirmations: And did further give and grant unto the said governor full power and authority to order and appoint fairs, marts, and markets; and also such and so many ports, har-bours, bays, havens, and other places for the convenience and security of shipping, and for the better loading and unloading of goods and merchandize, in such and so many places as by him, by and with the advice of the said council, should be thought fit and necessary: and did further require and command all officers and ministers, civil and military, and all other inhabitants of the said colony and the territories dependent thereon, to be obedient, aiding and assisting unto the said governor, in the execution of the several powers and authorities in the said letters patent contained; and in case of his death or absence out of the said colony and the territories dependent thereon, to be obedient, aiding, and assisting unto such person as should be appointed by his said late Majesty's lieutenant governor or commander-in-chief of the said colony for the time being, to whom his said late Majesty did by the same give and grant all and singular the powers and authorities therein granted to the governor of the said colony, to be by him executed and enjoyed during pleasure, or until the arrival of the governor within the said colony; and if, upon the death or absence of the governor from the said colony and territories dependent thereon, there was no person in the place commissioned by his said Majesty to be lieutenant governor or commanderin-chief of the said colony, then that the member of council next in seniority to the chief justice for the time being (to which chief justice his said late Majesty did by the said letters-patent grant rank and precedency above and before all subjects whomsoever in the said colony, the governor, lieutenant-governor, or other commander-in-chief of the said colony for the time being only excepted; and that the said chief justice should be a member of council by virtue of his office, and preside therein in the absence of the governor or lieutenant-governor; provided always, that he should in no case succeed to the chief command of the said colony), who should be resident within the said colony, should take upon him the administration of the government of the said colony, and execute the several powers and authorities contained in the said letters patent until the return of the said governor, if absent from the said colony, or until, in case of the death of the said governor, his said late Majesty's further pleasure were known therein. And whereas, by an Act of Parliament made and passed in the first and second year of our reign, intituled, "An Act for abolishing the African Company, and transferring to and vesting in his Majesty all the Forts, Possessions, and Property now belonging to or held by them," it was, among other things, enacted, that from and after the 3rd day of July, 1821, the said corporation of the company of merchants trading to Africa should wholly cease and determine and be abolished, and the said company of merchants trading to Africa should no longer be or be deemed to be a body politic or corporate; and that all grants made to the said company by or under or in pursuance of certain therein-recited acts of parliament, or any or either of them, or in pursuance of any thing therein contained, should, and the same were thereby declared to be thenceforth null and void; and that the said company should be, and the said company were thereby divested of and from all forts, castles, buildings, possessions, or estate or rights which were given to the said company by or under or in pursuance of the said therein-recited acts, or any or either of them, or which had been since purchased or otherwise acquired by the said company in addition thereto, or which then were possessed or claimed or held by the said company on the said coast; and that the said forts, castles, buildings, possessions, estate, and rights so acquired, possessed, enjoyed or claimed, or then held by the said company, should thenceforth be, and the same and every of them were, and were thereby declared and enacted to be fully and absolutely vested in us, our heirs and successors for ever: And whereas it was further enacted in and by the said act of parliament, that from and after the passing of that act, it should and might be lawful for us to order and direct that all or any of the forts and possessions therein and hereinbefore mentioned, and also any territories, islands, or possessions on the west coast of Africa, between the twentieth degree of north latitude and the twentieth degree of south latitude, which then did or at any time thereafter should or might belong to us, should be annexed to or made dependencies on the colony of Sierra Leone; and that from the date of their being so annexed or made dependencies on the said colony, they should be subject to all such laws, statutes, and ordinances as should be in force in the said colony, or should at any time hereafter be made, enacted, or ordained by the governor and council of the said colony, and should not be disallowed by us, in the same manner as if the said forts, possessions, territories, or islands had originally formed part of the said colony of Sierra Leone: Now know ye, that we, having considered the premises, and being willing and desirous to provide for the future good government, as well of the said forts and possessions so heretofore acquired, purchased, enjoyed, claimed, or held by the said African company, as of all and every other the territories, islands, or possessions on the west coast of Africa, between the twentieth degree of north latitude and the twentieth degree of south latitude, which now do or at any time hereafter shall or may belong to us, our heirs, and successors, do by these presents, by virtue and in pursuance of the said recited act, and of our special grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, order, direct, and appoint, that all and every of the said forts and possessions so heretofore acquired, purchased, enjoyed, claimed, or held by the said African company, and also all territories, islands and possessions which now do or at any time hereafter shall or may belong to us, our heirs and successors, on the west coast of Africa, between the twentieth degree of north latitude and the twentieth degree of south latitude, shall be annexed to and made dependencies on, and the same are hereby annexed to and made dependencies on the said colony of Sierra Leone; and that from the publication of these presents in the said colony of Sierra Leone, as hereinafter directed, the same shall be and they are hereby made subject to all such laws, statutes, and ordinances as shall be in force in our said colony, or as shall at any time hereafter be made, enacted, or ordained by the governor and council of the said colony, and shall not be disallowed by us, our heirs, and successors, in the same manner as if the said forts, possessions, territories, or islands had originally formed part of the said colony of Sierra Leone: And we do further by these presents, for us, our heirs, and successors, will, establish, and ordain, that from and after the publication of these presents, there shall be nine or more councillors advising and assisting to our governor of our said colony of Sierra Leone for the time being: And we do by these presents nominate, make, ordain, and constitute our trusty and well-beloved Edward Fitzgerald, our chief justice, or our chief justice of our said colony for the time being; our trusty and well-beloved Daniel Molloy Hamilton, our advocate, or our advocate of our said colony for the time being; our trusty and well-beloved Dudley Feriday, our secretary, or our secretary of our said colony for the time being; our trusty and well-beloved Thomas Stuart Buckle, our surveyor of lands, or our surveyor of lands of our said colony for the time being; our trusty and well-beloved Kenneth Macaulay, esquire, our trusty and well-beloved Alexander Grant, esquire, our trusty and well-beloved Joseph Reffell, esquire, our trusty and well-beloved Thaddeus O'Meara, esquire, our trusty and well-beloved Andrew Nicoll, doctor of medicine, our trusty and well-beloved John Hope Smith, esquire, and our trusty and well-beloved William Dawson, esquire, thenceforth councillors of our said colony, to continue in their said office of councillors during their natural lives, unless suspended from their said office of councillors during their natural lives, unless suspended from their said office, or absent from the said colony for the space of one year without leave given them under our royal signature, or until other councillors shall be chosen and appointed by us, under our signet and sign manual, in their stead: And we do further hereby give and grant to our said governor full power and authority to suspend any of the members of our said council from sitting, voting, or assisting therein, if he shall find just cause for so doing; and if it shall at any time happen, that by the death, departure out of our said colony, or suspension of our said councillors, or otherwise, there shall be a vacancy in our said council (any five whereof we do hereby appoint to be a quorum), our will and pleasure is that our said governor do signify the same unto us by the first opportunity, that we may, under our signet and sign manual, constitute and appoint others in their stead; but, that our affairs at that distance may not suffer from want of a due number of councillors, if ever it shall happen that there be less than nine of them residing in our said colony, we do hereby give and grant unto our said governor full power and authority to choose as many persons out of the principal inhabitants thereof as shall make up the full number of our council to be nine, and no more; which persons so chosen and appointed by him shall be to all intents and purposes councillors in our said colony, until either they shall be confirmed by us, or that, by the nomination of others by us under our sign manual and signet, our said council shall have nine or more councillors in it resident in our said colony; and we do further by these presents, ordain, will, and appoint, that our governor of our said colony, or in his absence, our lieutenant-governor or commander-in-chief for the time being of our said colony together with our council of the same, or the major part thereof, shall have full power and authority to make, constitute, and ordain laws, statutes, and ordinances for the public welfare and good government of our said colony, under the like conditions, and subject to the same limitations and restrictions, as those imposed in that behalf on the governor and council of our said colony in the letters patent of his said late Majesty hereinbefore recited; but, to the end that nothing may be done or passed to the prejudice of us, our heirs, and successors, by our said council, we further ordain by these presents, that our governor of our said colony, or in his absence, our lieutenant-governor or commander-in-chief for the time being, may and shall have a negative voice in the making and passing of all laws, statutes, and ordinances as aforesaid: and we do further by these presents will, ordain, and appoint, that from and after the publication of these presents in our said colony of Sierra Leone, as hereinafter directed, our court of record in our said colony, called and known by the name of "the court of the recorder of Freetown," shall consist of our chief justice of the said colony for the time being, and two such members of the council as shall be appointed by the governor of our said colony for the time being assistant judges thereof, in lieu of the mayor and aldermen of Freetown for the time being, as ordained and appointed in and by the letters patent of his said late Majesty hereinbefore recited: and we do hereby will and ordain, that they or any two of them (whereof our said chief justice for the time being resident in Freetown to be one), shall, and the same are hereby authorized to hear and determine all civil suits, actions, and pleas between party and party that shall or may arise or happen, or that have already arisen or happened within our said colony of Sierra Leone, or any of the forts, settlements, islands, or territorics subject or subordinate thereto, except when the cause of action or suit shall not exceed the value of 40s.: provided always, and it is hereby further ordained and directed, that if such chief justice and recorder, or any of the said assistant judges, should be any ways interested in the event of any such action or suit, no such chief justice and recorder or assistant judge, shall sit or act as a judge in such suit or action, but the same shall be heard and determined by such of them as shall be no ways interested therein; and in all cases where the number of voices shall be equal in the determination of any action or suit, the chief justice, or in his absence the senior assistant judge present, shall have two voices: and we do further direct, that the said court of the recorder of Freetown hereby constituted shall proceed in the same manner and form, and subject to the same rules as to trial by jury and otherwise, and to the same remedy and right of appeal, as were in and by the said letters patent hereinbefore recited, directed, and provided in respect of the court of the recorder of Freetown, constituted by such letters patent; and that all rules of practice made by the one court, and now or at the time of the publication of these presents remaining in force, shall be observed and followed in and by the other, until by the authority of that other the same be varied or repealed: and we do further will and direct, that no action, cause, suit, or proceeding depending in the said court of the recorder of Freetown at the publication of these presents, shall be avoided, abated, discontinued, or annulled for or by reason of any change in the constitution of the said court effected by these presents, but that the same shall be respectively transferred in their then present condition to, and subsist and depend respectively, and be prosecuted, tried, and determined respectively, in the said court of the recorder of Freetown hereby constituted and established to all intents and purposes as if they had been respectively first commenced, had, bought, and prosecuted in the said last-mentioned court: and we do further will and direct, that each person so nominated or appointed one of the assistant judges of the said court of the recorder of Freetown as aforesaid, shall, prior to the entering upon the execution of his said office, take an oath before the governor, lieutenant governor, or other commander in chief for the time being, for the due discharge of the same, which oath the said governor, lieutenant-governor, or commander in chief for the time being, is hereby empowered to administer: and we do further by these presents will and establish, that our said governor, lieutenant governor, or other commander-in-chief, and council, of our said colony for the time being shall be, and they are hereby constituted a court of record to receive, hear, and determine appeals from as well the said court of the recorder of Freetown, as from any other superior court of common law now established or to be in future established in our said colony pursuant to these presents, in the like cases, and subject to the like limitations, rules, and directions as to their proceedings therein, and subject also to the like right of appeal from their judgment, sentence, or decree, to us in our privy council, when the debt, damages, or things, or matter in dispute shall exceed the value of 400l., and upon the like condition as to the security to be thereupon given by the appellant, as were in and by the said letters patent hereinbefore recited, directed, and provided in respect of appeals to the governor and council of the said colony, and from them to his said late Majesty in his privy council respectively: provided always, and it is hereby ordained, that no such member or members of our said council as shall be at that time judge or judges of the court from which such appeal shall be made, shall be entitled or permitted to vote upon such appeal; provided also, that no appeal be allowed from any sentence, order, or decree of our courts of chancery of our said colony, to us or our privy council, unless the debt, damage, or thing or matter in dispute, shall exceed the like sum or value of 400l. sterling; and that such appellant do also give good security that he will effectually prosecute such appeal, and answer the condemnation money, and pay also such costs and damages as shall be by us awarded in case such sentence, order or decree so appealed from be affirmed: provided nevertheless, and our further will and pleasure is, that when the matter in question relates to the taking or demanding of any duty payable to us, or to any fee of office or annual rent, or other such like matter or thing, where the right in future may be bound, in all such cases an appeal may be had from the judgment of our said governor and council as aforesaid, or from the sentence, order, or decree of our court of chancery of our said colony, to us in our privy conneil, though the immediate sum or value appealed for be of a less amount than 400l. sterling: and our further pleasure is, and we do hereby direct and appoint, that our said governor shall and may keep and use the public seal of our said colony of Sierra Leone for sealing all instruments whatsoever that do and ought to pass the great seal of our said colony under his said government: and whereas writs of inquiry of idiots and lunatics may and ought to issue out of our court of chancery in our said colony, and be returnable in our said court, and great trouble and charges may arise if occasion be to resort unto us, our heirs and successors, for directions respecting such idiots and lunatics, and their estates, we do by these presents give and grant unto our said governor full power and authority to give orders and warrants from time to time for preparing grants of the custodies of such idiots and lunatics and their estates, as are or shall be found by inquisition thereof, taken or to be taken, and returned or to be returned into our said court of chancery of our said colony, and thereupon to make and pass grants and commitments under our great seal of our said colony, of the custodies of all and every such idiots and lunatics and their estates, to such person or persons, suitors in that behalf as according to the rules of law, and the use and practice in those and the like cases, he shall judge meet for that trust; the said grants and commitments to be made in such manner and form, or as nearly as may be, as bath heretofore been used and accustomed in making the same under the great scal of this kingdom, and to contain such and the like apt and convenient covenants, conditions, and agreements on the part of the committees and grantees to be performed, and such security to be by them given, as shall be requisite and needful : and we do further by these presents order, direct, and establish, that from and after the expiration of three months from the publication of these presents hereinafter directed, the authority of the court of requests for the colony of Sierra Leone, for the recovery of small debts within the said colony, as constituted by the letters patent of his said late Majesty hereinbefore recited, shall cease and be abolished: and we do by these presents authorize and require our said governor, by and with the advice and concurrence of our said council, prior to the expiration thereof to nominate and appoint certain justices or others commissioners in and for particular districts, upon whom the authority of the said court thenceforward to cease and be abolished in and throughout the said colony as aforesaid may regularly devolve; and that the said justices or other commissioners may and shall proceed to the hearing and determining of all matters of debt or damage under 40s, value, in the same or the like manner and form, as near as circumstances will admit of, as any commissioners of requests usually and lawfully do within that part of our united kingdom called England; and that such commissioners shall assemble at such times and places as our said governor, with the advice and concurrence of our council as aforesaid, shall from time to time appoint: and we do further hereby direct and establish, that from and after the publication of these presents, our governor, lieutenant-governor, or commander-in-chief for the time being of our said colony, shall and may do, execute, and perform all that is necessary for the granting of licences for marriages, as also for the probate of wills and granting of administrations for, touching or concerning any interest or estate which any person or persons shall have within our said colony or its dependencies, in such or the like manner and form as our governors, lieutenant-governors, or other commanders-in-chief of our provinces in America, are used and authorized to do, execute, and perform the same:

And our further will and pleasure is, that from thenceforth such jurisdictions, powers, and authorities as were given to the court of the recorder of Freetown aforesaid, and to the said mayor of Freetown, in and by the said letters patent hereinbefore recited, in respect to grants of probates of wills and letters of administration, shall cease and determine; but we do nevertheless will and ordain, that no probates issued or letters of administration granted in the said court pursuant to the provisions of the said letters patent, prior to the publication of these presents, shall be impeached or avoided by the cessation of the authority and functions of the said court in the premises, but that the same shall, and the same are hereby ordained to remain in as full force and effect as if the said court still possessed the powers and authorities to grant probates of wills and letters of administration conferred upon it by the said letters patent: And we do further by these presents give and grant unto our said governor full power and authority, with the advice and consent of our said council, to erect and constitute judicatories and courts of record, or other courts, to be held of us, our heirs and successors, for the hearing and determining all and all manner of causes, as well criminal as civil, arising or happening within our said colony, or between persons inhabiting or residing there: as also to issue from time to time special commissions of over and terminer and gaol delivery, limited to the districts and crimes or misdemeanors specified in such commissions, and for the awarding and making out execution thereupon; to which courts and judicatories we do hereby give and grant full power and authority from time to time to administer oaths for the better discovery of truth in any matter in controversy or descending before them, together with all other reasonable and necessary powers, authorities, fees, and privileges belonging thereto: And we do hereby further give and grant unto our said governor full power and authority to constitute and appoint judges, and in cases requisite, commissioners of oyer and terminer, justices of the peace, and other necessary officers and ministers in and through our said colony, for the better administration of justice and putting the laws in execution, and to administer or cause to be administered to them their several and respective oaths for the due and faithful performance of their duties in their several and respective offices, before undertaking the execution of the same; provided nevertheless, and be it further ordained, that no election or appointment of any sheriff or other officer or minister, pursuant to these presents, shall or shall be deemed or construed to alter or abridge the power and right of the sheriff of our said colony, appointed pursuant to the letters patent bereinbefore recited, to summon juries, or to execute and make return of all processes and the like, of the said court of the recorder of Freetown, or of any other courts erected or to be erected within that tract or district known by the name of the peninsula of Sierra Leone, bounded as aforesaid: And in case of the death, absence, or removal of our lieutenant-governor of our said colony, we do further by these presents authorize and empower our governor of our said colony, being at the time of such appointment personally resident within our said colony, to nominate and appoint any person resident within our said colony, whom he shall judge the most proper and fitting, to be our heutenant-governor thereof, until our pleasure thereupon shall be known; provided it shall appear to our said governor that the administration of the government of our said colony, by the member of our said council next in seniority to the chief justice thereof for the time being, may not tend to the good of our service and the welfare of our said colony: And we do further ordain, will, and establish, that within thirty days after these presents shall arrive within our said colony of Sierra Leone, our governor, lieutenant-governor, or other commander-in chief of our said colony for the time being shall cause these our letters patent to be published and proclaimed, and the contents thereof to be publicly known within the said colony, and that from and immediately after such publication the same shall be in full force and effect within our said colony: provided always, and we do hereby reserve unto ourself, our heirs and successors, full power and authority to revoke, vary, alter, annul, and make void these presents, and every or any clause, matter, or thing herein contained, and to make such new, other, or further ordinances and appointments for the government of our said colony, and for the administration of justice within the same, as to us, our heirs and successors, in that behalf shall seem meet; And we do lastly by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, direct and appoint that our governor of our said colony of Sierra Leone, and his successors the governors thereof, during our royal will and pleasure, may and shall have and exercise the several powers and authorities given and granted to them by these presents, together with and superadded to the several powers and authorities conferred on the governor of the said colony by the letters patent of his late Majesty King George the Third, our dearest father, hereinbefore recited; and that the constitution and laws of our said colony of Sierra Leone, and all judicial and municipal authorities therein, shall for the present and during our royal will and pleasure, continue such as they were constituted and appointed to be by the said letters patent of his said late Majesty, or under the authority thereof, so far as the possessions heretofore held by the African company, and also the territories belonging to us, our heirs and successors, on the west coast of Africa, between the twentieth degree of north latitude and the twentieth degree of South latitude. being annexed by these presents to our said colony of Sierra Leone, and other changes of circumstanes within our said colony, whether consequent upon the same or howsoever accruing, will permit, and save also and except as the same are altered by these presents. In witness, &c., witness, &c., the 17th day of October.

shall henceforth be called and bear the title of assistant-judge of the said court: And it is further ordered, that his Majesty's court in the said island, called the Tribunal de Premiere Instance, shall henceforth he holden by and before, and shall consist of one judge, to be called the president of the said tribunal, and one other judge, to be called a judge suppleant: and it is further ordered, that in case any judge of either of the said courts should, by reason of any such lawful recusation as hereinafter mentioned, or by sickness, absence, suspension, or any other cause, be unable to perform the duties of such his office, it shall be lawful for the governor of the said colony to complete the number of judges of such court, by appointing, in his Majesty's name and on his behalf, some proper person to act as and be a judge of such court during such vacancy, or until his Majesty's pleasure shall be known: and it is hereby further ordered, that if in any criminal case the law which is now or hereafter shall be in force within the said island and its dependencies, shall: require the presence in either of the said tribunals of a greater number of judges than are herein-before mentioned, then and in every such case it shall be lawful for the governor of the said colony, in his Majesty's name and on his behalf, to appoint such an additional number of judges for any such special occasion as may be necessary to complete the whole number of judges or required by law; but all appointments which may be so made shall endure so long only as may be necessary to provide for any such emergency, and shall be renewed from time to time as occasion may require: and whereas on the 17th day of February, 1830, the governor of the said island of Mauritius, with the advice of the council of government thereof, made an ordinance, bearing date on the day and year last aforesaid, intituled "an ordinance for the establishing of a court composed of his excellency, to judge certain prises a partie the recusatio et recusations," directed against the court of appeal "in this colony:" now, it is further ordered that the said ordinance shall be, and the same is hereby confirmed and allowed, and that any recusation which may hereafter be made of any judge of either of the said tribunals, shall be heard, tried, adjudged, and determined in the manner provided by the said ordinance, and not otherwise: and it is hereby further ordered, that all and every the powers, authorities, and jurisdictions heretofore vested in the judges of the said tribunals respectively, or in a majority of them, shall continue and be vested in the judges hereinbefore mentioned or in the majority of them; provided nevertheless, and it is further ordered, that in all cases in which the court of vice-admiralty of the said colony hath jurisdiction, whether by virtue of any act of parliament or by virtue of the commission of the judge of the said court, such jurisdiction shall be exclusive, and that it shall not be competent for the said court or the said court, such jurisdiction shall be exclusive, any act of parliament or by virtue of the commission of the judge of the said court, such jurisdiction shall be exclusive, and that it shall not be competent for the said cour d'appel or for the said tribunal de premiere instance to hear, decide, or take cognizance of any such case; and that if, in any suit or action or other proceeding depending in the said cour d'appel or in the said tribunal de premiere instance, it shall be made to appear that the question arising in any such action, suit, or proceeding is within the jurisdiction or competency of the said court of vice-admiralty, then and in every such case the said tribunal de premiere instance or the said cour d'appel, as the case may be, shall declare itself incorpetent: and it is further ordered that the office of grand judge, commissaire de justice of the said island of Mauritins, is and shall be abolished: and it is further ordered, that in all civil cases depending before the said cour d'appel or the said tribunal de premiere instance, the procureur general of the said island, or his substitutes, are and shall be relieved from the duty heretofore incumbent on them of making their conclusions for the assistance of the said tribunals: and it is further ordered no judge of the said cour d'appel, nor the judge of the said tribunal de premiere instance, nor the suppleant of the said tribunal, nor the procureur-general of the said island, nor the advocate-general thereof, nor the judge of the court of vice-admiralty, nor any surrogate of such judge, shall be the owner of any slave, nor be the proprietor of nor have any share or interest in any land cultivated by the labour of slaves, either directly or by any person or persons as a trustee or trustees for him; and each of the said several officers is hereby declared incompetent to be or prietor of nor have any share or interest in any land cultivated by the labour of slaves, either directly or by any person or persons as a trustee or trustees for him; and each of the said several officers is hereby declared incompetent to be or act as the manager, over-eer, agent, or attorney of, for, or upon any plantation or estate within the said island or its dependencies: provided nevertheless, that nothing herein contained shall prevent any such officer as aforesaid from hiring for and employing in the domestic service of himself, or any members of his family, any number of slaves, if it shall be first made to appear by such officer, to the satisfaction of the governor of the said island, that it is not in his power to hir free persons to perform such domestic services; and it is further ordered, that there shall be in the town of Port Louis in the said island, a petiteourt, to be holden by a single judge, to be called the juge de paix of the said town, for the decision of all civil causes of small amount arising within the said island, and for the trial of all crimes and offences of a low degree committed therein, and that from the judgments, sentences, and orders of the said petit court, no appeal shall lie to any other tribunal or judge in the said island or elsewhere; and that there shall also be in any one or more of the dependencies of the Mauritius. Which the governor of the said island, with the advice of the and offences of a low degree committed therein, and that from the judgments, sentences, and orders of the said petit court, no appeal shall lie to any other tribunal or judge in the said island or claswhere: and that there shall also be in any one or more of the dependencies of the Mauritius, which the governor of the said island, with the advice of the council of government thereof, may select a petit court, to be holden in like manner by a single judge, to be called the council of government thereof, may select a petit court, to be holden in like manner by a single judge, to be called the council of government of the council of covernment of the said island, shall, by any ordinances to be from time for that purpose made, define, and limit the extent of the jurisdiction, both civil and criminal, of any such petit court, and fix and regulate the forms of proceeding, the rules of practice, and the nature of the process to be observed therein respectively: and it is hereby further ordered, that it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons, being a party or parties to any civil sait or action depending in the said cour d'appel of the said island of Mauritius, to appeal to his Majety in council, his heirs and successors, or his or their privy council, against any final judgment, sentence, or decree of the said court, or against any rule or order made in any such civil suit or action having the effect of a final ordefinitive sentence, and which appeals shall be made subject to the rules, regulations, and limitations following; that is to say, in case any such judgment, decree, order, or sentence shall be given or pronounced for or in respect of any sum or matter at issue above the amount or value of 1,0004, sterling, or in case tanch judgment, decree, order, or sentence shall involve, directly or indirectly, any claim, demand, or question to or respecting property, or any civil right, amounting to the value of 1,0004, sterling, or in case the same shall effect the right or alleged right of any person or pers within three months from the date of such petition for leave to appeal, then, and not otherwise, the said cour d'appel shall allow the appeal, and the party or parties appellant shall be at liberty to prefer and prosecute his, her, or their appeal to his Majesty, his heirs, and successors, in his or their privy council, in such manner and under such rules as are observed in appeals made to his Majesty in council from his plantations and colonies: provided nevertheless, and it is further declared and ordered, that nothing herein contained shall extend or be construed to extend to take away, diminish, or derogate from the undoubted power and authority of his Majesty, his heirs, and successors, in his or their privy council, and upon the humble petition at any time of any person or persons aggrieved by any judgment or determination of the said cour d'appel, to admit his, her, or their appeal therefrom upon such other terms, and upon and subject to such other limitatious, restrictions, and regulations, as his Majesty, his heirs, and successors, shall in any such special case think fit to prescribe: and it is further ordered, that in all cases of appeal allowed by the said cour such special care think fit to prescribe: and it is further ordered, that in all cases of appeal allowed by the said court drappel, or by his Majesty, his heirs, and successors, the said court shall certify and transmit to his Majesty, his heirs, and successors, in his or their privy council, a true and exact copy of all proceedings, judgments, decrees, and orders had or made, and of all evidence received or given in such causes so appealed, so far as the same have relation to the matter of appeal; such copies to be certified under the seal of the said court: and it is further ordered that the said court d'appel shall in all cases of appeal to his Majesty, his heirs, and successors, conform to and execute auch judgments and orders as his Majesty, his heirs, and successors shall think fit to make therein, in such and the same manner as any judgment, decree, or order of the said cour d'appel could or might have been executed. And the Right Honourable the Lord Viscount Goderich, one of his Majesty's principal secretaries of state, is to give the necessary directions herein accordingly. accordingly.

APPENDIX VII.—EUROPE.

A .- CONSTITUTIONAL CHART OF THE UNITED STATES OF THE IONIAN ISLANDS.

Chapter I .- General Organization.

Article 1. The United States of the Ionian Islands are composed of Corfu, Cephalonia, Zante, Santa Maura, Ithaca, Cerigo, and Paxo, and the other smaller islands situated along the ceast of Albania and the Morea, which formerly belonged to the Venetian dominions.

2. The seat of the general government of the United States of the Ionian Islands is declared to be permanently fixed in the capital of the Island of Corfu.

3. The established religion of these States is the orthodox Greek religion; but all other forms of the Christian religion shall be protected as hereinafter stated.

4. The established language of these States is the Greek, and in consequence it is hereby declared to be an article of primary importance, that the language of the nation should become, as soon as possible, that in which all the records of government should be held, all process of law alone conducted, and, in fact, the sole recognised language for official proceedings within these States.

proceedings within these States.

5. It being impossible, however, from the circumstances of the case, to carry the above principle into immediate effect, the whole business of the country having been hitherto conducted principally in the Italian language, it is ordained, that during the first parliament the Italian shall be the language in which all public business is to be conducted, save and except in the instances of the minor courts of law, where it may be judged expedient by the government to introduce the native language, with a view to its encouragement and general propagation.

6. With a further view at once to encourage the propagation of the languages of the protecting and protected States, his highness the president of the senate shall be bound, within six days after the first meeting of parliament, to send down to the legislative assembly a projet of a law, to be therein discussed, relative to how far it may be possible to extend the native language to other departments, or to the whole of the government; and it is to be clearly understood, that whenever a law is passed, declaring the Greek language to be the sol official language, that the only other language that can be made use of in copies or otherwise, is that of the protecting power, viz. the English.

7. The civil government in these States shall be composed of a legislative assembly, of a senate, and of a judicial authority.

The military command in these States being placed, by the treaty of Paris, in the hands of his Majesty's commander-in-chief, it remains with him.

9. The legislative assembly shall be elected, in manner and form hereinafter laid down, from the body of the noble electors.

10. The senators shall be elected out of the body of the legislative assembly, in manner and form as may hereinafter

11. The judicial authority shall be selected by the senate, in manner and form as shall hereinafter be directed.

12. These elections, and all other civil appointments, shall be valid for the period of five years, except as may be

12. These elections, and all other civil appointments, shall be valid for the period of nive years, except as may be hereinafter provided for.

13. At the expiration of five years all appointments of right fall to the ground, and the new election of the new legislative assembly shall take place on the day of the expiration of the term of five years; but his highness the president of the senate and the senators, the regents of the local governments, the judges, together with all the ministerial officers in the various departments, shall continue to exercise their duties; the first, till replaced by the new senate and president; the second, till relieved by the new regents; the judges and ministerial officers, till removed or re-appointed by the new regents. by the proper authority.

14. When the legislative assembly holds a session at the seat of government, the civil authority shall be termed the Parliament of the United States of the Ionian Islands; and such session, being the first, shall be termed the first session of the first parliament.

- 15. The second parliament and the subsequent sessions shall be styled numerically in the same manner.
  16. All acts of the legislative assembly, of the senate, and generally of all the departments of government, shall be registered according to the parliament and session in which they may have been enacted, or otherwise carried into effect
- 17. During the first parliament an annual session shall take place, of right, the first day of every March, and shall continue in activity for three months; but such session may be prolonged beyond the said three months in the event of necessity, for a period to be declared by the senate and approved of by his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign.

- 18. In every subsequent parliament a session shall take place, of right, on the first day of March in every two years, and shall continue in activity for the same period as stated in the preceding article.

  19. The power of essembling and proroguing parliament on an emergency shall be vested in his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign; but parliament cannot be prorogued for a longer space than six months.

  20. The power of dissolving parliament, on any special emergency, shall be solely vested in his Majesty by an order in council.
- 21. On parliament being prorogued, the session of the legislative assembly forthwith ceases for the period of prorogation; and all bills and acts of every kind, not completely carried through parliament, shall fall to the ground.

  22. When the parliament is dissolved, all bills and acts of every kind, not completely carried through, fall equally to the ground.

23. The public instruction of youth being one of the most important points connected with the prosperity and happiness of any state, and it being of the utmost importance, both to the morals and religion of the country, that its pastors in particular should receive a liberal and adequate education, it is hereby declared to be a primary duty immediately after the meeting of parliament, subsequent to the ratification of this constitutional chart by his Majesty the protecting sovereign, that measures should be adopted by the parliament for the institution in the first place of primary schools, and subsequently for the establishment of a college for the different branches of science, of literature, and of the fine arts.

The senate shall possess the authority of proposing any law to the consideration of the legislative assembly, and such law, so transmitted by the senate, shall be received and taken into consideration accordingly, within the period hereinafter stated; and any law sent down by the senate to be considered by the legislative assembly, if agreed to in that assembly a majority of votes, shall be considered as a law, if it meets with the approbation hereinafter stated on the part of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, or is not subsequently cancelled by an order of his Malesty in council. jesty in council.
- Jesty in council.

  15. The senate shall possess the power, after a bill has passed the legislative assembly, of putting a direct negative on the said bill, stating its reasons for so doing, and transmitting them within three days to the legislative assembly; when such act, so passed, shall fall to the ground, nor can it be again introduced in the same session.

  16. During the recess of parliament the senate shall possess the power of making regulations, having, pro tempore, the force of laws; but no such regulations shall be valid without the approbation of his excellency the lord high commisoner; and all such temporary regulations shall be submitted, the first day of the ensuing session, to the legislative assembly for its consideration. If approved of in that assembly, they shall be considered as the law from the date of their proclamation; if disapproved of, in manner and form as hereinafter stated, they shall fall to the ground: but the acts done under them, in the intervening space, between the time when they were originally issued by the senate and the disapproval of the legislative assembly, shall be held valid.

  17. The senate shall possess the power of establishing rules and regulations for the guidance of its own proceedings, provided such rules and regulations meet with the sanction of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, and do not interfere with the provisions of the constitutional chart, or with the established law of the land.

CHAPTER III .- Of the Legislative Assembly.

Section I .- General.

Article 1.—The legislative assembly of the United States of the Ionian islands shall consist of forty members, including the president.

2. The most illustrious the president of the legislative assembly shall enjoy the honours of a senator: the style and title of the members shall be "most noble." (Nabilissimi.)

tion II. - Mode of Election

Article 1. On the meeting of a new parliament, the president of the primary council shall be president of the legislative assembly, till the new senate is formed, and till the future president of the legislative assembly be elected.

2. This election shall take place the day after that of the senators is completed, and the rules laid down in chapter 2.

section 2, relative to the election of senators, shall in all instances apply to the election of the president.

3. The most noble the forty members of the legislative assembly shall be composed of eleven integral members, and

The most noble the forty members of the legislative assembly shall be composed of eleven integral members, and twenty-nine to be elected.
 The eleven integral members shall, in the instance of parliament dying a natural death (that is, in all usual cases where it runs its full term of five year-) consist of the president and members of the old senate, of the four regents of the great islands during the late parliament, and of one of the regents of the smaller islands, taken in the following rotation, viz. Ithaca, Cerigo, Paxo.

5. In the instance of a dissolution of parliament, the primary council shall uniformly consist of the president and members of the old senate, and five of the late legislative assembly, to be named by his exceilency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, within three days of the period when the dissolution of the parliament takes place.

6. The most noble the twenty-nine members to be elected shall be furnished from the various islands in the following proportions, viz.—Corfu 7: Cephalonia 7; Zante 7: Santa Maura 4: Ithica 1: Cerigo 1; Pavo 1. But each of the three last, in the rotation in which they stand (exclusive of that island whose regent becomes an integral member of the legislative assembly), shall elect a second.

The most noble the members of the legislative assemby to be elected by the various islands, shall be elected out of

7. The most noble the members of the legislative assemby to be elected by the various islands, shall be elected out of the body of the synclitze of the island to which such election may belong.

8. The election by the synclitze shall be made on a double list, formed and transmitted to them to vote on in manner following:—This double list shall be made by the members of the new primary council, and in the instance of parliament dying a natural death, with a view to prevent any possibility of delay some of the members of the new primary council, viz. the five regents being absent from the seat of government, its functions upon this head shall commence six months antecedent to the death of the parliament, in order that the most illustrious regents of the different islands may have full time to correspond with the senate on the subject; and the mode of selecting the names for such double list shall be by a majority of votes of the new primary council.

9. On the double list being completed, the president of the council shall transmit a copy of the said lists, signed by himself, to the most illustrious the regents of the different islands, so as to arrive at the island to which they may belong, at least fourteen days antecedent to the death of parliament, and upon these lists the regent of the island shall proceed.

10. Whereas in article 13, chapter 1, provision is made for the time of the new elections taking place upon the natural death of parliament, but no provision is made relative to the time of election on the dissolution of parliament: on any such emergency, the new elections shall take place the fortieth day after the proclamation for the said dissolution, and the new primary council shall send down, within six days after such dissolution, the said double lists to the regents of the different islands to proceed upon.

11. Notwithstanding a fixed day is appointed, whether in the instance of the death of dissolution of parliament, for the

11. Notwithstanding a fixed day is appointed, whether in the instance of the death or dissolution of parliament, for the new elections to take place, yet as it may be impossible, from the divided situations of the States, to foresee the accidents that may prevent the arrival of the mandate of the president of the primary council, inclusing the double lists, within the period stated in the antecedent articles, it is to be understood, that, in the event of such accident occurring, the elections in the said island or islands shall take place within five days after the mandate of the president of the primary council arrives, and that all such elections shall be held legal and valid, as if they had been made on the days stated in the foregoing clauses upon that head.

13. Whether the parliament dies a natural death or be dissolved, in either instance the new legislative assembly shall meet at the seat of government within twenty days after the day of its election, and as much sooner as circumstances will admit, which will be signified by mandate from his highness the president of the senate of the United States of the Ionian islands, communicated at the time, he, in his quality of pre-ident of the prinary council, transmits the double lists.

13. Whereas in chapter 2, section 2, article 2, provision is made, that the senators shall be elected out of the body of the legislative assembly, and whereas such election vacates the seats of the members chosen in the legislative assembly; whereas also the appointment of regent vacates the seat of any legislature; and whereas death or resignation, from a variety of circumstances, may also occasion a vacancy or vacancies in the legislature is and whereas death or resignation, from a variety of circumstances, may also occasion a vacancy or vacancies in the legislature body; in all and every such instance, the president of the primary council shall, in manner before hair down, within six days of such vacancy or vacancies occurring, issue a mandate to the regent of the shand to which such vacancy belongs, together with a double list, directing bim to call an extraordinary meeting of the synclite to fill up the vacancy in the legislative assembly, and such meeting shall be called within six days after the receipt of such mandate.

14. Whereas in the antecedent article, the offices and circumstances are generally detailed which may cause a vacancy in the legislative assembly, and whereas such vacancy, if it happens to a member thereof, will also create one in the primary on the legislative assembly, and whereas such vacancy, if it happens to a member thereof, will also create one in the primary in the legislative assembly, and whereas such vacancy, if it happens to a member thereof, will also create one in the primary council: upon all and every such occasion his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign shall within three days of such vacancy, nominate another member or members of the legislative assembly as member of the primary

15. Although, from the moment of the meeting of the legislative assembly, there is no distinction in the primary council.

15. Although, from the moment of the meeting of the legislative assembly, there is no distinction in the powers and authority of the integral members thereof, and these elected by the different islands, yet the power of issuing mandates in all cases that may occur hereafter of vacancies of every kind though not hereinbefore mentioned) in the legislative body, and of making the double lists for the elections, shall be exclusively, and in every instance, vested in the eleven integral members, being the primary council, through the medium of their president.

16. On all occasions of importance or emergency in which the legislative assembly may wish to hold personal conference with the senate, or with his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, or rice rersa, the committee of the said legislative assembly for conducting such conference, shall uniformly consist of the said primary council.

17.   13. His highness the president of the senate cannot in any way be suspended from office during the period he remains in that high situation.
- 14. His highness the president of the senate may be impeached for any malversation in office, within six months after he shall have retired from the same; provided always, that the legislative assembly shall, by a vote of at least twenty-six of its members, concur in the propriety of the measure, and that the senate, and his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, shall also agree to the same.

  15. The sentence of the supreme council of justice, in regard to the trial before it, on the impeachment of his highness the president of the senate, shall not be carried into effect until it shall have received the approval of his Majesty
- the protecting sovereign.
- 16. All public functionaries, suspended or virtually dismissed for malversation of office, are liable to be brought before the supreme council of justice, by any of the authorities who directed the said suspension or virtual dismissal, to be tried by the said supreme council of justice on such charges, state crime or crimes, as may be deemed necessary; and on the conviction of the public functionary, the dismissal from office is in no instance to be considered as any grounds for mitigation of punishment.
- 17. A specific law hereafter shall be framed, defining the state crimes and malversation of office, together with the punishment to be attached to the same, and also the mode of preferring accusations in regard to them. But no suspension or virtual dismissal can take place, no impeachment can lay or trial be held before the supreme council of justice, except individually; and no body of public functionaries, as a body, can be either anspended, virtually dismissed. impeached, or tried.

18. The power of dismissal from office of any public functionary is reserved to his Majesty the protecting sovereign, save and except in the instance of his highness the president of the senate, the members thereof, and the members of the legislative assembly; but the pleasure of his Majesty must be declared, by warrant under the signature of his Majesty's secretary of state.

19. The power of respiting the sentence, in the instance of state delinquencies, shall be vested in his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign; but the power of pardon, in regard to the same, shall alone be vested in his Majesty the protecting sovereign.

Section II.-Military Establishment.

Article 1. The military defence of the United States of the Ionian Islands being placed in the hands of the protecting sovereign, the sole regular military establishment shall consist of the forces of his Majesty.

2. Independent of the regular troops of his Majesty the protecting sovereign, there shall be established in each island a corps of militia.

- 3. The organization of the militia of the United States of the Ioniau Islands shall be left to the commander in chief of the forces of the protecting sovereign within the same, subject to the approbation of the senate and of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign. 4. The general charge of preserving the tranquillity of the country, being immediately and directly connected with the military establishment, the high police of the United States of the Ionian Islands shall be placed under the direct management of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, and his Majesty's commander in
- 5. No officer can be appointed to any corps of the militia of the Ionian Islands who is not a native-born subject of the
- 6. His Majesty the protecting sovereign shall appoint inspectors and sub-inspectors of the militia of the Ionian States, who shall be either British or Ionian officers.
   7. The corps of the militia of each island shall be placed under the controll of the inspectors or sub-inspectors of the militia appointed by his Majesty the protecting sovereign.

8. The regular forces of his Majesty the protecting sovereign shall, in all instances of civil suit, be amenable to the laws of the land within the United States of the Ionian Islands.

- The regular forces of the protecting sovereign in these states shall, in respect to criminal jurisdiction, be alone subject to the martial law of his Majesty.
   The militia within these states is, of course, subject to the laws of the land; but when it shall have been duly organized and called out, it shall be amenable to the martial law of the protecting power, and liable, by it alone, to b tried for criminal offences.
- 11. The regular established number of his Majesty's troops for the garrison of these islands shall be considered as consisting of three thousand men; but it shall be competent to increase or diminish that number, as his Majesty's commander in chief may deem fitting.
- 12. All expense of quartering the regular forces of his Majesty the protecting sovereign, and, generally speaking, all military expense of every kind to be incurred by these States (as far as relates to the three thousand men above named). shall be paid out of the general treasury of the same.

Section III.—Treasury and Finance.

Article 1. At the head of the general treasury of the United States of the Ionian Islands there shall be a treasurer, and the said treasurer shall be either a natural born British or Ionian subject; and his style and title shall be "general treasurer."

2. The nomination and appointment of the general treasurer of the United States of the Ionian Islands is left to his

2. The nomination and appointment of the general treasurer of the United States of the Ionian Islands is left to his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign; and under the said treasurer the local treasurers in the various islands shall be directly placed.

3. The general treasurer of the United States of the Ionian Islands shall be responsible for the whole receipt and expenditure of the said United States, and shall transmit an accurate monthly statement of the said receipt and expenditure to the senate and to his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign.

4. The finance year in the United States of the Ionian Islands shall commence the 1st day of February, and end the last day of January; and the general treasurer shall submit to the legislative assembly, within three days after the meeting of parliament, a full and detailed statement of the whole receipt and expenditure for the past year.

5. The general treasurer shall not possess the power of disbursing from the public treasury the smallest sum, without the previous sanction in writing, of the Senate and his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, except for payment of the civil list, sanctioned by the legislative assembly, and already provided for in Chapter 3, Section 3, Article 33.

6. The general constitutional rule to be observed (although it may not be possible to adhere strictly to the same), in Article 33.

6. The general constitutional rule to be observed (although it may not be possible to adhere strictly to the same), in case of extra expense in the several islands, shall be, that each island has a right to incur extra expenditure in proportion to the surplus of revenue paid in by it to the general treasury, after the expense of the civil list for such island is defrayed; but the amount of such extra expenditure shall be settled by the Senate and his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, with reference to the repairs of works, and other necessary general military purposes.

7. The general treasurer, in submitting the annual accounts of expenditure to the legislative assembly, shall divide them into two heads, viz.; ordinary and extraordinary; and the legislative assembly shall have the power of approving or disapproving, as far as regards the accuracy of the accounts thus laid before them.

8. The collection of the revenue in the different islands, in all its branches, shall be regulated by the Senate, with the approbation of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, and all persons employed in the collection of the said revenue, must be approved of by them.

9. The regulating the mode of farming and managing the revenue of these States, shall rest with the Senate, subject to the approbation of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign.

10. All additions, alterations, or amendments in the present system of taxation shall only be made by a bill presented in the due forms to the legislative assembly.

10. All additions, aircrations, or amendments in the present system of taxation shall only be made by a bill presented in the due forms to the legislative assembly.

11. It being of the utmost importance that the various duties and taxes in the different islands should be, as far as is compatible with the difference of local circumstances, equalized and put on a similar and proportional footing, it is declared to be an article of the first importance, to adopt legislative measures on this head.

12. The equalization of weights and measures, and the establishment of a national currency, being in like manner considerations of the first importance for any State, similar measures shall be adopted on this head.

Section IV .- Of Foreign Relations.

- 1. Whereas in the latter part of the seventh article of the treaty of Paris, it is agreed, that no person from any power whatsoever shall be admitted within these States, possessing, or pretending to possess, any powers beyond those which are defined in the aforesaid article, it is hereby declared, that any person who shall assume to himself any authority as an agent for a foreign power, except as therein directed, shall be amenable to be tried before the supreme council of justice, and be liable, if found guilty, to punishment, as in cases of high treason against the State.

  2. No native or subject of the United States of the Ionian Islands shall be held competent to act as consul or vice-consul for any foreign power within the same.

  3. The British consuls, in all ports whatsoever, shall be considered to be the consuls and vice consuls of the United States of the Ionian Islands, and the subjects of the same shall be entitled to their fullest protection.

4. All applications necessary to be made by these States to any foreign power, shall be transmitted by the Senate to his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, who shall forward the same to the ambassador or minister of the protecting sovereign resident at the court of the said foreign power, for the purpose of submitting them in due form to the said power.

5. The approval of the appointments of all foreign agents or consuls in the United States of the Ionian Islands shall be by the Senate, through the medium of his highness the president thereof, with the concurrence of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign.

6. With a view to ensure the most perfect protection to the commerce of these islands, every vessel, navigating under the Ionian flag, shall be bound, before leaving the port of the Ionian States to which she belongs, to provide herself with a pass, signed by his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, and no vessel sailing without such pass, shall be considered as navigating according to law. But it is reserved to his majesty the protecting sovereign to decide how far it may be necessary, that, independent of such pass, they should further be bound to supply themselves with Mediterranean passes. Mediterranean passes.

Section V .- Of the Sanita.

Article 1. Whereas the protecting and protected State have an equal right and interest in the great object of the preservation of the public health, it is hereby declared, the controll of the Sanita throughout the United States of the Ionian Islands shall be vested in the hands of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, who shall regulate, according to the rules of Sanita, the relative quarantines to be performed in all instances, giving due notice of the same; shall fix the number of officers to be employed, and name in each island the heads of the office of Sanita, being either British or Ionian subjects but all other appointments made upon this head shall be subject to the approbation of the senate, and, as far as relates to numbers and amount of salary, to the consideration of the legislative assembly, as hereinbefore stated in regard to the civil list.

2. The post-office in each island shall hereafter be considered as an integral part of the Sanita

2. The post-office in each island shall hereafter be considered as an integral part of the Sanita.

Section VI .- Of the National Colours and Armorial Bearings.

Article 1. The national commercial flag of the United States of the Ionian Islands, as directed by the seventh article of Arricle 1. He hadrona commercial mag of the Onice states of the forman Islands, as directed by the seventh arricle of the treaty of Paris, shall be the original flag of these States, with the addition of the British Union, to be placed in the upper corner, next to the flag-staff.

2. On usual days, the British colours shall be hoisted on all the forts within the United States of the Ionian Islands, but a standard shall be made, to be hoisted on days of public rejoicing and festivity, according to the model of the armorial bearings of the said States.

3. The arms or armorial bearings of the United States of the Ionian Islands shall hereafter consist of the British arms in the centre, surrounded by the arms of each of the islands composing the said States.

4. The armorial bearings of each of the islands shall consist of the individual arms of the island, and such emblem. denoting the sovereign protection, as may be deemed advisable.

Section VII .- General Clauses.

- 1. It is reserved to his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign to have the power, by message to the legislative assembly, to call the attention of parliament to any point or points which may hereafter appear to have been omitted or neglected in the present constitutional chart, and on receiving such message, the legislative assembly shall decree itself to be sitting under this clause, and shall proceed forthwith to the consideration of the point or points submitted to them by his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign; but on all such occasions, whatever may be agreed on by the parliament, must be ratified by his majesty the protecting sovereign, after which it shall be considered as forming part of the constitutional chart itself.

  2. As many cases may arise, where no specific provision is made in the present constitutional chart, on all such occasions reference shall be had, by analogy, to the chart itself, and the general principle and rule laid down in one case is to be considered as applicable to another of a similar nature, which admits of such application, though such case itself is not stated specifically in the said constitutional chart.

  3. In the instance of all maritime transactions, and the collection of customs, it shall be competent for the proper authorities to employ either British or Ionian subjects.

- not stated specifically in the said constitutional chart.

  3. In the instance of all maritime transactions, and the collection of customs, it shall be competent for the proper authorities to employ either British or Ionian subjects.

  4. There shall be a general printing office in the United States of the Ionian Islands, which shall be established at the permanent seat of the government thereof, and the press shall be placed under the immediate controll of the Senate, and of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, and under the superintendance of the secretary of the general department of the Senate; and no other printing press shall be set up and employed, without the previous licence of the Senate, and the sanction of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign.

  5. A specific law shall settle the terms, time and mode for the naturalization of foreign subjects in these States; but the subjects of the protecting power; and a subject of the protecting power, or of any other power, may be at once naturalized by a bill to that effect, without reference to any fixed time of residence in these States, which shall be laid down in the law itself.

  6. His excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, independent of all other powers already vested in him, shall posses the right of being present at the sittings of the legislative assembly, or of the Senate, whenever he shall deem it fitting or necessary.

  7. Notwithstanding the provisions made in the first section of the present chapter, relative to the general mode of proceeding in all instances of malversation in office; the power of suspension or dismissal, as far as relates to British subjects, rests with and is reserved to his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, or his ministers, shall be granted in the fullest manner to the Ionian people; but the petition of individuals must be addressed to his majesty's secretary of state; provided always, such representati

- them.

  11. It is clearly to be understood, that in the instance of all successions, where a vacancy occurs, either by death or otherwise, that the person or persons succeeding to such situation or situations, shall only hold his or their office for the period of time the person to whom they did so succeed was entitled to hold it.

  12. Whereas the basis of the new constitution of these States is only generally laid down in the present constitutional chart; and whereas it is of the first necessity that no time should be lost in bringing forward the necessary laws to give it effect, it is declared, that the present legislative assembly, on their meeting subsequent to the signification of the pleasure of the protecting sovereign, in regard to the ratification of the said chart, shall be held to be the first parliament of the United States of the Ionian Islands: and that the session, in lieu of commencing the 1st of March, as ordered in the chart, shall commence three days after the promulgation of the ratification; its operations, and the second session shall com-

GIBRALTAR-CHARTER OF JUSTICE, 1st September, 1830.

WILLIAM THE FOURTH, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting:

Whereas our royal father and predecessor King George the Third, by letters-patent under the great seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing date at Westminster the twelfth day of May, in the fifty-seventh year of his reign, did erect and constitute a court of judicature within the garrison and territory of Gibraltar, to be called by the name of the Court of Civil Pleas at Gibraltar: And whereas by the said letters-patent provision was made for the administration of justice in the said garrison and territory, and it was thereby declared that the said letters patent should be and remain in force only until his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, should be pleased to alter, revoke, or determine the same: And whereas it is expedient that the said letters-patent be revoked: Now know ye, that we have revoked, and do hereby revoke, the before mentioned letters-patent and every part thereof.

And whereas it is expedient that provision be made for the better and more effectual administration of justice in our garrison and territory of Gibraltar, and for that purpose one supreme court of justice, to be holden therein in the manner and form hereinafter mentioned, should be constituted: Now know ye, that we, of our special grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, have thought fit to grant, direct, order, and appoint, and by these presents do accordingly for us, our heirs, and successors, grant, direct, order, and appoint that there shall be within our said garrison and territory a court which shall be called "The Supreme Court of Gibraltar;" and we do hereby create and constitute the said supreme court a court of record. And we do further will, ordain, and appoint that the said supreme court of Gibraltar shall consist of, and be holden by and before one judge, to be called the "Judge of the Supreme Court of Gibraltar;" and that the said judge shall be a barrister in England or Ireland of not less than three years standing, or an advocate admitted to practice in our court of session in Scotland by the space of three years; and the said judge shall from time to time be nominated and appointed to such his office by us, our heirs and successors, by letters-patent under the great seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland: And we do hereby declare, ordain, and grant, that, upon the death, resignation, or sickness, or incapacity of the said judge, or in case of his absence from the said garrison and territory, or in case of any such suspension from office as hereinafter mentioned of any such judge, it shall and may be lawful to and for the governor of our said garrison and territory for the time being, by any instrument to be by him for that purpose made and issued under the public seal of the said garrison and territory, to nominate and appoint some fit and proper person to act as and in the place and stead of any such judge so dying or resigning or labouring under such sickness or incapacity as aforesaid, or being so absent as aforesaid from the said garrison and territory, or being so suspended, until the vacancy so created by any such death or resignation, or sickness, or incapacity, or absence, or suspension, shall be supplied by a new appointment, to be made in manner aforesaid, by us, our heirs and successors, or until the judge so becoming sick or incapable, or being absent or suspended as aforesaid, shall resume such his office and enter into the discharge of the duties thereof; And we do further will, ordain, and grant that the said judge shall hold such his office during our pleasure: Provided nevertheless that it shall and may be lawful for the governor of our said garrison and territory for the time being, by any order to be by him for that purpose made and issued under the public seal of the said garrison and territory, upon the proof of the misconduct of any such judge as aforesaid, to suspend him from such his office and from the discharge of the duties thereof: Provided that, in every such case, the said governor shall immediately report for our information, through one of our principal secretaries of state, the grounds and causes of such suspension. And we do further grant, ordain, and appoint that the said supreme court of Gibralter shall have and use, as occasion may require, a seal bearing a device and impression of our royal arms within an exergue or label surrounding the same, with this inscription, "The Seal of the Supreme And we do hereby ordain, grant, and appoint that the said seal shall be delivered to Court of Gibraltar :" and shall be kept in the custody of the said judge; and in case of vacancy of or suspension from the office of judge, the same shall be delivered over to and kept in the custody of such person as shall be appointed by the said governor of our said garrison and territory to act as and in the place and stead of the said judge. And we do further grant, ordain, and declare that the said judge, so long as he shall hold his office, shall be entitled to and have and receive such salary as shall be granted to him by us, our heirs, and successors, and that such salary shall be in lieu of all fees of office, perquisites, emoluments, and advantages whatsoever; and that no fee of office, perquisite, emolument, or advantages whatsoever other than and except the said salary shall be accepted, received, or taken by any such judge on any account or on any pretence whatso-And we do further ordain, appoint, and declare that no such judge as aforesaid shall be capable of accepting, taking, or performing any other office or place of profit or emolument within our said garrison and territory, on pain that the acceptance of any such other office or place as aforesaid shall be and may be decreed in law, de facto, an avoidance of such his office of judge; and the salary thereof shall cease and be deemed to have ceased accordingly from the time of the acceptance of any such other office or place. And we do hereby constitute and appoint our trusty and well-beloved Barron Field, esquire, to be the first judge of the supreme court of Gibraltar: And we do hereby ordain, appoint, and declare that there shall be attached and belong to the said court such and so many officers as to the judge of the said court for the time being shall, from time to time, appear to be necessary for the administration of justice and the due execution of the powers and authorities which are granted and committed to the said court by these our letters-patent: Provided nevertheless, that no new officer shall be created in the said court unless the governor of the said garrison and territory shall first signify his approbation thereof to the said judge for the time being, in writing, under the hand of such governor. And we do further ordain and direct that all persons who shall and may be appointed to the offices of registrar or prothonotary, and master or keeper of records, or marshal of the said court, and that all persons who shall be appointed in the said court to any offices to which the duties shall correspond to those performed by the master or prothonotary of any or either of our courts of record at Westminster, or to the sheriff of any county in England, shall be so appointed by us, our heirs, and successors, by warrant under our or their royal sign manual; and that all persons who shall and may be appointed to any other office within the supreme court shall be so appointed by the governor for the time being of the said garrison and territory. And we do further direct and appoint that the several officers of the said court shall hold their respective offices during our pleasure. And we do hereby authorize and empower the said supreme court of Gibraltar to approve, admit, and enrol, as barristers, advocates, solicitors, and attorneys, any persons who have been admitted as barristers in England or Ireland, or as advocates in the court of session of Scotland, or to the degree of doctor of laws at our Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, or Dublin, or as attornies or solicitors of any of our courts of record at Westminster or Dublin, or as doctors in any ecclesiastical court in England or Ircland, or as writers to the signet in Scotland, and any persons who have been at any time heretofore admitted to practise as advocates, barristers, attornies, solicitors, or proctors in the court of civil and criminal justice heretofore existing in our said garrison and territory. And we do further authorize our said supreme court to approve, admit, and enrol, as such attornies, solicitors, or proctors as aforesaid, such and so many persons as may be instructed, within our said garrison and territory, in the knowledge and practice of the law, by any barrister, advocate, attorney, solicitor, or proctor duly admitted to practise in the said court; and which persons shall be so approved, admitted, and enrolled, according to and in pursuance of any general rule or rules of court to be for that purpose made in manner hereafter directed. And we do ordain and declare, that persons approved, admitted, and enrolled as aforesaid, shall be and they are hereby authorized to appear and plead and act for the suitors of the said supreme court subject always to be removed by the said supreme court from their station therein, upon reasonable cause. And we do further ordain, that no person or persons whatsoever, not so approved, admitted, and enrolled as aforesaid shall be allowed to appear, plead, or act in the said supreme court, for or on behalf of any suitors in the said court. And we do hereby further ordain, direct, and appoint that the said supreme court of Gibraltar shall have cognizance of all pleas and jurisdiction in all causes. whether civil, criminal, or mixed, arising within the said garrison and territory, with jurisdiction over all our subjects and all other persons whomsoever residing and being within the said garrison and territory, save as hereinafter is excepted. And we do further give and grant to the said supreme court of Gibraltar full power, authority, and jurisdiction to judge and determine all questions there arising, according to the laws now in force within our said garrison and territory, and all such other laws as shall at any time hereafter be made and established for the peace, order, and government thereof, by us, our heirs and successors. with the advice and consent of parliament, or in our or their privy council, or by the governor of Gioraltar for the time being. And we do further give and grant to the said supreme court full power, jurisdiction, and authority to review the proceedings of all inferior courts of justice within our said garrison and territory, and, if necessary, to set aside or correct the same. Provided always that nothing herein contained shall extend or be construed to give to the said supreme court any authority to review the proceedings of any court martial holden within the said garrison and territory. And we do further ordain, direct, and appoint, that, in any criminal case depending before the said supreme court, the trial of the party or parties accused shall be before the judge of the said court and a jury of twelve men, who shall concur in every verdict to be given on the trial of any such accused party or parties; and every such verdict shall be delivered in open court by the mouth of the foreman of every such jury, and shall be thereupon recorded and read over to such jury, before they are discharged from attendance on the said court. Provided also, and we do further direct and appoint, that all issues of fact arising in civil suits or actions depending in the said court, shall be tried and decided by the said judge and three assessors, to be appointed as hereinafter mentioned, until otherwise provided for by law; and that the verdict of the said judge and assessors on the trial of any such issue shall be according to the majority of votes; but if such votes should be equally divided, then according to the opinion of the said judge; and every such verdict shall be delivered in open court by the mouth of the said judge. And in all cases where the sum or matter at issue in any such suit or action shall exceed or be of the value of more than £100 sterling, British money, the said judge shall cause the evidence on every such trial as aforesaid to be taken down in writing by the clerk or other proper officer in open court, in the presence of the witnesses respectively giving the same, and the evidence so taken shall be entered upon the proceedings of the said court and be of record; and in every case in which any appeal shall be made and allowed under the provisions of this our charter, from any judgment of the said court, copies of all documents and papers which shall have been produced and given in evidence, shall be certified and transmitted by the said clerk or other proper officer as authentic; and also copies of any documents and papers which shall have been produced and tendered in evidence and rejected, shall, if required by the party producing the same, be in like manner authenticated, but marked by such officer as aforesaid as rejected, in order that all such copies may be annexed to the record as part thereof in case of appeal. And we do further direct and declare, that it shall be lawful for the judge, on the application of either of the parties, plaintive, or defendant, at or before the trial of any issue joined in any civil suit or action commenced in the said court, to permit the evidence on such trial to be recorded and certified as aforesaid, although the sum or matter at issue may be less than £100 sterling; provided that it shall be made to appear to such judge that such judgment, decree, order, or sentence, which may be given, made, or pronounced in such suit or action, may be of such importance as to render it proper that an appeal should be permitted. And we do further ordain and direct, that no judgment or sentence of the supreme court, in any criminal case, whereby any person shall be condemned to death or transportation, or banishment from the said garrison and territory, shall be carried into execution until a report of all the proceedings upon any such trial hath been laid before or transmitted to the governor of the said garrison and territory by the judge presiding at any such trial, and until such governor shall have authorized and approved the execution of such sentence. Provided always, that no officer, soldier, or other person in actual pay as a member of the garrison, shall be arrested, imprisoned, or taken in execution, without leave of the governor of the said garrison and territory first obtained in writing for that purpose. Provided always, and we do hereby further will and declare, that in case any action or suit shall be begun, instituted, or prosecuted against any officer, soldier or other person, in pay as a member of our garrison, to recover damages for any tresspass, assault, battery, or other violence or wrong committed, or alleged to have been committed, by him or them, or for any damage or injury whatsoever, not being a matter of debt, account, or contract, or relating to any right or title to any lands, houses, tenements, or hereditaments, or any interest therein, it shall be lawful for the governor for the time being of the said garrison and territory, at his discretion, by order under his hand, to suspend such proceeding, and to order the staying thereof at any time before judgment, or to stay and suspend any execution from issuing upon any such judgment; and upon delivery of such order to the registrar of the said court, or to the person acting as registrar of the said court, all such proceedings shall cease and be stayed until such order shall be revoked by the governor for the time being, saving to the plaintiff or plaintiffs, in any such action or suit, all such suits and remedies as he, she, or they may be or would have been entitled to institute in England or elsewhere out of the said garrison and territory of Gibraltar, if the said action or suit, so stayed, had not been there commenced. And we do hereby also further ordain and direct, that in cases in which any officer, soldier, or other person in actual pay as a member of the garrison shall have been arrested, imprisoned, or taken in execution, with the leave of the governor as aforesaid, it shall be nevertheless lawful for the governor for the time being, by an order in writing signed by him, afterwards to order and direct, that such officer, soldier, or other person shall be discharged from such arrest, imprisonment, or execution; and the officer or gaoler, in whose custody such officer, soldier or other person shall happen to be, is hereby authorized, empowered, and commanded forthwith, upon the receipt of such order, to discharge him out of custody. And we do hereby ordain and direct, that such discharge under such order shall shall not be deemed an escape from the custody of such officer or gaoler, but that such order of discharge shall be and be taken to be an indemnity to such officer or gaoler for such discharge. And we do hereby further ordain and direct, that in all such cases the governor for the time being who shall have signed such order of discharge, shall forthwith state and deliver, in writing, to the said judge, his reasons for having issued such order of discharge, and shall transmit a copy thereof to us through one of our principal secretaries of state. Provided always, that such discharge from imprisonment shall in no degree release the party so discharged from the debt on account of which his body had been taken in execution. And we do further grant, ordain, direct, and appoint, that it shall and may be lawful for the said judge, by any rules or orders of court to be by him from time to time for that purpose made and published, to frame, constitute, and establish such rules, orders, and regulations as to him shall seem meet, touching and concerning the time and place of holding the said supreme court, and touching the forms and manner of proceeding to be observed in the supreme court, and the practice and pleading upon all actions, suits, and other matters both civil and criminal, indictments and informations to be therein brought, the appointing of commissioners to take bail and examine witnesses, the examination of witnesses de bene esse and allowing the same as evidence, the proceedings of the marshal and other ministerial officers of the said court, the process of the said court, and the mode of executing the same, the fees and emoluments to be demanded and taken by the advocates, attornies, and officers of the said court, the summoning, impannelling, and challenging of juries, the admission of barristers, advocates, attornies, solicitors, and proctors in the said court, and touching and concerning all such other matters and things necessary for the proper conduct and despatch of business in the said supreme court; and all such rules, orders, and regulations from time to time to revoke, alter, amend, or renew, as occasion may require: Provided always, that no such rules, orders, and regulations shall be repugnant to this our charter, and that the same shall be so framed as to promote, as far as may be, economy and expedition in the despatch of the business of the said supreme court; and that all such rules and forms of practice, process, and proceeding shall, so far as the circumstances of the said garrison and territory may permit, be framed with reference to the corresponding rules and forms in use in our courts of record in Westminster; and that the same be drawn up in plain succinct, and compendious terms, avoiding all unnecessary repetitions and obscurity, and promulgated in the most public and authentic manner in the same garrison and territory for three months at least before the same shall operate and take effect. Provided always, that all such rules, orders, and regulations shall forthwith be transmitted to us, our heirs, and successors, under the seal of the said court, for our or their approbation, correction, or disallowance. And whereas it may be expedient and necessary to make provision respecting the qualification of jurors and assessors to serve in the said court, and the mode of enforcing the attendance of such jurors and assessors: and it may also be expedient and necessary to make provision for the extension of trial by jury in the said supreme court, in civil cases: Now we do further ordain, direct, and appoint, that it shall and may be lawful for the governor for the time being of our said garrison and territory to make and establish all such laws, statutes, and ordinances as to him may seem meet, respecting the matters aforesaid, which laws, statutes, and ordinances shall forthwith be transmitted to us for our approbation, correction or disallowance. And whereas it may be expedient to establish within our said garrison and territory courts of request, and other courts having jurisdiction in civil cases of small amount or value, and in cases of crimes or offences not punishable with death, transportation, or banishment: Now we do hereby authorize and empower the governor for the time being of our garrison and territory, by any laws and ordinances to be from time to time made for that purpose, to erect, constitute, and establish all such courts of request and other courts having jurisdiction in civil and criminal cases within our said garrison and territory: Provided that the jurisdiction of such civil courts shall not be extended to any case wherein the sum or matter in dispute shall exceed the amount or value of 40l sterling money, or wherein the title to any lands or tenements, or any fee, duty or office may be in question, or whereby rights in future may be bound; and pro-vided also, that the jurisdiction of such courts in criminal cases shall not be extended to any case wherein any person may be accused of any crime punishable by death, transportation, or banishment from the said garrison and territory. And we do hereby authorize and empower the said governor, by and with the advice of our said judge for the time being, to make, ordain, and establish all necessary rules, orders, or regulations respecting the manner and form of proceeding, and the mode of trial of offenders in any such lastmentioned courts, and respecting the manner and form of carrying the judgments and orders of such courts into execution, and all such other rules, orders, and regulations as may be necessary for giving full and perfect effect to the jurisdiction of the said courts. And we do hereby grant, ordain, and direct, that it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons, being a party or parties to any civil suit or action de-pending in the said supreme court of the garrison and territory of Gibraltar, to appeal to us, our heirs, and successors, in our their privy council, against any final judgment, decree, or sentence of the said court, or against any rule or order made in any such civil suit or action having the effect of a final or definitive sentence; and which appeals shall be made subject to the rules, regulations, and limitations following, that is to say, in case any such judgment, decree, order or sentence shall be given or pronounced for or in respect of any sum or matter at issue above the amount or value of three hundred pounds sterling, or in case such judgment, decree, order or sentence shall involve, directly or indirectly, any claim, demand, or question to or respecting property, or any civil right, amounting to or of the value of three hundred pounds sterling, the person or persons reeling aggrieved by any such judgment, decree, order or sentence of the said supreme court, may, within fourteen days next after the same shall have been pronounced, made, or given, apply to the said supreme court, by petition, for leave to appeal therefrom to us, our heirs, and successors, in our or their privy council; and in case such leave to appeal shall be prayed by the party or parties who is or are directed to pay any sum of money, or perform any duty, the said supreme court shall and is hereby empowered to direct that the judgment, decree, order, or sentence appealed from shall be carried into execution, or that the execution thereof shall be suspended pending the said appeal, as to the said court may in each case appear to be most consistent with real and substantial justice. And in case the supreme court shall direct such judgment, decree, order, or sentence to be carried into execution, the person or persons in whose favour the same shall be given, shall, before the execution thereof, enter into good and sufficient security, to be approved by the said supreme court, for the due performance of such judgment or order, as we, our heirs, and successors shall think fit to make thereupon; or in case the said supreme court shall direct the execution of any judgment, decree, order, or sentence to be suspended pending the said appeal, the person or persons against whom the same shall have been given shall in like manner, and before any order for the suspension of any such execution is made, enter into good and sufficient security, to be approved by the said supreme court, for the due performance of such judgment or order, as we, our heirs, or successors shall think fit to make thereupon; and in all cases we will and require that security shall also be given by the party or parties appellant, to the satisfaction of the supreme court, for the prosecution of the appeal, and for the payment of all such costs as may be awarded by us, our heirs, and successors, to the party or parties respondent; and if such last mentioned security shall be entered into within three months from the date of such petitions for leave to appeal, then, and not otherwise, the said supreme court shall allow the appeal, and the party or parties appellant shall be at liberty to prefer and prosecute his, her, or their appeal to us, our heirs, and successors, in our or their privy council, in such manner and under such rules as are observed in appeals made to us from our plantations or colonies. And we do hereby reserve to ourselves, our heirs, and successors, in our or their privy council, full power and authority, upon the humble petition at any time, of any person or persons aggrieved by any judgment or determination of the said supreme court, to admit his, her, or their appeal therefrom, upon such other terms, and upon and subject to such other limitations, restrictions, and regulations as we or they shall think fit; and to reverse, correct, or vary such judgment or determination as to us or them shall seem meet. And it is our further will and pleasure that in all cases of appeal allowed by the said supreme court, or by us, our heirs, and successors, the said court shall certify and transmit to us, our heirs, and successors, in our or their privy council, a true and exact copy of all evidence, proceedings, judgments, decrees, and orders, had or made in such causes appealed, so far as the same have relation to the matter of appeal, such copies to be certified under the seal of the said court. And we do further direct and ordain that the said supreme court shall, in all cases of appeal to us, our heirs, or successors, conform to and execute such judgments and orders as we or they shall think fit to make in the premises, in such manner as any original judgment, decree, or decretal order, or rule of the said supreme court of the garrison and territory of Gibraltar could or might have been executed. And we do hereby strictly charge and command all governors, commanders, magistrates, ministers, civil and military, and all our liege subjects within and belonging to the said garrison and territory, that, in the execution of the several powers, jurisdictions, and authorities hereby granted, made, given, or created, they be aiding and assisting and obedient in all things, as they will answer the contrary at their peril. Provided always that nothing in these presents contained, or any act which shall be done under the authority thereof, shall extend or be construed to extend to prevent us, our heirs, and successors from revoking these presents or any part thereof, or from making such further or other provision, by letters patent, for the administration of justice, civil and criminal, within the said garrison and territory, and the places now or hereafter at any time to be annexed thereto, as to us, our heirs, and successors shall seem fit, in as full and ample a manner as if these presents had not been made, these presents or any thing therein contained to the contrary in anywise notwithstanding. And we do further ordain and direct that the governor of our said garrison and territory, upon the arrival therein of these presents, shall by proclamation notify to the inhabitants of the said garrison and territory the time when the said courts hereby established will be open; and as soon as the judge of the said supreme court shall have assumed and entered upon the exercise of his jurisdiction therein, then and from thenceforth the court of civil pleas now established within the said garrison and territory, and the court of appeals now established within the same, and all other courts, civil and criminal, shall be absolutely abolished, cease, and determine; and every suit, action, complaint, matter. or thing civil and criminal, which shall be depending in such last-mentioned courts respectively, shall and may be proceeded upon in the supreme court instituted under and by virtue of these presents; and all proceedings which shall hereafter be had in such action or suit, or other matter, civil or criminal respectively, shall be conducted in like manner as if such action or suit, or other matter, civil or criminal, had been originally commenced in the said supreme court instituted under these presents: and all the records, muniments, and proceedings whatsoever, of and belonging to the said courts of civil and criminal justice, and to the said court of appeals respectively, shall, from and immediately after the opening of the said supreme court instituted by these presents, be delivered over to and deposited for safe custody in such place, and be thereafter kept by such person as our governor shall appoint; and all parties concerned shall and may have recourse to the said records and proceedings, as to any other records and proceedings of the said court. And we do hereby further declare and direct, that during the absence from our said garrison and territory of the governor thereof, or if there shall be no person commissioned by us, our heirs, and successors to be the governor of our said garrison and territory, then, and in every such case, all and every the powers hereby granted to and vested in the governor for the time being of the said garrison and territory, shall and may be executed by and vested in the lieutenant-governor thereof, for the officer or the time being having command of the troops. In witness whereof we have caused these our letters to be made patent. Witness ourself at Westminster the first day of September in the first year of our reign.

APPENDIX VIII.—ON EMIGRATION.

A .- Notices for general circulation on Emigration to Australia.

Government Emigration Office, 2, Middle Scotland-yard, 20th October 1837.

The present paper is printed for the encouragement of the emigration of useful settlers. Government will occasionally send, from different parts of the United Kingdom, ships provided expressly for the purpose, in which free passages will be allowed to a limited number of persons, who must fall within the following description :-

They must belong to the class of mechanics and handicraftsmen, or of farm servants. They must be married, and be accompanied to the colony by their wives. They will generally be taken under 35 years of age, and must not exceed 50. They must be able to establish their character for industry, sobriety, and good

Although young women are no longer sent out separately, yet unmarried female relatives of married couples going out under the above description, and not below 15, nor above 30 years of age, will be allowed a passage with their friends, provided they go out as forming part of the same family, and destined to remain under its protection until otherwise provided for in the colony.

During the voyage the people will be under the care and superintendence of a surgeon, usually taken from the list of surgeons of the Royal Navy who have already been in the colony.

The condition upon which the emigrants are to be taken, is a free passage for themselves and their families; but they must defray out of their own means any expenses previous to joining the ship, and must come supplied with a sufficient quantity of clothes for the voyage. Only provisions, bedding, and cooking utensils will be found for them.

The following is a list of clothing which may be considered indispensable for the voyage:-

Two suits of clothes, including two hats or bonnets, and two pair of shoes. Two flannel petticoats for the women. From six to twelve shirts or shifts. From six to twelve pair of dark hose. Two pair of duck trowsers, and two neck-kerchiefs for the men. For the women, dark gowns would be preferable to light.

The preceding is given as a list of the very smallest quantities which would suffice; but as a general rule it may be stated, that the more abundant the stock of good clothing, the better for health and comfort during the passage.

Every security will be taken for the convenience of the emigrants on their first landing, and information will be provided for them of the demand for employment in different directions, so that the people may know what opportunities are open to them. They will be entirely free to work for whom they please, and will in no respect be bound to government, nor be liable to be called upon for repayment of the cost of their passage.

Any letters in reference to the subject of the present notice, should be addressed to T. Frederick Elliot, esq., agent-general for emigration, 2, Middle Scotland-yard; and, if by general post, should be placed under cover to the Under Secretary of State, Colonial Office, London. T. Frederick Elliot.

[•] Sir R. Bourke, the governor, remarks on this return, that "although confined to Sydney, it may be considered applicable to the whole colony, servants of all kinds being engaged by the settlers in Sydney, and taken from thence to their property in the interior, while provisions of all descriptions, varying as they may in price in different districts, may reasonably be taken at the average of the Sydney market."

+ In respect to coopers, it is mentioned in some evidence by Dr Lang, whose publications on New South Wales are so well known in England, that the branch of making herring barrels is not wanted in the colony.

G.—The rate of wages per day for labourers and mechanics throughout the eastern townships of Lower Canada, are as under:—

Carpenters for framing buildings, bridges, and for general rough work, are paid about 5s. Joiners and superior workmen, 5s. to 6s. 3d. Blacksmiths meet with plenty of employment at about the same wages for ordinary country workmen and shoers, but smiths who understand mill work, earn 5s. to 7s. 6d. Masons and stone-cutters are employed in the districts where stone is used for building, and are paid from 4s. to 5s. 6d. Bricklayers meet with great encouragement, as brick is more generally used than stone; a bricklayer, if a good workmen, is paid 5s. to 6s. 3d. Plasterers the same. Sawyers do not find employment, mills being made to do all their work. Millwrights who understand their business are amply encouraged, their wages being as high in some cases, as 15s. per day; they commonly receive 7s. 6d. to 10s. Cabinet makers find employment to a certain extent, but there is not a great demand for the finer kinds of furniture, ordinary workmen are principally employed, and receive from 5s. to 6s. 3d. Shoemakers are not commonly paid by the day, but receive very good prices for their work. Tailors the same. Farm servants, or ordinary labourers, receive according to their capability of performing the general work of the country, from 20l. to 35l. for the year, and board, when engaged for that period, otherwise, 2s. 6d. But good ploughmen, and men who have acquired the art of using the axe, waggoners, &c., receive higher wages, and in harvest time, every man may find employment at from 4s. to 5s. 6d.

Prices of Grain and Provisions.

Wheat is at present (1837) selling at about 5s. to 5s. 3d. per bushel; the crop has been very good the past season, and the quality excellent. Barley is not cultivated to a considerable extent; the price is about 2s. 6d. per bushel. Oats are sold at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 6d. per bushel. Peas 3s. per bushel. Hay is produced in great quantities both in natural and artificial meadows and uplands. It is usually applied to the wintering and fattening of cattle, which are pastured during the summer, and its price varies from 20s. to 30s. and 40s. per ton, according to situation. Flax seed is cultivated in small quantities, and sells for about 5s. to 6s. per bushel. Clover seed is also partially raised, and is worth from 70s. to 84s. per cwt., as well as Timothy and Hird's grass seed, which are worth from 6s. to 9s. per bushel. Turnips are sometimes seem but not generally, the principal root crop being potatoes, which yield large returns; their price varies from 10d. to 2s. per bushel. Beef and mutton 3d., pork 4d. per lb. Geese, turkies, and fowls abundant. Tea 2s. 6d. and sugar 4d. per lb. Implements of husbandry and tools, such as axes, chains, &c. are to be had in Lower Canada, on better terms than those of English manufacture, and are more suitable for the country's use.

H.—Emigration to Van Diemen's Land, proposals to farmers and other emigrants, possessed of small capitals, as tenants.

^{1.} The directors of the Van Diemen's Land Company having lately received very favourable accounts from their chief agent; the whole of the live stock of sheep, cattle, and horses,—improved by the very best breeds which which could be procured in Europe,—continuing to yield a satisfactory increase and return; and the company's grants of land having been surveyed; the directors are now enabled to hold out encouragement to emigrants and others to settle as tenants upon the company's lands, and for this purpose a portion of the extensive location from Emu Bay to the interior of the island, comprising 128,000 acres, or 200 square miles, has been reserved.

^{2.} The Surrey and Hampshire Hills are situated in the north part of Van Diemen's Land, about twenty miles inland south of Emu Bay, and about forty miles south-west of Circular Head, and are nearly surrounded, on the east, south, and west sides, by high mountains.

^{3.} The soil of the Surrey and Hampshire Hills is of excellent quality; it consists of a hazel loam, with a tendency to clay, upon a bottom of mixed stone and clay, or firm clayey gravel. The face of the country is very uneven, being intersected in every possible direction by innumerable streams of water, upon which saw and flour mills can be erected to advantage; a tract of 100 acres can scarcely be found without its run of water. In regard to timber, it is very irregularly covered; there are open plains of considerable extent, 300 to 1,500 acres.

4. The herbage of the district, though too coarse for Merino and fine wool sheep, is, when burnt, very good pasture for more hardy sheep; the Cheviot, Cotswold, and Leicester breeds, &c., are found to thrive well upon it. After burning in spring, it grows rapidly to a considerable height. Some of the marshes produce a fine blady grass in great profusion, and of excellent quality.

5. The stringy bark and gum trees are in most parts plentiful, and are adapted either for the carpenter or for splitting for fences. The qualities of the myrtle have not yet been ascertained, but it is believed it will make a good furniture wood, and for the inside work of houses.

6. Lime-stone has been found at the Surrey and Hampshire Hills. Stone of a rough nature, fit for common buildings, is plentiful, and of a very durable kind. Clay is also everywhere plentiful and good.

- 7. The climate of the Surrey and Hampshire Hills is humid, nearly as much so as the wettest parts of the north of England or Scotland. High winds prevail at most seasons of the year, but their force is a good deal mitigated by the height of the trees. Snow falls in winter to the depth of a foot or more. It never lies long; the heavy rains soon carry it off. Summer frosts are frequent, and often destructive to potatoes and other tender plants. Still the summer is generally sunny and hot; quite sufficiently so to ripen and and to allow time to gather the harvest. Fogs are almost unknown, and the climate is perfectly salubrious, as is proved by the fact of the company's surveyors and their men having been exposed to it for a whole year or more without any bad effects, with nothing better than tents to cover them.
- 8. The soil of the Surrey and Hampshire Hills is rich enough to produce grain crops of any kind in ordinary seasons, but oats, from the prevalence of summer frosts, will be sometimes a precarious crop.

9. Turnips, beans, peas, and cabbages, with good cultivation, it is conceived, may be relied upon as certain

- 10. Cattle do well at the Surrey and Hampshire Hills, on the native pastures; and there can be no doubt that when managed on the English system, they will do still better. The young stock there at present is of a very good kind, the original cows having been selected from the best in the colony, and the bulls used have been, with the exception of one of the Ayrshire breed, pure Durham short-horned only.
- 11. The hardy breeds of sheep, or a cross between them and the Merino, kept within enclosures, and obtaining in the winter season some portion of improved grass or turnips, succeed well, and their wool always finds a ready sale.

12. Blood horses and the Cleveland breed succeed well in the district.

13. Kangaroos are abundant, and form a very useful and palatable article of food, and their skins are worth about 9d. each. Emu, quail, snipes, and wild ducks are all met with, but in no great plenty.

- 14. Working bullocks are fast going out of use in Hobart Town and Launceston, their places being taken by horses. Hence the increasing demand for oats in both places, which will afford an extensive and sure market, and would be principally beneficial to the Surrey and Hampshire Hills districts, because if a really good article could be produced there, it would render the light and inferior production of other districts unsaleable, and would compel settlers to devote their lands to wheat, for which they are well adapted.
- 15. The old districts of Van Diemen's Land are particularly adapted for the rearing of fine wool sheep. Hence, sheep are rapidly increasing, whilst cattle are, in consequence, diminishing there; the natural pastures being not very nutritive, and the sheep keeping them close fed, cattle have little chance to get fat, and old settlers are in consequence anxious to get rid of them. While mutton therefore is plentiful, beef is scarce, and becoming more so every season. These circumstances produce the singular anomaly of settlers destroying their young calves to prevent increase, at the very time that beef is bearing a highly remunerating price. Stall-fed beef is always in demand in Van Diemen's Land, being retailed out by the butchers at from 6d. to 8d. per lb., a price which cannot certainly be expected to stand against mutton and grass-fed beef at 31d. per lb. But as 3d. per lb. would well remunerate the established tenant at the Surrey and Hampshire Hills, with respect to beef there is abundant room for prices to fall, before the settler could be apprehensive of wanting a good market for his produce.

16. Van Diemen's Land being the only extensive region in the south-eastern part of the globe which possesses a really temperate climate, there is great reason to expect that pork and beef could be readily cured on the company's estate, and it is well known that salt provisions may be always sold to advantage in the colony. If this be the case in Van Diemen's Land generally, it may be fairly anticipated that at the Surrey and Hampshire Hills, with cultivated lands and careful feeding, salt provisions may be produced which will be fully equal to those now sent thither from Ireland.

17. The same observations may be made with regard to dairy produce, which bears a very high price in Van Diemen's Land, and will continue to do so, because the old districts are generally ill adapted to dairy purposes, and will be still less productive in that way as they become more closely stocked with sheep. Cheese is now about 9d. to 1s., and butter 1s. 8d. to 2s. 6d. per lb.

18. Pork, either salt or fresh, and bacon and hams always command ready sale at good prices; the present prices of fresh pork vary from 5d. to 9d. per lb., bacon and hams 10d. to 1s. 4d. per lb., and even higher. They are always in demand.

19. Working horses of a good growth and well broken in are always saleable. It seems the general opinion, that when they can be obtained at 501. to 601. a pair, they will not only supersede the use of bullocks in the towns, but in the country also, and then they will command a good sale.

20. The establishment of breweries at the Surrey and Hampshire Hills would be extremely beneficial to the tenant, in forming him a market for his produce near home.

21. Emigrants going out to the colony as tenants to the company, will have the advantage of arriving in a country which has been surveyed, and is well known throughout, and which would greatly facilitate the purchasing of land on the borders of the company's property, if they at any future period should feel so disposed.

- 22. The lands will be let in locations of one square mile, or 640 acres, according to the capital and means of the tenant; it is not, however, necessary that the farms should be arranged in square blocks of a mile each, but that they should be adapted in shape to the natural boundaries of the country.
- 23. The rent to be 64l. per annum for the 640 acres. The first year and a half's rent to be expended by the tenant in fencing; half of the next half year's rent, or 161, also to be expended in permanent improve-ments, and the balance, or 161, to be paid in cash; half the third year's rent, or 321, to be expended in like manner, and the balance paid in cash. The fourth and future years' rent to be paid wholly in cash.
- 24. Leases will be granted for twenty-one years to the first twenty families going out, after which no leases will be granted for a longer period than fourteen years.
- 25. Cottages in Van Diemen's Land are in general erected at very little expense, though it would be most desirable to take out a small portable cottage from England, which can be had at a trifling cost.
- 26. Assistance and advice as to the sale of produce at the best markets will at all times be given, and the company's chief agent will be ready to make such arrangements for the general body in this respect as may be beneficial to the whole.
  - 27. Tenants may be supplied with stores by the company on moderate terms.

28. Seed corn will be lent to tenants, to be repaid out of their first crop.

- 29. Clover and grass seeds will be supplied to tenants engaging to lay down lands to grass on the company's estates.
- 30. Timber carriages, to assist in clearing away trees, will be lent gratis by the company to tenants of forest lands.
- 31. So soon as the population is sufficiently increased, schools will be established upon very moderate terms.
- 32. The services also of the company's medical officers may always be obtained upon very reasonable terms.
- 33. Tenants will have the advantage of knowing when they leave England, that they will be received on landing in the colony by persons interested in protecting them, an incalculable advantage to settlers with small capitals.
  - 34. Mechanics engaged in England, or elsewhere, will be established throughout the settlements.
- 35. Live stock of every kind, and the most approved breeds, will be supplied at reasonable prices, one half to be paid in cash, and the balance at such credit as may be arranged by the company's chief agent.
- 36. The gradual rate at which the company's lands can be settled, enables them to offer the first emigrants in rotation a preference in the selection of their farms.
- 37. These advantages will place a tenant under the company on a better footing than if he obtained lands elsewhere; this will be more apparent, when it is considered that the price fixed by the commissioners for colonizing South Australia is 20s. per acre, and which will no doubt be shortly increased.
- 38. The company will reserve the right of making roads, bridges, &c., through any lands, or wherever they may consider it necessary for the good of the general body of tenantry.
- 39. The expense of passage from England to Van Diemen's Land depends upon the accommodation and comforts which emigrants require, and varies from 16l. to 25l. each for steerage adult passengers; children in proportion. The voyage is usually performed in four or five months at farthest.
- 40. To enable a tenant to judge of the capital which he will require for a farm, the prices by the last despatches, and at which he may expect to obtain his supplies in the colony with cash, are here enumerated:
- Eight bullocks at 61. each, 481.; 1 cart or dray, 151.; 2 ploughs, 71.; 2 pair of harrows, 31. 10s.; bullocks' chains, bows, and yokes, 31. 10s.; various small implements, 10l.; total, 87l.

Meat, 4d, per lb.; flour, 2d, to  $2\frac{1}{2}d$ . ditto; sugar,  $2\frac{1}{2}d$ . to 4d. ditto; tea, 2s, to 3s,; soap, 7d, to 8d.

41. From these data, a tenant will be able to calculate, according to the number of his family, what his maintenance will cost, during the period which will probably elapse before he can expect to receive any returns from his own cultivation. In the mean time, if he wishes any convict servants, he will be bound by the government regulations to supply them as follows: 10½ lbs. bread or flour, 7 lbs, fresh meat, 7 oz. of sugar and 7 oz. of roasted wheat for coffee, or 14 pints of milk, or 14 pints of table beer, 3\frac{1}{2} oz. of soap, 2 oz. of salt, per week.

The convict's clothing would cost the tenant about 61. a year in the colony. On these terms convict labour is found very advantageous to the settler, and the men in general, under proper management, conduct themselves tolerably well. But those tenants who have sons and daughters will find their services extremely valuable.

- 42. Upon the whole, an industrious and respectable person, who arrives in the colony possessed of a sum of from 3001. to 5001., may undertake a farm with confidence of ultimate success, for it is but fair and reasonable to suppose that each tenant will be able to maintain himself in comfort from his own produce at the end of the second year.
- 43. It is clearly for the interest of the Van Diemen's Land company, that settlers upon their lands should prosper, and they hope the advantages held out will give encouragement to industry and the investment of capital.
- 44. The artisans, &c., who would meet with employment at good and steady wages, so soon as the settlement advances, are,—ploughmen, farm-labourers, blacksmiths, carpenters, coopers, sawyers, shoemakers, boat-builders, millers, tanners, brewers, malsters, wheelwrights, bricklayers, masons, shipwrights, brickmakers, horse breakers, and saddlers.

45. As soon as a sufficient number of emigrants shall have made up their minds, a ship will be engaged specially to convey them direct to the company's estates.

46. Applications from persons intending to emigrate, to be made personally, or by letter, post paid, to Mr. Samuel R. Ewen, at the Van Diemen's Land Company's office, 55, Old Broad Street, London.

I.—An estimate of the expense of defraying the salaries of the agents for emigration, from the 1st of April 1838 to the 31st of March 1839; agent-general, 500l.; assistant, 200l.; copying and contingencies, 300l.; agent at port of London, 208l.; office rent and contingencies of ditto, 150l.; agent at port of Liverpool, 208l.; assistant agent, ditto, 100l.; agent at port of Bristol, 208l.; do. # K .- Regulations for the disposal of Lands belonging to the Crown in the British North American provinces.

Colonial Office, 7th March, 1831.

The lands are no longer to be given away by free grants, but are to be sold.

The commissioners of crown lands will, at least once in every year, submit to the governor a report of the land which it may be expedient to offer for sale within the next ensuing year, and the upset price per acre at which he would recommend it to be offered; the land so offered having been previously surveyed and valued in one or more contiguous tracts of those which are most adapted for settlement, according to the local peculiarities of the province, and in proportion to the number of deputy-surveyors who can be employed.

The lands to be laid out in lots of 100 acres each, and plans of such parts as are surveyed are to be prepared for public inspection, which plans may be inspected in the office of the surveyor-general, or in that of his deputies, in each district, on payment of the fee of 2s. 6d.

He will give public notice in the official gazette, and in such other newspapers as may be circulated in the province, as well as in any other manner that circumstances will admit, of the time and place appointed for the sale of lands in each district, and of the upset price at which the lands are proposed to be offered; he will give notice that the lots will be sold to the highest bidder, and if no offer should be made at the upset price, that the lands will be reserved for future sale in a similar manner by auction.

The purchase-money will be required to be paid down at the time of sale, or by four instalments with interest; the first instalment at the time of the sale, and the second, third and fourth instalments at intervals of half a year.

If the instalments are not regularly paid, the deposit money will be forfeited, and the land again referred to sale.

Public notice will be given in each district in every year, stating the names of the persons in each district who may be in arrears for the instalments of their purchases, and announcing that if the arrears are not paid up before the commencement of the sales in that district for the following years, the lands in respect of which the instalments may be due will be the first lot to be exposed to auction at the ensuing sales; and if any surplus of the produce of the sale of each lot should remain after satisfying the crown of the sum due, the same will be paid to the original purchasers of the land who made default in payment.

The patent for the land will not be issued, nor any transfer of the property allowed until the whole of the instalments are paid. The lands sold under this regulation are not to be chargeable with quit rents, or any further payment beyond the purchase money and the expense of the payment.

Persons desirous of buying land, in situations not included in the tracts already surveyed, must previously pay for the expense of survey, and the price must of course depend upon the quality of the land and its local situation.

The crown will reserve to itself the right of making and constructing such roads and bridges as may be necessary for public purposes, in all lands purchased as above; and also to such indigenous timber, stone and other materials, the produce of the land, as may be required for making and keeping the said roads and bridges in repair, and for any other public works.

The crown further reserves to itself all mines of precious metals.

The regulations for granting licences to cut timber will be learned by application to the surveyor-general's office, in the respective colonies.

L.—Information for the use of military and naval officers, proposing to settle in the British Colonies.

Colonial Office, 15 August 1834.

1st. Annexed (see above) is a statement of the regulations according to which, with such modifications as local circumstances may render necessary, lands belonging to the crown are disposed of in the several British colonies in North America.

2. Under these regulations military and naval officers cannot receive free grants of land, but in buying land they are allowed a remission of the purchase money according to the undermentioned scale. Field officers of 25 years' service and upwards, in the whole, 300l.; field officers of 20 years' service and upwards, in the whole, 250*l.*; field officers of 15 or less years' service, in the whole 200*l.*; captains of 20 years' service and upwards, in the whole 200*l.*; captains of 15 years' service or less, in the whole, 150*l.*; subalterns of 20 years service and upwards, in the whole, 150*l.*; subalterns of seven years' service or less, in the whole, 100*l.*

Regimental staff officers and medical officers of the army and navy will be deemed to come within the benefit of this rule.

- 3. Officers of the army and navy who propose to proceed to the colonies in order to take advantage of this indulgence, should provide themselves with certificates from the office of the general commanding-inchief, or of the lords commissioners of the admiralty, showing that their emigration has been sanctioned, and stating exactly their rank and length of service. No document from the office of the secretary of state is necessary.
- 4. Officers on half pay, residing in the colony, when they propose to settle, may be admitted to the privileges of military and naval settlers without referring to this country for testimonials, provided they can satisfy the governor that there is no objection to their being allowed the indulgence, and that their return of their rank and length of service is accurate, and provided, if they belong to the navy, that they produce their letter of leave of absence from the admiralty.
- 5. Military chaplains, commissariat officers, and officers of any of the civil departments connected with the army, cannot be allowed any privileges on this subject of land. Pursers, chaplains, midshipmen, warrant officers of every description, and officers of any of the civil departments connected with the navy, must also be considered as not qualified for those privileges. Although members of these classes may have been admitted formerly, and under a different state of circumstances, they must now be excluded.
- 6. Gentlemen who have ceased to belong to His Majesty's service cannot be allowed the advantages to which they were entitled while in the army and navy. It is not, however, proposed to affect by this rule officers who desire to quit the service for the express purpose of settling in the colonies; it is only required that when they resign their commissions they should apply for a certificate from the general commanding-inchief, or from the lords commissioners of the Admiralty, that they do so with a view of emigrating; and such certificate, if produced to the governor of any colony within one year from its date, but not otherwise, will be a sufficient warrant for allowing the bearer the same advantages as officers of His Majesty's service.

Officers who have sold out within the last 12 months preceding the date of this memorandum will be allowed the usual privileges, notwithstanding their want of the certificate required by these regulations, if they present themselves to the governor of the colony within a year from the present date. And all officers who have already been recommended by the general commanding-in-chief, will be entitled to their privileges without regard to any obstruction which might otherwise be offered by the regulations now established.

- 7. Officers cannot be allowed advantages in the acquisition of land in any colony, unless it be their intention to fix their residence in that colony. In order to insure the observance of this rule, it has been determined that the titles to lands obtained by officers who take advantage of the peculiar regulations existing in their favour, shall be witholden for a period sufficient to prove that they have not repaired to the colony for the mere purpose of gaining possession of a portion of land and then departing. Two years is the period for which it has been decided that the titles shall be kept back; this delay will be sufficient for the salutary object in view, and will not constitute any serious inconvenience to the bond fide settler.
- 8. By the annexed regulations for the disposal of Crown lands, it will be observed that the general sales will take place periodically. But in order to prevent inconvenience to the officers who may arrive in the intervals between those sales, and be desirous at once to obtain an allotment, the governors of the colonies are authorized to allow officers to acquire at any time, on payment of the upset price, lands which have been previously offered for sale, at some general sale, and not been bought.

Officers will thus be relieved from delay at the time of establishing themselves in the colony. They will also be enabled by this arrangement, which will permit them to obtain their land at a fixed price, to choose such a quantity as shall be exactly equivalent to the amount of the remission to which they are entitled, instead of being liable to be called upon to pay a balance, which must be the case if they bid for lands at a sale by auction.

9. There being little or no Crown land available in Prince Edward's island, officers cannot be offered any privileges in the acquisition of land in that colony. In Cape Breton, an island in which the natural inducements for the settlement of officers are not very considerable, it is necessary, from local circumstances, that there should not be a remission of purchase-money as in other colonies; to such officers as may wish to settle in this island, allotments of land will be granted on the same scale and conditions as before the general introduction of the system of selling the Crown lands; viz.—To a lieutenant-colonel, 1,200 acres; to a major, 1,000 acres; to a captain, 800; to a subaltern, 500.

Grand total

Note.—In comparing the grand total with that obtained by adding the several totals of England, Scotland, and Ireland together, some slight difference will be perceived, owing to separate returns not having been given from several ports not here mentioned.

Total number of Emigrants, 1833, 62,527; 1834, 76,222; 1835, 44,478; 1836, 72,108; 1837, 72,034. The returns since 1834 are from the Emigration Office in Scotland Yard.

[Custom House, London, 23d March, 1835.]

The following calculation exhibits the political value of directing, for the next twenty years, to British America, 30,000 annually, of those who would otherwise go to the United States:—

This shows a clear balance in our favour of 20,000,000l. in twenty years, without even estimating the descendants of those emigrants during the twenty years. It is a fact well worth consideration to settlers, that the taxation in Upper or Lower Canada, on the necessaries or comforts of life, is not one-fifth of that of the United States.

GENERAL APPENDIX.

A.—Abstract or description of certain powers granted by the Government of England to individuals or bodies corporate for the foundation and government of Colonies.

1578. Letters Patent from Queen Elizabeth to Sir Humphrey Gilbert, his heirs and assigns; — with powers:—

"To discover and take possession of remote and heathen countries. To exercise rights, royalties, and jurisdiction in such countries and seas adjoining. To dispose of such lands to her Majesty's subjects in fee simple or otherwise. To correct, punish, pardon, govern, and rule, as well in causes capital or criminal as civil, all her subjects inhabiting such countries. To constitute such statutes, laws and ordinances as should by him, his heirs and assigns, be devised or established."

1584. Queen Elizabeth granted to Sir Walter Raleigh a patent similar to that which she had granted to his brother-in-law Sir Humphrey Gilbert.

1606. Letters Patent from James the first to Sir Thomas Gates, Sir George Somers and others, for two several colonies and plantations to be made in Virginia.

To have a council established in England to consist of thirteen persons, to be appointed by the King, to be called the council of Virginia. The council "to have the superior managing and direction only of and for all matters that shall or may concern the government, as well of the colonies of Virginia, as of and for any other place within the precincts of four and thirty and five and forty degrees in the said letters patent described." The council to have power to establish coins for the colonies and to levy duties on goods imported.

1630. Grant from Charles the First to Sir Robert Heath, attorney-general, of powers to plant a colony in Carolina. No attempt at settlement having been made under this grant, it was deemed null and void.

1632 Grant from Charles the First to Cœcilius, Lord Baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, of powers to plant a colony in Maryland.

To hold, possess, and enjoy lands within certain limits "as the true and absolute lords and proprietors of the said country, saving always the faith and allegiance, and sovereign dominion due unto us, to the sole and proper use and behoof of the said Lord Baltimore his heirs and assigns for ever." To ordain, make, enact, and publish any laws whatsoever appertaining either unto the public state of the said province or unto the private utility of particular persons, according to the best discretion of the said Lord Baltimore his heirs and assigns, by and with the advice of the freemen of the province or of their delegates whom the said Lord Baltimore should assemble in such form and manner as he pleased. To levy forces, make war, and, if necessary, to exercise martial law in the province. To confer titles. To erect and incorporate boroughs and cities. To impose duties of custom and port charges. To

1644. Grant from Charles the First to Henry Rosewell and others of powers to found a colony at Massachusetts Bay.

"To have full and absolute power and authority to correct, punish, pardon, govern and rule such subjects of us, our heirs and successors, as shall from time to time adventure themselves in a voyage thither or from thence, or that shall at any time hereafter inhabit within the said precincts, according to the laws and ordinances aforesaid not being repugnant to the laws and statutes of England." To be exempt from the payment of customs or subsidies in England for seven years. "From time to time to make, ordain, and establish all manner of wholesome and reasonable orders, lawes, statutes and ordinances, directions and instructions, not contrary to the lawes of the realm of England, as well for settling of the formes and ceremonies of government and magistracie fit and necessary for the said plantation and the inhabitants there, and for naming and styling of all sorts of officers, both superior and inferior, which they shall find needful for that government and plantation, and the distinguishing and setting forth of the several duties, powers and limits of every such office and place, and the forms of such oaths warrantable by the laws and statutes of the realm of England, as also for the disposing and ordering of the elections of such of the said officers as shall be annual, and of such others as shall succeed in case of death or removal, and for the directing, ruling and disposing of all other matters and things whereby our said people inheriting the said colony may be religiously, peaceably, and civilly governed."

1663. Grant by Charles the Second to Lord Clarendon, the Duke of Albemarle and others, of Carolina. This grant bears a close resemblance to that of Maryland, and was probably copied from it. It was under this charter that John Locke was employed to frame a constitution for Carolina.

1670. Grant by Charles the Second to Prince Rupert, the Duke of Albemarle, the Earl of Craven and others, under the name of the Hudson's Bay Company, of all lands, territories and countries within Hudson's Streights, under the name of Rupert's Land; exclusive trade therein; power to punish interlopers, to appoint governors, judges and other officers, to execute justice, to employ ships of war, and to make peace or war with any people not being Christians. This charter is still in operation.

1673. Grant (Connecticut) by Charles the Second to John Wintrop, John Mason and others, with powers :-

To "erect and make such judicatories for the hearing and determining of all actions, causes, matters, and things happening within the said colony or plantation as they shall think fit and convenient, and also from time to time to make, ordain, and establish all manner of wholesome and reasonable laws, statutes, ordinances, directions, and instructions, not contrary to the laws of this realm of England, as for settling the forms and ceremonies of government and magistracy fit and necessary for the said plantation and the inhabitants there, as for naming and styling all sorts of officers, both superior and inferior, which they shall find needful for the government and plantation of the said colony, and the distinguishing and setting forth of the several duties, powers, and limits of every such office and place, and for imposing of lawful fines, mulcts, imprisonments, and other punishments upon offenders and

" From time to time, and at all times hereafter, for their special defence and safety to assemble martial array, and put in warlike posture the inhabitants of the said colony, and to commissionate, empower, and authorize such person or persons as they shall think fit to conduct and lead the said inhabitants, and to encounter, expulse, repell, and resist by force of arms, as well by sea as by land, and to kill, slay, and destroy by all fitting ways, enterprises, and means whatsoever, all and every such person or persons as shall at any time hereafter attempt or enterprize the destruction, invasion, detriment or annoyance of the said inhabitants and plantation."

1673. Grant (Rhode Island) by Charles the Second to John Clarke and others with powers:—
"To use, exercise, and put in execution in the administration of justice and exercise of government in the said plantation such methods, rules, orders, and directions as have been used and accustomed in such cases respectively until at the next or some other general assembly of the said corporation especial provision shall be made and ordained."

"To nominate, appoint and constitute such and so many commanders, governors, and military officers, as to them shall seem requisite for the leading, conducting, and training up the inhabitants of the said plantation in martial affairs, and for the defence and safeguard of the said plantation."

1673. Grant (Pennsylvania) by Charles the Second to William Penn, with powers " free, full, and absolute to him and his heirs, and to his and their deputies and lieutenants, to ordain, make, enact, and under his and their seals to publish, any laws whatsoever for the raising of money for the public use of the said province, and for any other end appertaining either to the public state, peace, or safety of the said country, or unto the private utility of particular persons, according to their best discretions, by and with the advice, assent, and approbation of the freemen of the said country, or the greater part of them or of their delegates or deputies, whom for the enacting of the said laws when and as often as need shall require we will, that the said William Penn and his heirs shall assemble in such sort and form as to him and them shall seem best, and the said laws duly to execute unto and upon all people within the said county and limits thereof."

"To appoint and establish any justices, magistrates, and officers whatsoever, for what causes soever, and with what power soever, and in such form as to the said William Penn or his heirs shall seem most convenient." "To have and enjoy from time to time for ever the customs and subsidies in the ports, harbours, and other creeks in the places aforesaid."
"That We, our heirs and successors shall at no time hereafter set, or make, or cause to set, any imposition, custom or other taxation, rate or contribution whatsoever, in and upon the dwellers and inhabitants of the aforesaid province, or in and upon any goods and merchandize within the said province or to be laden or unladen within the ports or harbours of the said province, unless the same be with the consent of the proprietary or chief governor and assembly, or by act of parliament in 1731. Grant (Georgia) by George the Second, to John Lord Viscount Percival and others, of all lands in a certain part of South Carolina, with powers :

"To form and prepare laws, statutes, and ordinances, fit and necessary for and concerning the government of the said colony, and not repugnant to the laws and statutes of England; and the same shall and may present under their common seal to us, our heirs and successors, in our or their privy council, for our or their approbation or disallowance; and the said laws, statutes, and ordinances being approved by us our heirs and successors, in our or their privy council, shall from thenceforth be in full force and virtue within our said province of Georgia."

"To erect and constitute judicatures and courts of record, or other courts, to be held in the name of us, our heirs and successors, for the hearing and determining of all manner of crimes, offences, pleas, processes, plaints, actions, matters, causes and things whatsoever, arising or happening within the said province of Georgia, or between persons inhabiting or residing there, whether the same be criminal or civil, and whether the said crimes be capital or not capital, and whether the said pleas be real, personal,

"To nominate, make, constitute, commission, ordain and appoint, by such name or names, style or styles, as to them shall seem meet and fitting, all and singular such governors, judges, magistrates, ministers and officers, civil and military, both by sea and land, within the said district, as shall by them be thought fit and needful to be made or used for the government of the said colony-Provided always, that every governor of the said province of Georgia shall be approved of by us our heirs and

"To train, instruct, exercise and govern a militia for the special defence and safety of our said colony, to assemble in martial array, and put in warlike posture, the inhabitants of the said colony, and to lead and conduct them, and with them to encounter, expulse, repel, resist and pursue, by force of arms, as well by sea as by land, within or without the limits of our said colony, and also to kill, slay, destroy or conquer, by all fitting ways, enterprizes, and means whatsoever, all and every such person and persons as shall at any time hereafter, in an hostile manner, attempt or enterprize the destruction, invasion, detriment or annoyance of our said colony."

"To authorize and appoint such persons as they shall think fit, to take subscriptions, and to gather and collect such monies as shall be by any person or persons contributed for the purposes aforesaid; and shall and may revoke and make void such appointments as often as they shall see cause so to do.'

1791. Grant (Sierra Leone) by George the Third to Granville Sharpe, William Wilberforce and others, of all lands in the Peninsula of Sierra Leone: with powers of legislation and government quite as large as those granted to Lord Baltimore or William Penn.

U.—CHILDREN'S FRIEND SOCIETY.

This excellent Institution, known also by the name of its benevolent founder—as the "Brenton Juvenile Asylum"-was founded by Captain Brenton R.N. in 1830-for the wise and good purpose of preventing crime, by taking children off the streets and from the haunts of misery and crime before they become tainted by the moral pestilence of our goals, or branded with the stamp of convicted felons. Depending solely on individual assistance, and under the patronage of the Queen and Duchess of Kent, the founders and managers of this truly Christian Society have already effected much good; the extent of their operations being alone circumscribed by their means. The children are received into two asylums while in England; that for the boys is situate at Hackney Wick, (3 miles N. of London); the girls asylum is at Chiswick on the banks of the Thames. The plan of these Asylums and the mode in which the children are provided for in the Colonies will be best seen by the following transcript from the books of the Society.

"At 'The Brenton Juvenile Asylum, Hackney-Wick, boys, under an able and vigilant superintendent, receive the advantages of religious and moral instruction, combined with a system of agricultural labour and manual employment, calculated to form habits of general usefulness and industry.

"The establishment of the society for the reception of girls, at Chiswick, called, by permission, the 'Royal Victoria Asylum,' is under the separate management of a committee of ladies. The girls remain in the asylum until good and respectable habits have been so far acquired, that hope may be reasonably entertained of their becoming generally useful.

"After this preparatory discipline, the children, unless removed by their friends, or discharged in consequence of a refusal, on their part or that of their parents or guardians, to emigrate, are apprenticed, as farm or domestic servants, to respectable individuals in our colonies.

"Committees of ladies, in the respective colonies, take care of the girls upon their arrival, and keep a watchful authority over them during their time of apprenticeship.

"Committees of influential gentlemen at Cape Town, King George's Sound, Perth, Albany, Graham's Town, Toronto in Upper Canada, and Huntingdon in Lower Canada, have already enabled the society to provide for a considerable number of destitute children, who would otherwise probably have perished from want or disease, or have been driven by misery to crime. These local committees have the power of cancelling any indenture in case of ill usage.

"The plan of training and education pursued in the asylums of this society differs essentially from that in common use. Under a plan of dicipline applied to the heart and affections, rendering corporal punishment almost unnecessary, children are sufficiently susceptible of training to render them valuable apprentices, with the prospect of becoming useful and respectable members of society: the system, though turning principally on farm, out-door, and in-door labour, combines also that of the artisan.

"Character and conduct meet with due appreciation, and book learning is considered more in the light of relaxation than in that of labour: yet it will be found that the pupils make certain and rapid progress in necessary acquirements.

"The objects of this charity are: orphans; children exposed to crime from the vice or poverty of the parents; children of parents who are in a state of great destitution, but whom a noble feeling prevents from applying to the parish; and children who are actually inmates of the workhouse: and it should be understood that it is for such objects only that the charity is designed. It is unnecessary to enlarge upon the advantages which must follow from removing that host of young and wretched beings with which the streets of the metropolis are frequented, and rescuing these poor children from certain wretchedness and temptation to crime, while they are still at an age when it is practicable, by a judicious and well-considered system of religious and moral discipline, to reform these habits, and to render them happy in themselves, and contributors to the general welfare."

The following are the regulations under which the society is supported and managed :-

A donation of 51. or upwards constitutes the donor a member for life.

A subscription of 5s. or more, yearly, an annual member, and by increasing the subscription to 5l. within the year, the subscriber becomes a life member.

All members have a right to vote upon every question propounded, and every election held, at any general meeting of the society.

A legacy of 101. and upwards bequeathed to the society constitutes the first named acting executor a member for life.

Every annual subscription is considered as made on the 1st of June, or on the 1st of December next preceding the first payment.

All contributors receive, upon demand at the time of payment, tickets to the amount of their respective donations or subscriptions.

Subject to the following regulations, and to the approval of the general committee, any child shall be eligible to the benefits of the institution.

Any person contributing the sum of 151., or producing tickets to that amount, is entitled to place a child, between the ages of eleven and fourteen, upon the male or female establishment, as the case may be.

The general committee of management have power, in special cases, to admit any child under the age of eleven, and between the ages of fourteen and sixteen, if in the latter case the child be of good moral character. When, however, the child to be admitted is under the age of eleven, a sum varying from 4s. to 5s. per week (not in tickets) must be paid, over and above the entrance-money, until it shall attain that age.

Children are received from public institutions or parishes on payment of a weekly sum of 4s., and also of 10s. when embarked.

A limited number of young children between the ages of four and seven are received into the female establishment at Chiswick, from public institutions or parishes, on payment of 4s. 3d. per week, and without entrance-money, to be educated in the infant-school system; their continuance in the institution must, however, depend upon the discretion of the general committee of management.

No child is received by the society until it shall have been examined by a medical man, and certified to be in a sounce tate of health.

When 'one child has not been baptized as a member of the Established Church, or otherwise formally admitted into any other religious community, measures are taken to supply the deficiency, according to the wishes of its parents or guardians; and, in the case where no parents or natural guardians can be found, the child is considered a member of the Established Church. The period of apprenticeship for which the child is to be bound in the colonies, is determined by the age declared on admission.

Upon admission, the boys are placed in the asylum at Hackney-Wick, and the girls in the asylum at Chiswick, and retained there respectively till considered by the general committee fit for service or other employment in the colonies.

No child is sent from England without the previous sanction of the general committee of management, nor without its own free consent, and the consent of its parents or guardians.

N.B. The general committee of management meets every Wednesday; all applications for admission must be made on that day, between the hours of eleven and one, at No. 9, Throgmorton-street, where letters to the secretary must also be directed.

A personal examination of the boys' and girls' school, and an attention to the working of the institution, for several years, enables me to bear my personal testimony to the great benefit which England and the colonies derive from this excellent establishment. It is impossible to witness the condition and treatment of the boys at Hackney, under the mild, firm, and judicious management of Mr. Wright, without experiencing a great delight, and being convinced how important to the character of a nation is the early physical and moral discipline, as well as mental education of its youth. There is no appearance of a cold charity among the boys; a sturdy, frank, cheerful, and manly demeanour is immediately observant in their conduct. They farm their own ground, mend and wash their own clothes, work in the carpenter and blacksmith's shop, repair their shoes, print their tracts, draw maps of the colonies to which they are proceeding, learn to swim, climb a mast, "rig a yard," go through military exercises-in short, they are fitted for any occupation which may enable them to obtain an honest livelihood. There is no personal chastisement (which brutalizes either child or man); a constant round of useful occupations leaves no leisure for vice; every ten boys are in charge of a monitor, chosen from among themselves; they go into school, two hours in the morning and two hours in the evening, and, according as they rise in the scale of good conduct, they are permitted to make choice of the colony to which they may prefer proceeding. Their emigration, therefore, is a reward for their good conduct; and the excellent reports which have come home from the colonies, is the best proof of the soundness of the system which Captain Brenton, Mr. Maubert, and others, so beneficently see carried into effect.

The plan of emigration was commenced in the year : 833, when all the children then in the asylums were sent to the Cape of Good Hope. The total number of children received from November 1830, to December 31, 1837, was 1,538; the total expenditure during that period was 21,880l. The number provided for in the colonies to October 31, 1838, is as above, 1,070; provided for by friends, &c., 570; died, 4; now in the asylums, 157; total number admitted since the first establishment of the institution, 1,80l. It were much to be wished that Her Majesty's Government would extend the benefits of this institution by a parliamentary annual grant and by allotting a portion of land in Canada and other agricultural colonies for the formation of branch asylums. Into those branch asylums the children would be received on landing; they would be instructed in colonial farming, in the management of a dairy, and in every pursuit advantageous to a settler in a new colony. On proof of long-continued good conduct, the adult should receive ten acres of land, a horse, cow, and some farming implements; and, on the marriage of one of the girls of the institution; her dower should be five acres of land, a cow, &c. The advantages of such an institution, both to the colonies and the mother country, would be incalcuable. The former would have a constant influx of a young healthy population morally and usefully trained for the good of society; the latter would be checking crime in the bud. Our prisons in 1838 are filled with the neglected children of 1828 and 1818. It is seldom that a man becomes a criminal; the seeds of vice are sown in youth, and produce, in dense and civilized communities, like England, a fatally abundant crop of the elements of general misery and national decay.

like England, a fatally abundant crop of the elements of general misery and national decay.

A society like the one now in existence, managed by a highly respectable committee, would be better adapted for carrying this plan into effect than Government. Zeal seldom or ever pervades the officera paid and appointed by Governments (such as they are now constituted), and, although integrity may be secured, apathy predominates. Moreover, if Government were to carry the plan into effect, the children might be considered as "transported," and the good effects arising from their feeling that they were earning their own livelihood would be lost. I would earnestly urge on those who look to the welfare of the rising generation as essential to the future happiness and prosperity of England, to consider this subject, and, instead of building penitentiaries for male and female infant criminals, to take them out of crime unstained by the contamination of a prison, and without affixing an indelible stamp of infamy, which clings like a curse through life to the unfortunate being whom parental neglect has subjected to temptations, ere their sinfulness was apparent, before there was moral strength to resist them, and long prior to the mental consciousness of the misery which inevitably ensues from a downward course of guilt. When, alas! will Governments act on Christian principles, and endeavour to prevent crime, instead of punishing it when committed.
